CALENDAR AND ALMANAC
FOR 1853.

BOMBAY:

PRINTED AT THE TIMES' PRESS,

BY L. R. DILLON.

PREFACE.

FOR some years past we have been endeavouring to introduce annually as large an amount of new matter into the Bombay Almanacs as could be compressed within the space allowed, without disturbing that deemed by prescriptive right indispensable—excluding in the following year what has been published in the previous one, avoiding as far as possible superfluous reprinting, and endeavouring to make Almanacs a series of volumes of general interest, every part of each of which should every year be more or less new. About three-fourths of the whole of our Bombay Almanacs are reprints, and it is surely quite sufficient for general readers to have a Gardener's Calendar, which never changes, a description of fixed and moveable festivals—Christian and Heathen—which are never read, tables of Insurances, of Exchange, and of Pay, laid before them something less frequently than once a year. On the present occasion most of these things have been excluded altogether, and material more attractive substituted in their room; while the Acts of the Legislative Council, and the Custom House and the Post Office Regulations, have been compressed into as narrow limits as perspicuity permits. Technicalities and details are a weariness and an encumbrance to the ordinary reader, who desires nothing more than facts, and wishes to have these in the most concise possible form: readers not ordinary will not content themselves with Almanacs as authorities on matters of law at all. The following are the omissions from last year's Almanac:—

A Popular Calendar.—Years, Months,	Index of Europe Vegetables.
Weeks.	Annuity Tables.
Christian Festivals and Fasts	Rules of the Supreme Court of Bombay.
Native do.	Post Office Rules.
Gardeners' Calendar for Bombay.	Custom House do.
Ditto for the Deccan.

To prevent the want of these from being felt, an Index has been given to the contents of the Almanacs of 1849, 1850, 1851, and 1852, in addition to that for the Almanac of 1853, so that anything wished for, not to be found in the latter, may be turned up; should it exist, in any of the former. Next year we hope to be able to prepare an Index for all the Bombay Almanacs for the past ten years, so that any one possessed of any of all these, may experience no inconvenience from our exclusions. By pursuing this system over a term of years, our Almanacs, instead of being a succession of reprints, will come to form a series of volumes valuable for reference on the passing events of the year. Changes of this description must, of necessity, and of their very nature, occasion temporary inconvenience, and purchasers of our Almanac will probably this season miss many useful tables they were accustomed to meet with, and it may be a little time before they learn to look back for these to the Almanacs of previous years. The Index will remedy from the outset any substantial inconvenience of this sort to those possessing the Times' Almanacs of previous years; the general Index to be prepared next year for all Almanacs will remove it altogether; but the inconveniences of change must always be encountered some time or other if reforms are to be attempted, and the sooner they are met and surmounted the better. It will be admitted that the benefits of the alterations referred to, when weighed against the annoyances attending them, will leave a vast balance in their favor.

Amongst the portions of the Almanacs entirely new are the Chronological Tables and the Index which accompanies them, and we have considered it expedient to make these for the last twenty years something more than a mere enumeration of names of events and dates of their occurrence. The customary mode of entering, say the following facts, is as follows:—

1845—December 21st. Battle of Ferozeshah.

1846—February 10th. Battle of Sobraon.

The entries will be found as follows:—

December 21. Battle of Ferozeshah. The Seikhs again defeated, with tremendous slaughter. The British so exhausted, and so deficient in artillery and supplies, especially of ammunition as to be unable to prosecute the victory. In these two battles, about 30,000 Seikhs were engaged—fifty British officers were killed, including two majors general, two colonels, three majors, and eighteen captains; 850 men were killed, and 2,259 were wounded.

February 10. Battle of Sobraon. The British force, under the commander-in-chief and governor general, about 20,000,—Seikhs about 36,000, totally defeated and driven across the Sutlej, with a loss of about 11,000 killed and wounded; 67 guns and all their camp stores and ammunition captured. Our casualties amounted to 2,383 killed and wounded. The whole British army followed into the Punjaub.

PREFACE.

The events of the year just ended admit of a still greater amplification, and here we have attempted to make such further addition of accessories as to make the Chronology of the twelvemonth a sort of Indian year book of facts. Of this the following serves as an example:—

September 9. The Friend of India publishes an analyses of the accounts of the East India Company for 1849-50, with an estimate for 50,51. In the former year there was a balance in favour of 35 lacs; in the latter a balance against of 68 lacs. Bombay and Scinde together showed a deficit of 51,85,000, the Punjab a gain of 40,00,000, the total estimated balance in favour of India, of 20,13,300 is transformed into a deficit of 68; by accounts from home, of 2,71,71,008. Mr Melvill stated before the Lords' committee that dividing the time from 1834 to 1851 into periods of four years, there was an average surplus from 1834 to 1838 of £818,894, -1838, 1841, a deficit of £12,56,754; 1846-49, £10,00,586 an estimated deficit for 51 of £678,381. Since 1838, 30 millions had been spent on war, 20 of which had been added to our debt.

September 16. Severe shock of earthquake experienced in China, Luzon and at Manilla, in the province of Kansuh, it was felt for 15 successive days. Upwards of 20,000 houses are said to have been destroyed, 300 of the inhabitants perished and 400 others were seriously hurt. The Emperor, in noticing the event, desired a remission of the land tax, and forwarded a supply of money and grain to the distressed. —Straits Times.

—Base line of verification for the grand Trigonometrical survey begun to be laid down near Kurrachee. The survey commenced in 1804, and up to 1850 had extended over an area of 167,827 square miles, at a cost of £312,389, or Rupees 725 per mile. Our Empire comprises 800,758 miles. Native states in Hindoostan 508,442, total area of survey when completed 1,309,200 square miles, with a boundary line of 11,260, Colonel Waugh, Blue Book 1850, Calcutta Review, 1851.

September 28. The Auckland steamer, with mails of the 15th, reached Aden four hours too late for the Haddington, and required to proceed to Suez in consequence, with nearly a certainty of being too late for the Alexandria steamer, and she proved too late accordingly, the mail remaining a fortnight in Egypt. The P. & O. Co.'s steamer Achilles, which left a day after the Auckland, arrived three days before her, and the Auckland herself must have been within 25 or 30 miles of Aden, quite within sight of the signal station at Shum Shum, 1,700 feet above the level of the sea, before the Haddington left—only Government could not afford the expense of keeping a proper signal man at the station. The charges of the Auckland to Suez would have maintained the signal station efficient for above thirty years.

—There is at present in course of construction on Wadsworth-common a singular-looking structure consisting of a plain tower with a long tube slung by its side, surrounded by a wooden boarding to keep off intruders. This large tube encloses a new monster telescope on the achromatic principle in process of construction, under the superintendence of Mr. W. Gravatt, F. R. S., for the Rev. Mr. Graig, vicar of Leamington. The site, consisting of two acres, has been liberally presented by Earl Spencer in perpetuity, or so long as the telescope shall be maintained. The central tower, consisting of brick, is 64 feet in height, 15 feet in diameter, and weighs 220 tons. The focal distance will vary from 76 to 85 feet. The tube at its greatest circumference measures 13 feet, and this part is about 24 feet from the object-glass. Besides this, there is a second of plate-glass of the same dimensions. The manner in which these object-glasses are fitted into the tube is a marvel of artistic invention. By means of 12 screws, numbered according to the hours of the day, they can be set in an instant to any angle the observer may require, by his merely calling out the number of the screw to be touched. The object-glasses also move round in grooves to wherever it may be considered that a more distinct view can be gained. The tube rests upon a light wooden framework, with iron wheels attached, and is fitted to a circular iron railway at a distance of 52 feet from the centre of the tower. The chain by which it is lowered is capable of sustaining a weight of 13 tons, though the weight of the tube is only three. With respect to the magnifying power of this novel instrument, it is only necessary to state that, though the focus is not so perfect as it will be shortly, it has already separated the nebula in the same way as Lord Rosse's. It has also separated some of the double stars in the Great Bear, and shown distinctly a clear distance of 50 or 60 minutes between them, with several other stars occupying the intervening space. Ordinary readers will better understand the extraordinary magnifying power of the telescope when we inform them that by it a quarter-inch letter can be read at the distance of half a mile.

—At the end of the year 1836, the printed books in the Library of the British Museum consisted of 230,000 volumes. In July 1851, it consisted of 465,000; and at the end of that year it amounted to 470,000 volumes. During the last fifteen years the library has therefore increased at the rate of 16,000 volumes a year on the average. The superficial extent of the shelves of the whole library, exclusive of that set apart for newspapers, amounts to 55,500 superficial feet. By the great economy of space, it appears that out of these 55,400 feet, there are now 50,500 actually occupied. Judging from the increase of the last fifteen years, there is now only room for the books that will accumulate for the next year and half. By the calculations of Mr. Panizzi, 480,000 volumes will be added to the library within the next 30 years.—Atlas.

October 1. A cyclone in the China Seas, 18° N. 128° E. The Paragon dismasted.

This system it is hoped will through future years be carried out, diversified and extended so as to convey to the reader as large an amount of information as can be communicated within a very limited amount of space.

At a time when the Charter Act was under discussion, it seemed of much importance to give an outline of the mechanism of the Government of India in both the departments of English and Indian administration. There is scarcely anything of this sort to be met with in a compendious form anywhere, save in the seldom read and not very accurate volume of Count Bjorstjerna; and from what constantly appears in print and is met with in conversation, it is very plain that this portion of the British Government, simple as it is, is scarcely anywhere tolerably understood. A considerable impression of this has been printed off in a separate form, and should the Charter receive any material alteration and pass within the present year, a new account will be prepared of our amended constitution for the almanac of next year.

Under the word YEARS, find the year, above which is the Dominical or Sunday letter for the year; then against the month in the other table, find the same letter over which are placed the days of the month for every Sunday in that month.—Each blank space shews the year following to be leap year.

N. B.—In every leap year, for January and February use the letter above the blank space before that year ; and for the other months, use the letter belonging to the respective year.

To find out when it is leap year, divide the year by 4 ; if there is no remainder, it is leap year ; and if any remainder, it is 1, 2, or 3, years after leap year.

JANUARY was placed as leader of the months by Numa Pompilius, when he added two months (January and Feb.) to the Alban Calendar, though it was not admitted to the same precedence in this country until a motion was made to that effect on March 18, 1750. The name is derived from Janus, the god of the year, in the Roman mythology, to whom the day was sacred. The idol Janus was placed over the gate of a temple at Rome; and was represented with two faces, the one that of an old man, being typical of his retrospect of the past; and the other, a youthful countenance, denoting prospect of the future. This ingress of the year, should, in fact, as we have look forward and contrive for that which is just begun. The Romans sacrificed to Janus on the 9th day of this month, and to Jove on the 13th; and on the last, or 31st day of the month they had a ceremony with their household gods, called dies penatibus. Janus presides over gates and avenues; thus symbolically he admitted the new year, and attended the departure of the old.

FEBRUARY was made the second of the twelve months by Numa Pompilius. Its name was derived either from Februs, a title which the Romans gave to the Feralia sacrifices; or more probably from Februs, to purify, because this being originally held to be the last month of the year, the people offered an expiatory sacrifice for their 12 months' sin. Feralia, or feast in honour of the Ghosts, was held on the 11th—the Lupercalia, in honour of Pan, the god of hunters, the shepherds, and country people, on the 15th—and the Terminalia, or feast in honour of Terminus, the guardian of boundaries and landmarks, on the 22nd or 23rd of the month.

MARCH, which with the ancients ranked the first month of the year, was named in honour of Mars, the supposed father of the founder of Rome. Our Anglo-Saxon ancestors called it Lenct Monath, that is Lent or Spring Month. Marriages in this month were seldom solemnized, as they were counted likely to become inharmonious and unhappy. The 15th day of March, or according to the Roman Calendar, the Ides of the month, was the Parricidium, the day on which Julius Cæsar was murdered in the Senate House by Brutus and Cassius, with other conspirators. The same day was also the feast of Anna Berenna, the sister of Dido, who fled into Italy to Æneas. On the Calends of March, the 1st of the month was the Matronalis, kept by the matrons to the honour of Mars.

APRIL.—By the Saxons it was called Ostre Monath, probably from the same word from which Easter is supposed to have been derived. The Dutch and Germans called it Gras month. The name of this month is derived from the Latin word Aperio, to open or declose. The term applies to the opening of the year, or to the unfolding of the buds and flowers, by the influence of the genial warmth and moisture of spring. The reason why our months, and many of our festivals, are to be ascribed to Roman designation and institutions, is the early footing which that people obtained in Britain, and the sanction that their customs received in consequence of the higher orders of British youths being sent to Rome for education.

MAY.—The Hebrews named this month of their Calendar, which is synonymous with the fifth of our own, Sivan, from a Catholic word signifying "to rejoice." The Anglo-Saxons knew it as Tri-n ilchi, because their cows, stimulated by the fresh herbage, were so productive of milk as to enable the proprietors with advantage to bring them to the pail three times a day. The Romans offered sacrifice to Bona Dea, or Maia, on the first day of the month.

JUNE—was the Thamur or Tamuz of the Hebrews, that is, after their escape from the Babylonish captivity, for previously to that they had simply distinguished their months by aid of numerations. Thamur, or Tamuz, signifies continuance, and perfection, alluding, probably, to the almost uninterrupted daylight maturation of fruit, &c. which occur during its continuance.

JULY, the fifth month of the Roman Calendar, received in consequence, the name of Quintilis to denote its numerical position. It was sacred to Jupiter, and had in the Alban Calendar thirty-six days. Romulus took from it five days. Numa reduced it to thirty, but Julius Caesar enlarged it to thirty-one, the present number. In honour of this conqueror, Mark Anthony changed its name from Quintilis to Julius—hence our July. Our Saxon forefathers, who commonly named their months from certain appearances or events, denominated this month How-monath, or Hey-monath, since this was their hay harvest.

AUGUST—This month derived its name from Augustus the Roman Emperor; it was called Sextilis, or the sixth month in the Alban Calendar, in which it had only twenty eight days assigned to it. Romulus added two, and Augustus a third, which number it has since retained. The Anglo-Saxons called it either Barn month, alluding to this being the period when their barns were commonly filled, or Wood month, alluding to their fields being then clothed with corn, just as the Romans dedicated this month to Ceres, the goddess of harvest.

SEPTEMBER.—In the Latin and Roman Calendar, this was the seventh month; and hence its name for Septem, seven, Imber, a shower of rain, this being the commencement of the rainy season. It had only sixteen days assigned to it in the Alban Calendar: these were increased to thirty, by Romulus, to thirty-one by Julius Cæsar, but Augustus reduced it to its present number. The ancient Saxons called it Berst Monath, or Barley month.

OCTOBER was called by our Saxon forefathers Wynn monath, or Wine month, and sometimes winter fylleth, from the approach of Winter. It was the eighth month of the Alban Calendar, in which it had thirty-nine days. Its name is derived from the Latin, octo, eight, and Imber, a shower of rain. Romulus reduced it to thirty-one days; Numa to twenty-nine; Julius and Augustus each added one, and this number has not since been altered.

NOVEMBER.—The early Saxon inhabitants of England called this Blott monath, or slaughter month, because, in these primitive days, winter food was so scarce in England, that it was usual to kill and salt the great part of their winter meat in this month; they called it also Wint month, or Wind month. Its name is derived from the Latin Novem, nine, and Imber, a shower. It was so called in the Alban Calendar.

DECEMBER.—The month of December, so named by the Romans from being the tenth or last month into which they divided the year, was denominated by the Saxons winter monath; but after Christianity, they piously gave the name of holy month, or Helig monath.

INTRODUCTION.

THE only explanation which is conceived necessary, to render the scheme of the following Calendar fully understood, is that the Christian months indicated at the top of each page, divide the Native months, as they appear represented in the space below allotted to their names :— January, for example, partakes of the Hindoo months, Marroo Poush and Magh,—Guzeratt, Duxun and Concan, Margashirsh and Poush,—and Malabar, Dhanuh and Magaram,—the Parsee months Shaen-hoyee, Teer and Amoordad; Kudmee, Amoordad and Shavaver; and the date of Nowroz 128 to 129,—the Mahommedan months Rubee-ul-avul and Rubee-ul-akhur, and the Jewish months Tebeth and Sebeth.

From the columns is to be collected, that the 1st of January corresponds with the 6th of Poush Vud, Marroo,—the 6th of Margashirsh Vud Guzeratt, Duxun and Concan; 20th of Dhanuh, Malabar; the 8th of Teer, Shaen-hoyee; the 8th of Amoordad, Kudmee; the 126th day of Nowroz or Kudmee; the 20th of Rubee-ul-avul Mahommedan; and 21st of Tebeth, Jewish, and so throughout the year.

We have also endeavoured to discriminate the feasts and festivals of each nation by different sorts of type; the Hindoos, for example, we have distinguished by Roman small letters, as Poush Shood; the name of the Malabar month by Roman capitals, as MAGARAM; the Parsees by small capitals, as AMOORDAD; the Mahommedan and Jewish by Italic small letters, as Mohurrum.

HINDOOS.

It may here be observed, that the Hindoo lunar months invariably consists of 30 Tithes, or lunar days : and the whole month is divided into two equal parts, of 15 Tithes each : the one called Shookla Puksh. or Shood—the bright half or increase of the Moon : the other the Krishna Puksh, or Vud, the dark half or decrease of the Moon. The lunar month begins, on the Western side of India, and South of the Nurbudda River, with the first day of the Shookla Puksh, (Sho d Prutipada) or bright half of the Moon.—At Benares, Oujein, and the countries North of the Nurbudda, the lunar month begins with the first day of the Krishna Puksh, (Vud Prutipada) or dark half of the Moon. The first is designated the Shookladee mode of reckoning, and the latter, the Krishnadee. The lunar year begins with the first day of the Shookla Puksh, or bright half of the Moon in Chytr, both North and South of the Nurbudda, in every country in India ; but as the dark half of the Moon precedes the other, or Shookla Puksh at Benares, the half lunar month of Chytr is taken from the last lunar month of the year preceding, and considered to belong to it.

It has been already stated that the lunar month invariably consists of 30 Tithes or lunar days, but it has been customary with all Eastern nations, in order to regulate their fasts and festivals, to drop certain lunar days, and to reckon others twice, to make up the deficiency : the first of these are termed by the Hindoos Kshuvu Tithes (peri-hable days,) and the days repeated twice are called Vridh Tithes (additional days.) The rule of these is exceedingly simple—those lunar days on which the Sun does not rise, (Sooryodayu nuheen) are struck out ; those in which it rises twice are Vridh, or additional : and it is obvious that such circumstances will occur about six times in the course of the lunar year.

PARSEES.

THERE are at present two branches of the Parsees, who differ one month in the year from each other : those that forward one month in their year are styled Kudmees, and the rest Shaenshoyees. The present scheme embraces the Parsee æra of Yezdezerd, commonly styled Kudmee or Dureeyee Nowroz, or Sea reckoning, the same being made use of in all nautical calculations among the Asiatic mariners, the new year of which always commences on the 1st day of Furverdeen. The Kudmees reckon the new year, and the Dureeyee Nowroz, to fall on the 27th of August, one month earlier than the commencement of the Shaenshoyee's new year.—It also embraces the Parsee æra of Yezdezerd, commonly called Shaenshoyee, the new year of which generally begins on the last day of Furverdeen. The Shaenshoyees compute the new year to commence from the 26th of September, a month later than the commencement of the Kudmed's new year.

MAHOMMEDANS.

THE first day of Mohurram, or the commencement of the year, is ordinarily reckoned from the first appearance of the Moon, after the conjunction observed from an eminence of any sort, or even in cloudy weather, from the time at which, but for these obstacles, it would be visible : and this can scarcely happen earlier than 24, or later than 48 hours after the conjunction.—After this manner each several month is reckoned, and the lapse of twelve such months constitute the Mahommedan year.

JEWS.

THE Jews have ever marked their time by sevenths, according to the command given by God himself, for labouring during only six days of each week, and resting on the seventh, which was consequently set apart, or consecrated, to the service of their Creator :—nay, they not only hallowed the seventh day, or SABBATH, which formed a portion of their week of days, but they had, also, their weeks of years, which consisted of seven years : and their Jubilees, or rejoicing periods which were celebrated by many acts of justice, forgiveness, and restitution, at the end of every week of seven times seven years. The Hebrews, the Assyrians, Egyptians, Arabians, and Persians, all had this custom of reckoning by weeks. The origin of computation by sevenths has been vehemently contested by some authors ; who say that the four quarters of intervals of the Moon (the phases, or changes, of which are about seven days distant) originally gave occasion to this mode of division. But it seems more reasonable to conclude that it arose from the traditional account of the first seven days of the world's existence.

PREFACE TO THE CHRONOLOGY.

THE following Chronological Tables from 1528 to 1847 have been based on a series which appeared in the Almanac printed in 1848 at the office of the Bengal Hurkaru: considerable additions have been made to these throughout,—from 1830 they have been to a considerable extent re-written ; from 1847 to the present date the whole is entirely new. In the tables for former years we have confined ourselves to events connected with the history of India—in that for the past year only, which necessarily breaks off in November, are notable events in general enumerated. We shall probably go on enlarging and improving this should it be deemed expedient, so that from these short tables a somewhat brief outline of the history of India may be obtained.

A CHRONOLOGICAL REGISTER OF EVENTS IN OR RELATING TO INDIA.

1789 Behar : the whole was completed in 1793, when, in pursuance of instructions from England, the settlement was declared perpetual.

By this settlement, which produced such an important change in a large portion of India, the zemindars, who were in fact the revenue agents of the Mogul government, usually hereditary, and possessed of much power and influence, but not owners of the land, which they could neither sell nor alienate, were declared the actual landowners, and from them the principal revenue of India was to be derived, in the shape of land-tax. The ryots, or peasantry, who, though often grievously oppressed, were, after the sovereign, the real owners of the soil, of which they could not be dispossessed, while they paid the assessments levied upon it, were declared the tenants of the zemindars. The effects of this financial measure were disastrous. The zemindars, obliged to go through legal formalities to collect their rents from the ryots, were unable to pay their taxes to the government, whose proceedings were summary. Their lands were gradually sold for arrears of taxes, and passed into the hands of absentee landlords ; in a few years almost all the zemindars disappeared. No improvement took place among the ryots, who were perhaps more oppressed by the middle-men immediately above them than they had been by the zemindars.

The other four banks have a capital of a crore of rupees, a million sterling, distributed also in loans, and we may, therefore consider ourselves within the mark in assuming the number in bondage to them as exceeding, rather than falling short of, 3,000. The armies at the three presidencies, Queen's and Company's, comprize about 8,000 officers ; and we have thus nearly one half the number involved in debt, which bears interest, varying,—insurance included—from 12 to 14 per cent. But if we take into our calculation the sums advanced to Regiments, of whom not fewer than five and thirty applied for and obtained loans from the Agra bank in a single twelvemonth, to the extent of four lakhs of rupees, it must be evident that more than one half the members of the military service in India are under direct pecuniary obligation to these banks. The sum due by officers to the Agra bank amounts to 30 lakhs of rupees ; and we may add 10 lakhs more for regimental debts, making the sum of 40 lakhs to one of these institutions. Of the crore of rupees distributed in loans by the other banks, we may reasonably assign 60 lakhs to the army ; which will give us One Million Sterling of debt under which the officers of the army of India are now groaning."

The charges of Scinde have exceeded its income by a quarter to half a million a year. The Punjab provinces return from this time from half to three-quarters of a million. From 1845 to 1846 a quarter of a million annually on an average has been spent in public works,—about 1 per cent of our income ; it has yielded from 12 to 15 per cent. in direct return. A return published in the Calcutta Review for September shows that this is precisely the sum annually thrown away on useless boards : three and a half millions are expended yearly on civil charges, or at the rate of £1,450 per man, while £3,300,000 is divided amongst 8,000 officers, or at an average of £414 each, equally competent to perform civil service work.

The most fortunate of the sheriffs who obtained the appointment a few years after his arrival in India held the office four times, and received close on £4,000. Since A. D. 1,800 about £100,000 have thus been gifted away. The office is a pure sinecure, and was never professed to be given on any considerations of qualification, merit, or position. It was simply a present of so much to the friends of the Governor.—Since 1,800 there have been 56 sheriffs, of whom there were merchants, 14; barristers, 12; editors, 5; retired officers, 8; clerk to chief justice, 1; civil servants, 2; uncovenanted magistrates and assistant in government employ, 12; unknown, 1; naval officers, 1. According to the tables published, the following are the sheriffs of the past ten years, with their emoluments, 1851 excluding the Rs. 1,200 a year allowed the deputy, which must be struck off to show the net income:—

	Rupees.
3 years—L. C. C. Rivett, Esq., magistrate....	41,310

3 years—S. S. Dickinson, Esq., barrister....	32,297

2 years—J. Holand, Esq., barrister....	21,778

In ten years—Total Rupees... 1,14,284

From this it will be seen that the most fortunate amongst the sheriffs since 1840 is Mr. Rivett, who was elected to the office within a few months of his arrival in Bombay,—before he had taken up any particular profession.

July 29. The Madras Spectator publishes an extract of the letter of remonstrance said to have been written by the governor-general to the nizam of Hyderabad, fixing a definite date for the payment of his debt. Amongst the extracts from the papers published by the authority of the government of the North-West Provinces is an account by major Harris, of the discovery of an organized army of thieves and robbers, who meet at a fixed season from head quarters in the N. He was tried at Lahore after his surrender in January 1849, and condemned to transportation to Singapore,—afterwards commuted to perpetual imprisonment in India for having instigated the murder of Mr. Vans Agnew and Mr. Anderson, at Mooltan. He was one of the bravest and most obstinate of the enemies who ever withstood our arms in India; his life might have been illustrious but for the treachery through which Agnew and Anderson were murdered.

August 12. Seventeen moplabs, of an eminently fanatical mahomedan tribe of about 50,000 residing in Malabar, run a muck, kill the head man of the nearest village, and commit other outrages, take possession of a place near Kolatoor, forty miles from Calicut, and bid defiance to all comers. Part of a detachment of the 39th regiment Madras N. L. first

- 1851 sent against them threw away their arms and fled before them. A reinforcement of H. M.'s 94th foot having taken the field, the whole of the mopliah fanatics were slain. This is the second outbreak of the same tribe within these two years which has taken place.

Low-caste pupils expelled from the Madras university.

Dalzell, of the custom house, to act as coroner.

He was deeply and sincerely regretted by the service to which he belonged, and by all who knew him.
- August 28. The Friend of India publishes an abstract from the extract of that published record of the report on the Nuddea rivers, from which it appears that £370,000 of net profit have been realized since 1824 on the river tolls and that this, which rightly belonged to a purely local fund, established for specific improvements, has been appropriated by the public treasury. When the court of directors stated to parliament that in the course of the past ten years £500,000 or £25,000 annually from revenue of close on £10,000,000 a year—had been expended on private works, they forgot to mention that three fourths of this sum (£370,000) arose from a direct local source, and was not taken from the public purse at all.
- September 5. Government, as the only alternative open to them, propose

- 1851 covering Bombay Green, the only open breathing space within the fort, with the building of the new supreme court. Having no other site at their disposal so long as the garrison regulations prohibiting buildings within 800 yards of the batteries remain in force : the arrangement was petitioned against by the inhabitants—before the petition could be replied to it was agreed that the court should continue to occupy the premises opposite the dockyard, at a rent of Rs. 1,400 per mensem.
- September 10. The report of the Indian post office commission is published : it recommends that the present newspaper postages from 1½d. to 6d. each should be continued, and that those on papers imported overland, which are at present allowed to carry double Indian weights, should be charged like Indian papers. At this rate the Times and other large sized papers will be charged from 1s. to 2s. 6d. at out-stations : the measure will virtually exclude English journals from India !
- September 15. Mr. Frederick Hutchinson, deputy collector of land revenue at Bombay, is appointed manager of the Commercial bank, in the room of Mr. J. C. Stewart, resigned.—The ship Lascar lost off Saugor Bank, in the Bay of Bengal, at the entrance of the Hooghly.
- September 24. Instructions are received from Leadenhall street, that two magnificent steamers of 650 horse power, and 1,800 tons each, are to be built for the Indian navy—one at Bombay and the other at Home. They will cost about £120,000 each, and afford a large amount of patronage. It was expected that the Indian navy which costs the country £338,441 annually beyond receipts would have been abolished, it being superfluous for a war or transport service, and not required for survey duty—the P. and O. Company having offered to perform the packet service cheaper by about £70,000 a year.
- September 22. The marriage act for India passed at Home—interpolations of legislative council of India expunged. Major Harris gives an account of the Baragoones, a race of gang robbers who traverse India.
- September 24. Thirteen low-caste sepoys expelled from the Bengal army. The lieutenant governor of the N. W. Provinces re-issues on the 10th instant the order forbidding civil and military servants of the government from taking any share in the management of joint stock companies : this was first issued on the 15th February 1837 reiterated 5th April, and re-published in India 24th July 1839.
- September 25. A violent storm occurred at Bombay during which a great fire-ball was seen to rush with a loud sound through the air. It plunged into the sea somewhere to the south of the light-house. It was distinctly heard, and the sound and appearance seemed the same for the space of three miles in a direction at right angles to its path. Two inches of rain fell in little more than an hour.

Six miles of railway, consisting of large wooden joists, with a flat bar of iron on the upper edge, constructed at the gun-carriage manufactory at Bombay, for service in the Punjab, with flanged wheels, axles, and other iron work for the carriages. It is meant for the transport of the materials of some of the old Sikh forts to a place when they may be made serviceable.
- September 27. A portion of territory on the northern frontier of the Punjab,—a sort of No-Man's-Land,—desired to be appropriated by the Affghans, has been, by desire of the inhabitants, added to our dominions. An association is established at Calcutta called. "The Good-of-the-Country-Society," for the purpose of raising funds to secure the full and due representation of native grievances at the coming charter discussions :—these generally consist in natives supposing themselves unfairly

- 1851 excluded from a fitting share of government employment, and not being left sufficiently free to oppress each other.
- September 28. Lieutenant General Sir Richard Armstrong, the new commander-in-chief of Madras, arrived.
- October 5. Report of Colonel Outram, resident at Baroda, in reference to his disclosures of misconduct amongst the native subordinates in August, that residency, sent into government, and the Baroda discussions resumed. In 1845, Beechur Summuldass, head partner of the house of Hurree Bugtee, one of the richest banking houses in Goozerat, died, leaving behind him nearly two millions sterling worth of property, under the charge of his two widows for the behoof of their offspring : one had borne him a son, the other was enceinte at the date of his death, and in due time, 25th December, gave birth to a son, who when a year old was stolen from her and sent to the wilderness, where he DIED (?) and she was closely confined in her own house by her native business manager, Baba Nafday, with whose intromissions she had interfered. She was afterwards released and permitted to live with her parents, but under surveillance. She was declared to have been an adulteress in her husband's time, and never to have been confined at all,—the child she called her own being spurious. These allegations being inquired into by the guicowar, her guilt was said to have been proved, and thereafter she lived a pauper. Her husband's house had enjoyed a formal bond of protection from the British government, and she had a right to claim from us that justice should be done. Time after time she petitioned, but in vain : the subordinates about the guicowar's court and British residency were corrupted by money from her own treasuries :—Colonel Outram in 1850 at length took up the matter : half of her accusers were convicted out of their own mouths—the rest on the most unexceptionable evidence ; she was fully and honorably acquitted of every charge brought against her, and restored in point of character and rights to the position she enjoyed on the death of her son. Government meanwhile determined to see to the return of her property, and she was ordered to be allowed subsistence money—£120 a year !—while further investigations with which she had no concern were in progress. The order was disregarded. In this state she was eighteen months after her innocence had been proved,—the delay involving government in charges of injustice and corruption, which, however groundless save as to the matter of delay, are acquiring universal belief amongst the natives. The imputations against the highest officers of the state that have for some months past been current are amongst the most injurious from which our character ever suffered—we believe them as groundless as injurious.
- October 17. The Mahomedan riots begin. A biographical notice of Mahomed, prefaced by a very ill executed lithographic portrait of the Arabian prophet, in which, by the blunder of the lithographer and the badness of the printing, he is represented as having only one eye and an otherwise very sinister countenance, was published in an illustrated Goozerattee newspaper edited by a Parsee named Cursetjee Byramjee. The portrait was posted upon the door of a mosque by some unknown and evil disposed person, the Mahomedans took fire at the supposed insult : some thousands of them assembled in the principal mosque of the city, and when service was over rushed out to attack the Parsees, and a great tumult ensued. The disturbances continued for more than a month.

- 1851 . of the former and niece of the latter. They are brought to Calcutta and tried for murder, but the jury find them guilty of aggravated manslaughter. They are sentenced by Mr Justice Colville on the 13th December to transportation for life to Van Diemen's Land,—a sentence which gave general satisfaction throughout India, as their conduct to the unfortunate child was proved at the trial to have been most barbarous and cruel —A government notification published concerning the opening of a monthly steam communication between Kurrachee and Mooltan.
- October 18. Death of Mr. E. F. Danvers, junior magistrate of police, at Alexandria, on the 18th October. Mr. Danvers came to Bombay as private secretary to Sir James Carnac in 1839, and was shortly afterwards appointed junior magistrate of police on the retirement of Mr. H. Willis. He was suspended from his duties in August last, in consequence of surmises having arisen that he had misinformed government on the state of his liabilities to his native creditors. The matter was referred to the consideration of the court of directors, and Mr. Danvers being at liberty to reside where he thought fit during his suspension, proceeded to Europe by the steamer Moozuffer on the 17th September, to offer explanations to the court, should such be required. He was in perfect health when he left, but was attacked with fever betwixt Aden and Suez : this increasing upon him, he, on the recommendation of his friends, went to the hospital for Europeans at Alexandria, where he was attended with the utmost care by the sisters of charity, until death terminated his sufferings.

The condition of the Bombay gaol and house of correction has been the subject of unceasing complaint to every grand jury since the supreme court was established at Bombay, a quarter of a century ago : it is disgraceful to any civilized country,—places purporting to be establishments for punishment being suited only for corruption and recreation. Gaol inspectors for all the three presidencies were recommended by the Calcutta committee (of which Sir George Anderson was a member) in 1837 ; no notice appears to have ever been taken of their recommendation.
- The hurricane which visited Calcutta and its neighbourhood on the 22nd and 23rd October, did great damage to the shipping off Diamond Harbour and below Saugor. The force was at first employed in the explosion of Rehim Dad Khan's fort of Mitchnie, and the villages surrounding. Heaps of corn that lay in store in the houses of these Momunds were fired, and their goods and chattels thrown into the river. The Momunds themselves fired at our troops from a distance, but their shot did us no mischief.

The unfortunate victims of treachery, Mr. Carne, and his assistant Mr. Tapp, had gone beyond our boundaries in the excess of their zeal for the public service ; they were employed in the prevention of salt smuggling, and in spite of repeated warnings, persisted in going where they would seem to have had no right to trespass. As soon as the circumstance was made known to the Khan he waited upon major Abbott, our political agent in the Hazareh country and expressed his regret at what had occurred, and offered to apprehend the murderers. The offer was accepted, on the understanding that they should be given up in three days : the time had expired and they were still at large, although a number of persons had been given up to major Abbott, none of whom it has been ascertained had any thing whatever to do in the sad affair. The Khan, fearful that we would hold him personally responsible, summoned the wild tribes on the left bank of the Indus to his assistance.

—A table of the comparative revenue and charges of the Bengal government for the years from 1848-49 to 1850-51 has been published in the official gazette. From this we observe that the total receipts during 50-51 were less than those of the year previous by Rs. 74,83,869, of which deficit upwards of sixty-eight lakhs are observable in the item of opium, and nearly twenty-five lakhs in salt. In customs' receipts, an increase is noted of nearly sixteen lakhs of rupees; and the land revenue, abkarree, sayer, &c., columns, show an increase in the past year over 1849-50. The post-office expenditure exceeded its receipts in 1848-49 by Rs. 27,921, in '49-50 by Rs. 57,610, and in '50-51 by Rs. 13,170,—but as we have a gradually increasing revenue, it is likely a surplus over expenditure will shortly be obtained. The mint seems to have become more expensive and to have performed less work during the past than the two previous years. The receipts from the marine department fall short of the disbursements by nearly twelve lakhs of rupees a year. The expenditure in the general, judicial, customs, opium, and several other departments, seems to have increased. The total receipts during the three years reported on were respectively Rupees 9,81,76,370—Rs. 10,72,65,478—and Rs. 9,97,81,609; the disbursements Rupees 3,72,43,630—Rs. 3,58,48,001 and Rs. 3,67,70,876. On an average of the three years the revenue has been Rupees 10,17,41,819, (ten millions sterling,) and the expenditure Rs. 3,66,20,835,—or little over a third; leaving the other two-thirds to pay the army, the home establishments, pensions, &c., and East India proprietor's dividends.

Some jewels and property belonging to the woman were missing ; the gentleman's butler was suspected, and was accordingly sent up with an escort either to Jubbulpore or Hoshungabad ; but whilst en route he contrived to escape. He has not since been heard of.

Mr. William Erskine, formerly master in equity, Bombay, dies at Edinburgh, aged 80 : he came to India with Sir J. Mackintosh in 1805, and afterwards married his daughter. He was a distinguished orientalist, and was one of the founders of the Bombay Literary Society, to whose transactions he largely contributed. His account of Elephanta, and papers on Buddhism, written forty years ago, are amongst the best extant. His son Claud, also an accomplished scholar, is Persian secretary to government.

June 4. He had already received about £ 70,000, and this further payment, found not to be due, would have fallen of course, on the ryots of India.

1852 ready for sea at the latter end of this year. Her length is 870 feet, and her engines will be 700-horse power. She is larger than the Great Britain screw-steamer, besides which the engines of the Great Britain are only 500-horse power. The Himalaya is destined to run between Southampton and Alexandria, and she will be commanded by Captain Brooks, the oldest officer in the company's service. The company's steamer Indus, which runs between Southampton and Alexandria, is laid up—lengthening 37 feet, and having new and more powerful engines put into her. Some idea may be formed of the increase of speed of transit on the overland India route during the last few years by the fact that the heavy portion of the India mail is not due at Southampton before the 28th of the month, yet it lately arrived on the 7th, and is never hardly later than the 20th. The Peninsular and Oriental Company are now building five new vessels, and altogether, when their fleet is complete, it will amount to nearly forty steamers. This company's screw-steamer Formosa, destined to convey the mails between Singapore and Sydney, arrived at Southampton on Sunday last, after a rapid voyage from the Clyde, and starts for Australia on the 7th August next. The same company's screw-steamer Madras, bound for the Bosphorus, has just made the voyage from Southampton to Malta in nine days, which shows to what extraordinary speed screw-steamers are attaining.

Flotilla attacked on the 7th by a strong force of the enemy at Konongee. Silenced enemy's fire in an hour, and the steamers proceeded. On the 10th fell in

- 1852 with the rear of General Bandola's army, and after an exchange of shots the enemy fled in great confusion, leaving the General's state barge, standard, 2 gold umbrellas, several large war canoes, and 20 prisoners in our possession. From this it appears that since March last 82 miles of telegraph have been in use: Calcutta to Diamond Harbour, 30 miles south ; Bushlopore to Moyapore, east to west, meeting the previous line half way, 11 miles ; Kookroohattee to Kedgerree, crossing the Hulda river, 4,200 feet broad, 25 miles ; Diamond Harbour to Kholakhali, 3½ miles ; Tarapooka extension line on Kedgerree side, 10 miles ; Hooghly river, 1½ mile. The total cost amounting to Rs. 32,000. The returns obtained on this, at Rs. 200 a month, already exceed 600, or twenty per cent. on the outlay.—(Friend of India July 22, 1852.) The court of directors and board of control are said to have sanctioned lines betwixt Bombay, Calcutta, Lahore and Peshawur. The Friend of India (July 22) shows that for a quarter of a million sterling 3,800 miles of telegraph, connecting all the principal towns in India, could be constructed, and that the payments of the public for the transmission of intelligence would meet all charges.
- July 16. A destructive fire ravages the Black Town, Madras.
- July 21. The governor-general leaves Calcutta for Rangoon in the Feroze steamer ; Sir F. Currie, second member of council, proclaimed president, and governor of Bengal during his absence.
- July 22. Captain Wallace, 18th N. I., since 1840 resident in the Mahee Kanta, appointed under secretary in the judicial department, and superintendent of police in the mofussil.
- July 25. After three weeks of almost total cessation of rain, during which the most serious apprehensions of famine were entertained above 8 inches fell betwixt 1 and 7 o'clock on Sunday the 25th, and 10·5 inches by noon, one of the heaviest falls known in Bombay. On the 26th July 1851, 8·2 inches fell ; betwixt 25th and 26th July 1849, betwixt 9 and 10 inches fell : all our heaviest falls appear to occur in the last fortnight of July.
- August 3. The governor-general returns to Calcutta from Rangoon.
- August 4. Captain Elliott, Madras engineers, dies at Masulipatam. From 1841 to 1845 he was in charge of the meteorological and magnetical observatory at Singapore, when this establishment, like most others in India, was broken up, and he was sent for some years on a magnetical survey in the Eastern seas.

- August 8 to 12. Heavy rain at Kurrachee : from the 8th to the 2,1456 inches fell ; nearly 3 inches fell on the 9th.
- August 24. The governor-general and governor of Madras have published the order of brigading of the army of Ava, Arracan, and the Tenasserim Provinces. H. M. 18th and the 40th and 67th B. N. I. are under brigadier Reigolds ; H. M. 80th, the 10th N. I., and the 4th 1853 Seikh locals, under brigadier Dickinson; the 1st Bengal Europeans, the 37th N. I. and the regiment of Loodhiana, under brigadier Huish. Sir John Cheape is to command the Bengal division. Brigadier Foord, Madras army, the artillery. The Madras division is commanded by brigadier general Steele. The infantry brigades are—H. M. 51st L. I., the 9th and 35th N. I., under brigadier Elliot; the 1st Fusiliers, the 5th and 19th N. I., under brigadier Malcolm McNeill. There will thus be under command of general Godwin by the middle of September a force of five regiments of Europeans, or close on 5,000 men, and ten of native infantry, mustering probably 10,000, with sappers and artillery say 1,000, or in all 16,000 men,—with a highly effective marine force disposable for fighting purposes of no fewer than 3,000,—or probably 30,000 in all. The magnificent steam flotilla comes in the place of a somewhat short supply of artillery—one troop of horse and three companies of foot: the nature of the country precluded the use of cavalry. With the Irrawaddy in flood, 4,000 or 5,000 of these can be moved by steam from fifteen to eighty miles a day with all their baggage and supplies, with a magnificent reserve of 12,000 occupying every post of strength or importance in the rear. The governor-general has directed a permanent steam flotilla to be got ready for the Irrawaddy, leaving no doubt as to the fact of purposed annexation: the area to be annexed may be still subject of consideration.

August 31. The boats of the steam-frigate Zenobia proceeded about 25 miles above Martaban to reconnoitre, and are fired on by the enemy from a stockade 300 yards in length, 10 feet high, and 3 feet thick. The men land, capture and burn the stockade, and destroy an immense quantity of ammunition stored behind it.

September 2. A meeting of the shareholders of the Bombay Bank held, for the purpose of obtaining some alterations of importance in their charter. Before the bank was allowed to commence business in 1840, the entire capital of half a million and upwards (Rs. 52,25,000) required to be paid up;—nearly the whole of this was invested in government securities, the restrictions of the charter depriving them of more profitable business. The bank has occasionally held £400,000 of government stock—at present they hold above £320,000. Government now urge them to reduce the amount of this to £260,000, or half their capital; but the bank is at a loss in this case how to dispose of the funds thrown into their hands. Their average rate of profits, in excess of government interest, has been about three per cent;—their average circulation of notes about £250,000—their maximum £650,000, though the charter authorizes them to issue two millions. The bank, under these circumstances, desires to have the privilege of issue curtailed to a million, and to be permitted to issue another in the shape of bills of exchange payable in any quarter of the world. Should this be declined, the directors recommend that the capital be reduced by one half,—shares of £100 being henceforth worth £50,—the difference to be paid back to the shareholders.

—A severe gale in lower Bengal—the tug steamer Lion, with most of her crew, lost at the mouth of the Ganges. H. M. steamer Rattler very narrowly escaped destruction.

September 8. The re-cutting of the Koh-i-noor finished the expectations of the Jewish artist who undertook this responsible task have been fully realised, and the misgivings of the scientific gentlemen, who questioned the final success, refuted. It is now unsurpassed by any diamond above ground in shape, lustre, and beauty. Her Majesty inspected the two smaller diamonds before her departure for Balmoral, and expressed her 1852 high satisfaction with the brilliancy and beauty given them by the new process. The large gem having left the hands of the artisans employed for the purpose, they have each received from the hands of their employer, Mr. Garrard, a piece of silver plate.

September 9. The Friend of India publishes an analyses of the accounts of the East India Company for 1849-50, with an estimate for 50,51. In the former year there was a balance in favour of 35 lacs : in the latter a balance against of 68 lacs. Bombay and Scinde together showed a deficit of 51,85,000, the Punjaub again of 40,00,00, the total estimated balance in favour of India, of 20,13,300 is transformed into a deficit of 68; by accounts from home, of 2,71,71,008. Mr Melville stated before the Lords' committee that dividing the time from 1834 to 1851 into periods of four years, there was an average surplus from 1834 to 1838 of £88,894,—1838, 1841, a deficit of £12,56,754 ; 1846-49, £10,00,586 an estimated deficit for 51 of £678,381. Since 1838 30 millions had been spent on war, 20 of which had been added to our debt.

—The following corrected return of Missionaryism in India has just been published at Calcutta.—“At the commencement of the year 1852, there were labouring throughout India and Ceylon—the agents of 22 Missionary Societies. These include 443 Missionaries ; of whom 48 are ordained natives ; together with 698 native Catechists. These agents reside at 313 Missionary stations. There have been founded 331 native Churches, containing 18,410 communicants : in a community of 112,191 native Christians. Missionaries maintain 1,347 Vernacular Day-schools, containing 47,504 boys : together with 93 boarding schools, containing 2,414 Christian boys. They also superintend 126 superior English Day-schools, and instruct therein 14,562 boys and young men. Female Education embraces 347 Dayschools for girls, containing 1159 scholars : but hopes more from its 102 girls' boarding schools containing 2,779 Christian girls. For the good of Europeans 71 services are maintained. “The entire Bible has been translated into ten languages, the New Testament into five others, and separate gospels into four others. Besides numerous works for Christians, 30, 48, and even 70 Tracts have been prepared in these different languages suitable for Hindus and Musalmans. Missionaries maintain in India twenty-five printing establishments. This vast missionary agency costs £178,000 annually : of which one sixth, or £33,500, is contributed by European Christians resident in the country. By far the greater part of this agency, it is stated, has been brought into operation during the last twenty years. Bengal Proper, as we learn from another summary, has 89 missionary stations, 103 missionaries, 130 native catechists, and 14,775 native Protestant Christians, of whom 3,500 are communicants. It has 140 vernacular schools containing 6,470 boys, 22 boarding schools with 790 boys, and 22 English schools giving tuition to 6,005 boys. It has also 24 day schools for girls, containing 659 pupils, and 29 boarding schools with 830 girls. Madras is far in advance of Bengal, even when we include the North West Provinces with the latter. There they have 121 missionary stations, 179 missionaries, 405 catechists, and 76,591 native Christians. In the educational branch they are just as far ahead of us, having 849 vernacular schools with 24,445 boys and other seminaries in proportion.—See July 1st, p. 118, and Nov. 3, p.

Upwards of 20,000 houses are said to have been destroyed, 300 of the inhabitants perished and 400 others were seriously hurt. The Emperor, in noticing the event, desired a remission of the land tax, and forwarded a supply of money and grain to the distressed. —Straits Times.

—Base line of verification for the grand Trigonometrical survey begun to be laid down near Kurrachee. The survey commenced in 1804, and up to 1850, had extended over an area of 167,827 square miles, at a cost of £312,389, or Rupees 725 per mile. Our Empire comprises 800,758 miles. Native states in Hindoostan 508,442, total area of survey when completed 1,309,200 square miles, with a boundary line of 11,260. Colonel Waugh, Blue Book 1850, Calcutta Review, 1851.

September 28. The Auckland steamer, with the mails of the 15th, reached Aden four hours too late for the Huddington, and required to proceed to Suez in consequence, with nearly a certainty of being too late for the Alexandria steamer, and she proved too late accordingly, the mail remaining a fortnight in Egypt. The P. & O. C's steamer Achilles, which left a day after the Auckland, arrived three days before her, and the Auckland herself must have been within 25 or 30 miles of Aden, quite within sight of the signal station at Shum Shum, 1,700 feet above the level of the sea, before the Huddington left—only government could not afford the expense of keeping a proper signal man at the station. The charges of the Auckland to Suez would have maintained the signal station efficient for above thirty years.

—There is at present in course of construction on Wandsworth-common a singular-looking structure consisting of a plain tower with a long tube slung by its side, surrounded by a wooden boarding to keep off intruders. This large tube encloses a new monster telescope on the achromatic principle in process of construction, under the superintendence of Mr. W. Gravatt, F. R. S., for the Rev. Mr. Graig, vicar of Leamington. The site, consisting of two acres, has been liberally presented by Earl Spencer in perpetuity, or so long as the telescope shall be maintained. The central tower, consisting of brick, is 64 feet in height, 15 feet in diameter, and weighs 220 tons. The focal distance will vary from 76 to 85 feet. The tube at its greatest circumference measures 13 feet, and this part is about 24 feet from the object-glass. Besides this, there is a second of plate-glass of the same dimensions. The manner in which these object-glasses are fitted into the tube is a marvel of artistic invention. By means of 12 screws, numbered according to the hours of the day, they can be set in an instant to any angle the observer may require, by his merely calling out the number of the screw to be touched. The object-glasses also move round in grooves to wherever it may be considered that

- 1852 a more distinct view can be gained. The tube rests upon a light wooden framework, with iron wheels attached, and is fitted to a circular iron railway at a distance of 52 feet from the centre of the tower. The chain by which it is lowered is capable of sustaining a weight of 13 tons, though the weight of the tube is only three. With respect to the magnifying power of this novel instrument, it is only necessary to state that, though the focus is not so perfect as it will be shortly, it has already separated the nebula in the same way as Lord Rosse's. It has also separated some of the double stars in the Great Bear, and shown distinctly a clear distance of 50 or 60 minutes between them, with several other stars occupying the intervening space. Ordinary readers will better understand the extraordinary magnifying power of the telescope when we inform them that by it a quarter-inch letter can be read at the distance of half a mile.
- Dr. Montefiore, Superintending Surgeon, Goozerat, died at Ahmedabad, just as he was about to proceed to Bombay in succession to Dr. Gibb.
 - At the end of the year 1836, the printed books in the Library of the British Museum consisted of 230,000 volumes. In July 1851, it consisted of 465,000; and at the end of that year it amounted to 470,000 volumes. During the last fifteen years the library has therefore increased at the rate of 16,000 volumes a year on the average. The superficial extent of the shelves of the whole library, exclusive of that set apart for newspapers, amounts to 55,400 superficial feet. By the great economy of space, it appears that out of these 55,400 feet, there are now 50,500 actually occupied. Judging from the increase of the last fifteen years, there is now only room for the books that will accumulate for the next year and half. By the calculations of Mr. Panizzi, 480,000 volumes will be added to the library within the next 30 years.—Atlas.

 - Order of the Court of Directors sanctioning the Madras Railway received. The line of rail to be determined by the Governor General. The system of lines which Major Pears, c. b. the Railway Commissioner, recommends to be constructed without further delay, has received the sanction of Government. It consists of a trunk line running from Madras to Bangalore, with a branch to Vellore and Vaniambady. The branch strikes off at Menil, 48 miles from Madras, and passes within four miles of Arcot and Wallajahnugger. The gradients throughout the whole distance, 111 miles, are very favourable, being less than 1 in 300, and the towns which the iron road will drain of traffic in goods and passengers are rich and highly populous.

The lines now proposed to be constructed will be divided into five parts. They consist of

A trunk line to Menil.	-	-	-	-	48	miles.
A branch to Vellore.	-	-	-	-	70	"
The trunk line continued to the foot of the Ghauts.	-	-	-	-	53	"
The Ghaut near Palmanair.	-	-	-	-	4	"
From top of the Ghaut to Bangalore.	-	-	-	-	84	"

259 miles.

Major Pears believes that the whole may be constructed at a cost of little more than a million sterling. The interest at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent will amount to Rs. 468,000 and taking the working expenses at 50 per cent, an annual mileage of 57,600 tons on the whole extent of way, would be amply sufficient to supply the guaranteed dividend. The scheme has received the sanction of the Madras Government, and only waits the approval of the Governor General.

—Launch of the Bengal.—The vessel is 330 feet in length and 30 feet in beam, so as to be one-eighth of a mile in circuit; she is 2,300 tons in burden and 470 horse power. The largest of the Bombay steamers now in the stocks is 1,800 tons and 600 horse power, and this was reckoned something quite tremendous. The P. and O. S. N. Company have a fleet of forty steamers, 52,000 tons and 16,000 horse power, they run annually a distance amongst them of a million of miles. The Oriental Company expend a million sterling annually on current disbursements and new ships, and their property is valued at two millions sterling. They employ sailing ships in the transport of coals navigated by three thousand seamen, and of an aggregate burden of sixty thousand tons. A hundred thousand persons in all are employed by the Company, not fewer than three hundred thousand are directly depending on them for their bread, including both their servants and their families. The following twelve first-class steamers with an aggregate tonnage of 18,474 and an aggregate power of 18,790 horses, added to a fleet of forty-one steamers already in existence, are now being constructed, and will be at sea in 1853; bringing the total tonnage up from 52,000 to 70,000 tons, and the total horse power from 16,000 to 12,000. Taking the date of departure from each port as our basis, the following is the relative to the first passage of the steamers:—

—The Indiana is a very fine-looking vessel, with clean sharp bows, round sides, and long "run," resembling a gigantic yacht. Her length between perpendiculars is 240 feet 6 inches, breadth for tonnage nearly 40 feet, depth of hold 25 feet, burden just 1,800 tons.

The regular mail arrived on the 28th, or in twenty-six days. Although we have had repeated arrivals of greater celerity than this from home, this forms the fastest we recollect of in England from India. November 1. A gunpowder magazine blown up by accident at Rangoon. Nov. 3. A petition sent home by the natives of Bombay in favor of various alterations in the India Bill, subscribed by about 3000, besides 200 from Tannah and 200 from Poona.

- Bangkok, a force of upwards of six thousand men left for the frontiers of Burmah, where they will operate as circumstances may seem to render expedient. The Siamese very anxious to recover some part of those extensive territories of which they were formerly dispossessed by the Burmese, the present a favourable occasion for making the attempt, as their opponents, distracted by the presence of a British force in the heart of their possessions, will not be able to give that attention to the Siamese movements which they otherwise would.

As the vessels crossed over and when at a short distance from the bank, a fire was opened from the enemy's stockade. Taking the hint the Sesostris, which had an eligible position for the purpose, commenced "shelling out" in a most vindictive spirit. The Bentinck in the meantime went near in to the shore, and under cover of a fire which she opened, began to land the troops. The firing from the steamers had pretty nearly silenced the battery at the stockade, and no sooner the enemy observed our men landing than he made preparations for bolting. This meditated run-away manoeuvre was seen, whereupon the troops by a smart advance so managed it as to hem in the luckless defenders of the stockade with fixed bayonets and brought the fellows to bay. Forty of them were made prisoners, among whom was a Burmese chief.

PREFACE TO THE INDEX.

To facilitate reference to that part of the chronology which relates to events more than ten years back, the following Index has been prepared; it has been considered sufficient to indicate the event by a single word, or a couple of words, and the place where it is to be found by the year of its occurrence, and this it is hoped will save a considerable amount of trouble and consultation. Had we proceeded much beyond this, so as to have increased the conveniency of the Index, we should have been compelled in a considerable measure to reproduce in alphabetical order what had just before been exhibited chronologically, thereby drawing on the very limited space at command much more largely than was deemed warrantable. The events that have occurred during the past ten years have been given with so much minuteness and detail, and are supposed to be entirely within the recollection of so many, that it has not been considered expedient to Index this part of our chronology at all.

COINS, WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The current coin of Bombay is the rupee—a silver coin somewhat smaller than a half crown, its weight being 180 grains troy, or one tola, and the intrinsic value in English money after deducting all charges is 1s. 10½d.; in French it is equal to 2 francs, 34 cents 333. On the one side it bears the head of Her Majesty, with the words Victoria, Queen, and on the reverse, the denomination in English and Persian in the centre; incircled by a wreath, and round the margin the words, East India Company, the standard quality is eleven-twelfth's silver, and one-twelfth alloy. The other silver coins issued are—half rupee—quarter, and two anna pieces = to half a quarter.

The copper coins—are double pice, pice, and third pice, or 1 pie, and value thus:— 12 pie—or 4 pice or 2 double pice = 1 anna.
 16 annas or 8 two anna pieces 4 quarters or 2 halves = 1 rupee.
 15 rupees = 1 mohur.

The mohur is the only gold coin of government currency, and has almost entirely gone out of use since the issue of small Bank notes—its weight is 180 grains, and valued at rupees 15.

Accounts are kept by the native merchants and some Europeans in rupees, quarters and reas, but the Banks do not recognize such currency.

100 reas = 1 quarter or 4 annas.
 = 4 quarters = 1 rupee.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

[Extracts from the Appendix to the Itinerary of Western India.

By Capt. JOHN CLUNES.]

Throughout India, and particularly the Deccan, a very considerable diversity prevails, not merely in every district, but in every village, in measures, whether of weight, length, or capacity; nor are the subdivisions to be found in a determinate proportion of each other. To whatever this may be owing, whether to the want of a common or universal standard in former times, the decay or abrasion of the measures and weights, the knavery of the owners of them, or to the apathy or connivance of the native district authorities, is probably immaterial, but the present ill-defined system must be felt by all classes of buyers as a hardship, and they doubtless would be grateful for any beneficial amendment.

There are three kinds of weights in use in India; the first are for weighing drugs, gold, silver, &c.—the second for all bulky articles,—and the third, for pearls and precious stones.

Those of the first class seem to be founded on the weight of a tola throughout India, and the tolas under most governments seem to conform with the rupee, or principal current coin of accounts; in towns, the weights generally are of iron or lead, sometimes in a determinate form, but oftener as a shapeless mass. In many villages, however, the shopkeepers have only ballest stones as weights, which are met with in beds of rivers. Indeed, when great weights are required, they are generally made of stones, and under any circumstances, considerable advantage would be derived by the people were the use of stones as weights prohibited under severe enactments. The table of weights annexed, will shew the great variety of the first class, (and corresponding English weights) which exists throughout western and central India. Nor are the weights at the presidency less multifarious than they are in the interior. In the following table of the various weights by which goods are sold in Bombay, it will strike one as a singular incongruity, that varying as those weights do, with almost every variety of goods, and that serving as such they must clog commerce,—this system should be submitted to when the fact is known, that actually every article is weighed by one weight, viz. the English Avoirdupois, afterwards reduced by calculation, into the great variety of local weights, which are merely nominal.

The small weight, commonly called GOLDSMITHS' WEIGHT, is either founded on the goonj or ruttee, or the mustard seed; the goonj or ruttee is the small red seed, whether of the white or red species, of the abros precatorious; these seeds are very uniform in size, and the plant producing them, grows wild all over India. Two seeds, otherwise goonj, make one waal, a weight represented by a seed of the cheelur. This weight is further subdivided as follows:—

8 mustard seeds = 1 barley corn.

2 barley corns = 1 goonj.

Under different governments of India, the TOLA is composed of different proportions of the goonj, or of the massa, the Bengal tola being of 100 goonj, or 12½ massa; the Malwa tola of 96 goonj, or 12 massa, the Bombay tola, of 92 goonj, or 11½ massa, several districts in the Southern concan, of 92 goonj, or 11½ massa; 90 goonj, or 11½ massa; and 96 goonj, or 12 massa. The pice of Kota in Malwa is equal in weight to 18 massa, so that from these we may hope to obtain something approaching to the common weight of the massa or goonj; the fundamental measures of weight.

The weight of the Bengal massa, in troy grains, is 15·353—being 191·916 troy grains, the weight of the Calcutta sicca rupee, divided by 125, gives the number of massa in one tola. The weight in troy grains of the tola in Malwa is 190 grains; which being divided by 12, (the number of massa in one tola) gives 15·8333 troy grains for the weight of the massa.

In ascertaining (says major Sykes) the weight troy of a goonj, with a hydrostatic balance turning with the 10th of a grain the results were as follows: 32 seeds or goonj, weighed 60·5 grains troy—16 seeds or goonj, weighed 30·5 grains—8 weighed 15·1, and 56 seeds weighed 105·2 grains; which would give an average weight of 1·914 grains troy for each seed. 96 of these would make a tola equal to 183·7536 grains troy. But as the seer weight of 80 rupees, 13000 grains troy, is to consist of 72 tolas, the tola should weigh 191·666 grains, instead of 183·7536; affording sufficient evidence that the tola in use, like every other weight, is below the proper standard.

MEASURE OF CAPACITY.

Whether measures of capacity in India are derived from those of length, agreeably to the notions of many able theorists in Europe, and in which they are borne out by very ancient writings among the Hindoos, or whether they were invented originally merely to save trouble in weighing grains and liquids, is a subject of enquiry for the philosopher. I am much inclined to the latter opinion, as far as regards Western India, from observing that the same denominations refer to the measures of weight as to the measures of capacity, and so relatively to the subdivisions. In this case it seems to me highly probable that the Tunka or Tukka, a small silver coin, current during the period of the Mogul supremacy, and in which the revenue was collected and reckoned throughout the Western Provinces of their Empire, and particularly in the Nizam Shahee's territories, was the foundation of the weights at present in practice throughout the Deccan. Seventy-two of these Tukkas go to the seer, which makes it nearly similar to the tola, and the now-Tanka, or nine tanka, is still a measure for liquids in very general use. The Chetak, or six tanka, is the 16th part of a seer or weight in the Deccan; but my enquiries regard the weights that are in use, and not those that have been. The most popular of the actual measures of capacity are, the Now-TANK, the SEER, the PUNSEEREE, and the ADHOLEE.

DRY MEASURE.

THE ADHOLEE.—The dry measure, called adholee, of two seers, which is the largest in the Deccan is in towns and large villages made of wood turned in a lathe and lackered. It is in form nearly similar to that of an hour glass, and a $\frac{1}{2}$ seer, and $\frac{2}{3}$ seer, and $\frac{3}{4}$ seer, resemble it in form and lackered. In small villages, where the dealers are poorer, these measures are made from large bamboos sawed through at the joint.

The adholee in the Northern Konkun consists of $3\frac{1}{2}$ and 4 kutchas seers, and the number of adholees to the Konkun maund varies in different towns in the collectorate from 17 to 24. Where the 4 seer adholee obtains, there the maund contains 20 adholees, and where the adholee is $3\frac{1}{2}$ seers, there the maund consists of 24 adholees; so that the adholees, and not the maunds, differ: and 17 adholees measure is perhaps confined to Salsette. The Konkun and Arabic candy are both in general use in this collectorate: the first consists of seven maunds, the other of eight maunds. The Cutti, or Deccan Candy, is also in use; and is used for measuring salt.

The large dry measure in Bombay for salt is the phara, containing—

10½ adholees...	= 1 phara.
100 pharas....	= 1 anna.
16 annas.....	= 1 rass, or 40 tons.

The phara measure when used, is struck off even with a run by a rod made for the purpose.

The small dry measure for grains is the seer, whereof

4 seers.....	= 1 puheeloe.
17 puheeloes...	= 1 phara.
8 pharas.....	= 1 candy.

Batty or rice in the husk is reckoned by the moora of 25 pharas.

LIQUID MEASURE.

The liquid seer measure used in Bombay for spirits, arrack, and milk, is equal in weight to 69 rupees, or 1 lb. 10 oz. 7 dwts. 12 grains troy. The maund consists of 40 of these seers, and the seer is subdivided into half seers, quarter seers, and the latter into two measures called now-tanks, or nine-tanka tukka. The measure of oil corresponds with the maund of 28 lbs., that is, the contents weigh that, and the contents of the seer consequently weigh 11 oz. 4 dwts.

LONG MEASURE.

The measures of length are the KATHEE, the GUZ, and the CUBIT. The first is only used as a land measure; the other two are most used by artificers, and sometimes used in measuring piece goods, cloths, silks, &c., which are not sold by the piece. In most of the Provinces under this presidency, the guz is divided into 20 tussoo. In Guzerat it measures 27.5 inches, making the cubit of 14 tussoo equal to 19.25 inches. At Bombay and in Malabar it is 28 inches, and the cubit 19.6 inches. In the Deccan, the Dooab, the Southern Konkun, Surat, and also in Kutch, the guz is divided into 24 tussoo, but of a greater variety of length, and the cubit into 14 tussoo. The Peshwa's guz, which is in use in the public departments at Poona, is 33.86 inches. At seven of the principal towns in the Dooab, the guz varies from 31.75 inches, to 34.75 inches, and broad cloth, velvet, chintz, and other articles of Europe manufacture, are measured by it. An average accurately taken at twelve of the chief towns in the Southern Konkun, makes the guz 33.438 inches, and the cubit 1508 inches.

The length of the cubit, however, almost everywhere, is usually determined by the mean length of five different men's arms, measured from the elbow to end of the middle finger. Turbuns, &c. are sold by this measure, but it is seldom met with out of Surat as a measure, unless with tailors. Purchasers usually measure by their own arm's length. The English yard is in common use at Bombay in measuring Europe manufactures, and indeed in many places in the interior.

SUPERFICIAL AND SOLID MEASURES.

SUPERFICIAL measure for the measurement of land, solid measure for ascertaining the quantity of timber and many kind of artificer's works, are obtained from the same data as the measure of length.

Artificer's work, superficial measurement throughout Guzerat, Deccan Konkun, and at the Presidency, the reckoning is made by 100 in length, whether guz or cubit, by one in breadth. This rule applies also to the manufacture of carpets, mats, &c.

Masonry is calculated by the brass, which is 25 cubits in length by one in breadth, and one in height. The cubits in use among masons in Bombay is 20 inches (being 4 longer than the timber guz,) so that a brass of masonry contains 115.74 cubic feet.

Timber is measured by the guz, and the rule for determining the contents is, by the square of the quarter girth multiplied into the length. A sawyer's guz is 32 inches in length, and 9 inches in breadth; $32 \times 9 = 288$ square inches, 2 square feet.

BOMBAY AND CANARA MEASUREMENT OF TIMBER AND PLANK.

TIMBER. 20 vissvassa = 1 vassa
20 vassa = 1 covit or candy.

Plank is measured by the guz of 28 English inches or 24 borels. 94 borels in length, 12 borels in breadth, and one borel in thickness, make one guz. A borel is equal to 1.666 English inches.

MALABAR MEASUREMENTS.

TIMBER—is measured by the candy or covit.

16 moganies = 1 borel.
24 borels = 1 kol.
24 kols = 1 covit or candy.

PLANK—is measured by the guz, thus—

10 moganies = 1 borel—
92 borels in breadth, 24 borels in length, and 1 borel in thickness, constitute a guz.

ENGLISH AND BOMBAY MEASUREMENT IN THE DOCK YARD.

TIMBER.—12 cubical feet and 1216 inches = a covit or candy.

3 covits and $18\frac{3}{4}$ vassa = 1 ton or 50 cubical feet.

PLANK.—26 cubical feet, and 206 inches = 100 guz, the quantity in which plank is bought and sold.

NEW WEIGHTS AND LIQUID MEASURES.

COMPILED BY J. H. CRAWFORD, ESQ., LATE ACCOUNTANT-GENERAL, BOMBAY.

New Indian Weights established in Bengal by regulation VII. of 1833, and adopted by the government of Bombay, at the recommendation of the tariff committee in the new tariff valuation.

1 tola = 180 grains troy.
 80 tolas = 1 seer. = 14,400 "
 40 seers = 1 Indian maund. 576,000 "
 Then as 7,000 grains troy are exactly equal to 1 lbs. avoirdupois.
 1 seer of 14,400 grains troy are exactly equal to 2—2-35ths.
 1 maund of 576,000 grains troy are exactly equal to 82—2-7ths.

And it follows therefore,

That 35 seers are exactly equal to 72 lbs. avoirdupois.

" 7 Indian maunds = cwt. 5-7	or	576	" "
" 49 do. = " 36	or	4,032	" "
" 245 do. = tons 9 = " 180	or	20,160	" "

The following simple and accurate rules for the conversion of new Indian weight into avoirdupois weight, and vice-versa, deduced from the foregoing data, are given in the volume of useful tables published by Mr. James Prinsep, in Calcutta in 1834, page 66 :—

Rule 1. To convert Indian weight into Avoirdupois weight.

1. Multiply the weight in seers by 72, and divide by 35 : the result will be the weight in lbs. avoirdupois.
2. Or multiply the weight in maunds by 36 and divide by 49 : the result will be the weight in cwt. avoirdupois.

Rule 2. To convert Avoirdupois weight into Indian weight.

1. Multiply the weight in lbs. avoirdupois by 35 and divide by 72 : the result will be the weight in seers.
2. Or multiply the weight in cwt. by 49 and divide by 36 : the result will be the weight in maunds.

Since the foregoing memoranda and calculations were made, I have been able to obtain a copy of the Bengal regulation VII. of 1833, on which the new system of Indian weight is founded, and subjoin the following further memoranda connected therewith, in the belief that they will be found useful at this time.

The first section of the regulation in question, after reciting the reasons that render it expedient to adapt the weight and standard of the Furruckabad rupee (which are the same as that of the Madras and Bombay rupee) in the Calcutta mint, as well as in the Saugor mint, where they had been introduced as far back as the year 1824-25, continues as follows :—" It is further convenient to introduce the weight of the Furruckabad rupee as the unit of a general system of weights for government transactions throughout India, under the native and well-known denomination of the Tola."

And section IV, in ordering the discontinuance of the use of the sicca weight of 179-666 grains heretofore employed for the receipt of bullion at the Calcutta mint, states that " in its place the following unit, to be called the Tola, shall be introduced, which from its immediate connection with the rupee of the Upper Provinces and of Madras and Bombay, will easily and speedily become universal throughout the British territories."

"The Tola, or sicca weight, to be equal to 180 grains troy, and the other denominations of weight to be derived from this unit, according to the following scale :—

8 ruttees = 1 masha	15 troy grains.
12 mashas = 1 tola	180 ditto.
80 tolas (or sicca weight) =	1 seer = 2½ lbs. troy.
40 seers = 1 mun. (or bazar maund) =	100 lbs. troy.

Mr. James Prinsep says, with reference to the foregoing change, in pages 62 and 63 of his very useful tables already alluded to in these memoranda :—"The tola is chiefly used in the weighing of the precious metals and coin ; all bullion at the mints is received in this denomination, and the tables of bullion produce are calculated per 100 tolas. It is also used at the mints to make the subdivision of the tola into annas (sixteenths) and pie, in lieu of mashas and ruttees.

"Mashas, ruttees, and dhans, are used chiefly by native goldsmiths and jewellers. They are also employed in the native valuation by assay of the precious metals ; thus 10 mashas fine, signifies 10-12ths pure, and corresponds to "10 oz. touch" of the English assay report of silver. There is a closer accordance with the English gold assay scale, inasmuch as the 96 ruttees in a tola exactly represent the 96 carat grains in the gold assay pound, and the dhan the quarter grain, and the ruttee, of which eight go to the masha as the above, is not an exact divisor of the latter weight. The following further table may not be without use in calculations connected with the conversion of precious metals from the troy weight of Great Britain into the tola weight of India.

1 ruttee = grains troy	1.875 decs.—or	1½ grains troy exactly.
2 ruttees = do.	3.750 "	3¼ do.
3 do. = do.	5.625 "	5½ do.
4 do. = do.	7.500 "	7¾ do.
5 do. = do.	9.375 "	9½ do.
6 do. = do.	11.250 "	11¼ do.
7 do. = do.	13.125 "	13¼ do.
8 do. = do.	15.080 "	15 do.

It will be observed, that the preceding observations, whether extracted from the regulations of government (VII. of 1833 Bengal,) Mr. Prinsep's tables, or made by myself, relate chiefly to the bullion or mint weights. Speaking of the tola in connection with Indian weights generally, Mr. Prinsep says, page 71, "The unit of the British Indian ponderary system is called the Tola. It weighs 180 grains English troy weight. From it upwards are derived the heavy weights, viz. chittack, seer and mun (or maund,) and by its subdivision the small or jeweller's weights, called mashas, ruttees, and dhans.

"These last mentioned weights having already been disposed of, it will be sufficient to give the following table of the larger or bazaar weights :—

5 tolas, or sicca weight, =	1 chittack, or gra. troy 900.
16 chittacks. - - - =	1 seer, or lbs. troy 2½.
40 seers. - - - =	1 maund, or lbs. troy 100.

And to add with reference to the chittack, that it is the lowest denomination of the gross weights ; and in bazaar transactions is commonly divided into halves and quarters (called in Bengalee kacha), this marking the line between the two series, which are otherwise connected by the relation of the seer &c. to the tola." (Prinsep's tables, page 62.) whilst the government of India appear, by the tables prepared by their authority for the transactions of the Commissariat and other Public establishments in Bengal, to have sanctioned the introduction of a smaller denomination of great weight than the chittack, called tenth parts in the table in question.

It appears to me, however, that neither of the above subdivisions of the chittack are so correct in principle, and certainly not more convenient in practice, than the tola, the unit on which, as observed by Mr Prinsep, the whole ponderary system of India is founded. In the practice adapted in the bazaar transactions as above, the subdivisions of one half and one quarter, are not only in themselves fractional parts of chittack, but represent tolas and their fractional parts also, half a chittack being equal to two and half tolas, and the quarter of a chittack to $1\frac{1}{4}$ tola; and neither of them carries the subdivision so low in actual quantity as the weight represented by the unit itself: whilst in the transactions of government, though the actual quantity represented by the newly created tenth parts carries the weight as low as half tolas, it does so by the adoption of denomination of weight not recognized in the general dealings of commerce or by law, and as it appears to me without sufficient cause, for if a tola, which is considerably less than half an ounce avoirdupois, is a weight not sufficiently small for the purposes of government, its transactions may be carried out in the next lower subdivision to tolas, mashas and ruttees, viz., grains troy. But I believe it will be admitted by mercantile men in general, that the ounce avoirdupois is the lowest denomination of English weight to which recourse need be had in the ordinary operations of commerce, and it therefore seems to me that the tola, which, as already stated, is not equal to one half that weight, is as low a standard as need be noticed in Indian mercantile dealings generally; the more especially as the subdivisions of the tola (mashas and ruttees and grains) afford the means of the most minute calculations in retail transactions, as well as in the adjustment of weights connected with the more valuable articles of trade, such as musk, opium, silk, &c. &c. &c.,—and in all dealings indeed where perfect accuracy is considered necessary or desirable.

The weights of the several presidencies of India, Travancore, China, and England, compared with the New Indian maund introduced into Bengal by regulation VII. of 1833, and adopted in the new tariff valuation which came into operation under the Bombay presidency, 10th December 1840.

making the proportion between the old wine gallon and the imperial gallon so nearly as 10 are to 12, or 5 are to 6, that the difference between converting the former description of gallon into the latter, according to the proportions just quoted, or working the conversion to the greatest nicety of calculation, will only occasion a difference of 222 decimal parts of an imperial gallon (or say rather more than 1-5th of an imperial gallon) in every one thousand (1000) old wine gallons converted as above.

To convert old wine gallons, therefore, into imperial gallons, we may either multiply by 10 and divide by 12, or multiply by 5 and divide by 6, or deduct 1-6th from the number of old wine gallons given.

Old wine gallons.		Imperial gallons.
For 1000 × 10 =	- - -	10000 ÷ 12 = 833-333
1000 × 5 =	- - -	5000 ÷ 6 = 833-333
1000 - 1-6th, or 166-666	- - -	= 833-333

— Again, taking the converse of this proportion from the data above given, we have the proportions between the imperial gallon and old wine gallon so nearly as 12 are to 10, or as 6 are to 5, that the difference between converting imperial gallons into old wine gallons, according to the proportions just quoted, or working the conversion to the greatest nicety of calculation, will only occasion a difference of 320 decimal parts of an old wine gallon (or say rather less than one third of such gallon) in every one thousand (1000) imperial gallons converted as above.

To convert imperial gallons therefore into old wine gallons, we may either multiply by 12 and divide by 10, or multiply by 6 and divide by 5, or add 1-5th to the number of imperial gallons given.

Imperial gallons.		Old wine gallons.
For 1000 × 12 =	- - -	12000 ÷ 10 = 1200
1000 × 6 =	- - -	6000 ÷ 5 = 1200
1000 × 1-5th, or	- - -	200 = 1200

Memorandum intended to show the check against fraudulent weights in the bazaar, and elsewhere, which the introduction of the New Indian maund and its several subdivisions will prove, wheresoever adopted, to all classes of the community.

Extract being para. 6 of a report from the revenue accountant (Bombay) to government in the Territorial department, No. 22 of 1839, dated 25th May, 1839.

6. It has been stated in the 4th para. of this report, that the revenue accountant would recommend Indian maunds, seers, and tolas, in preference to lbs avoirdupois, as the weight to be adopted in Opium purchases and sales hereafter, and he would now respectfully state, in support of this opinion, that however much maunds differ in their actual weight, and in their several subdivisions, in different parts of India, still the maund is a weight familiar to the native population in every portion of it, and that whilst the company's or head rupee,

180×80 = 14,400 grains troy, 80 tolas, or one Indian seer. which is exactly a tola, or 180 grains troy, enables every individual of the better classes of society, who may possess eight rupees of that coinage, or of the Bombay, Madras, and Furruckabad coinage, of years immediately preceding the introduction of the head rupee, to check or establish a standard seer in every part of the country, the poorer individuals, to whom our copper currency may be better known, need only possess thirty six annas (or two and a quarter rupees) of the new copper coinage to command the same check against fraud and imposition, as his more fortunate neighbour, the possessor of rupees; the weight being in both cases grains troy fourteen thousand and four hundred, and therefore equal to one new Indian seer, as per margin.

N. B.—And further, if annas 36 = 1 seer, then $36 \text{ annas} \times 4 \text{ annas} = 144 \div 16 = 9$ rupees in new copper currency = 4 seers of the new Indian weight.

(1) The measures of length (Système Usuel) are the only measures used in Mauritius but the metrical system is inserted to enable readers of French works to comprehend the value of the quantities therein expressed.

WEIGHTS.

Imperial measures are used in transactions with the military commissariat department only ; for all other purposes the weights adopted in the Island are the same as in France before the revolution, viz :

|                             |                              |
|-----------------------------|------------------------------|

| 8 gros. . . . . 1 oz.       | 20 quintals. . . 1 ton.      |
| 16 oz. . . . . 1 lb.        |                              |

The proportion of the French to the English pound avoird. is 1,079, so that 100 lbs. French are equivalent to 108 lbs. English ; and one pound English is equal to 926 French.

Sugar is calculated by the lb. or quintal.

Cotton by the bale of 250 lbs.

Coffee by the bag of 100 lbs. net French.

Rice by the bag of 150 lbs.

MEASURES.

In the transactions with the military commissariat department imperial measures are used, but the French are employed in all other transactions, and are as follows :

Measures of Length.

|--------------------|-----------|---------------------------------------|
| 12 lines. . . . .  | 1 inch.   | 6 feet. - - - 1 toise.                |
| 12 inches. . . . . | 1 foot.   | 20 feet. - - - 1 perch.               |
| 5 feet. . . . .    | 1 fathom. | 100 square perches. 1 arpent or acre. |

The proportion borne by the French to the English foot is 1.07, the English to the French foot = 94.

The Aune or ell, by which every kind of cloth is measured and sold is to the English yard as 9 to 7 ; or, more minutely the proportion of the yard to the ell is 77.

Fire Wood, is measured by the corde = 8 feet long, 4 feet broad, and 4 feet deep, = 128 cubic feet.

Measures of Capacity.

The velt, equal to gallons 1.64, more commonly stated as our gallon, seven pints 4-5ths English, is always considered as two gallons, and its subdivisions are :

|                           |           |                            |
|---------------------------|-----------|----------------------------|
| 4 gills equal to. . . . . | 1 pint.   | 2 gallons. . . . . 1 velt. |
| 2 pints. . . . .          | 1 quart.  | 30 velts. . . . . 1 cask.  |
| 4 quarts. . . . .         | 1 gallon. |                            |

Nine English quart or beer bottles are considered equal to a velt, and 40 drams to a gallon.

COINS.

The currency of Mauritius is entirely of silver and government notes ; sovereigns, the standard in government transactions, are never found in circulation, and are only imported when the rates of exchange are unfavourable, on account of the premium which they always, as a marketable commodity, obtain.

Since 1st January 1826, the public accounts have been kept and rendered in sterling money, agreeably to Ordinance No. 3 of 25th November 1825.

In all transactions of trade, and where government is not concerned, the decimal system of dollars and cents prevails, as follows :

2 sous as equal to 1 centième,
20 sous or 10 centièmes as 1 livre or franc,
100 centièmes as 1 dollar, equal to 4 shillings.

The sou is represented by the farthing, the cent by the half-penny, counting 25 for one shilling or quarter of a dollar, the livre or franc by French half franc pieces (which have nearly disappeared in consequence of the Proclamation of 23rd May 1843, reducing their legal value). The dollar, formerly represented by the dollar decaen, has become a fictitious coin, and is now replaced by four shillings or two rupees, the latter, although taken at a reduced rate (1s. 10d. only) in government transactions, having been maintained, by a convention of the commercial body in 1844, as equivalent to two shillings each.

There are two other coins, the token and marquee, almost peculiar to Mauritius ; the former composed of a mixture of metal of which silver forms the basis ; the latter, passing for  $\frac{3}{4}$ d., composed of a kind of bell metal, and with the inscription nearly worn off from old age.

The token passes in all transactions for 8d. and the half token as an equivalent for 4d. or twice the number of cents in each case. Government is rapidly withdrawing this coin from circulation.

Marquee - - - - - 0 0 0 $\frac{3}{4}$  do. of 25th Nov. 1825.

NOTE.—The Queen's proclamation above-mentioned ordains that the said East Indian and foreign gold and silver coins shall circulate and be received in payment throughout the Mauritius and its current money of the United Kingdom at the rates above specified, and that, in all payments to be made, tender of payment in the said coins or either of them, at the several respective rates aforesaid, shall be deemed and taken to be a lawful tender, in the same manner as if such tender had been made in the current coin of the united kingdom.

Ordinance No. 9, dated 10th July 1843, enacts that foreign and indian gold or silver coins not comprehended in the said proclamation of the queen, shall not be considered as a legal tender, and in consequence, shall not be received at the public offices in this colony.

Ordinance No. 3, of 25th November 1825, declares that "a tender and payment of four shillings British silver money or British silver and copper money shall be considered equivalent to and a legal tender and payment of one current dollar of the colonial money of account of Mauritius," and that payments in "copper coin or billon" shall not exceed "the value of twelve pence sterling at any one payment.—Bolton's Mauritius Almanac for 1852.

ENGLISH WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

In the Imperial system, introduced January 1, 1826, the legal measures of extension and weights are continued as before; but a variety of corn, wine, and beer measures, previously in use, are superseded by a new measure of capacity called the "Imperial standard gallon," containing 277.274 cubic inches, or 10 lbs. avoirdupois, of distilled water, at 62° Fahrenheit, the barometer being at 30 inches. The following table exhibit the Imperial standards, and their usual multiplies and divisions.

I.—MEASURES OF LENGTH.

|-----------------------|--------------------|-----------------|--------------|
| 12 inches             | = 1 foot.          | 40 poles        | = 1 furlong. |
| 3 feet                | = 1 yard.          | 8 furlongs or } | = 1 mila.    |
| 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ yards | = 1 pole or perch. | 1760 yards }    |              |

The hand = 4 inches; the English ell = 45 inches; the pace = 5 feet: and the fathom = 6 feet. The geographical degree = 20 nautical leagues, or 69.121 miles. In land measure, the chain of 100 links = 66 feet.

II.—MEASURES OF SURFACE.

|                                  |                  |               |                                   |
|----------------------------------|------------------|---------------|-----------------------------------|
| 144 square inches                | = 1 square foot. | 4 roods or }  |                                   |
| 9 square feet                    | = 1 square yard. | 4840 square } | = 1 acre.                         |
| 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ sq. yards, or } | = 1 square pole. | yards }       |                                   |
| 272 $\frac{1}{2}$ sq. feet }     |                  |               | And 640 acres make 1 square mile. |
| 40 square poles                  | = 1 rood.        |               |                                   |

III.—MEASURES OF CAPACITY.

I.—GENERAL MEASURES OF SOLIDITY.

|                   |                 |                                      |
|-------------------|-----------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1728 cubic inches | = 1 cubic foot. | The ton measurement = 8 barrel bulk, |
| 27 cubic feet     | = 1 cubic yard. | or 40 cubic feet.                    |

II.—MEASURES FOR LIQUIDS, CORN, AND DRY GOODS.

|                    |             |           |              |
|--------------------|-------------|-----------|--------------|
| 8.665 cubic inches | = 1 gill.   | 2 gallons | = 1 peck.    |
| 4 gills            | = 1 pint.   | 4 pecks   | = 1 bushel.  |
| 2 pints            | = 1 quart.  | 8 bushels | = 1 quarter. |
| 4 quarts           | = 1 gallon. |           |              |

The peck, bushel, and quarter are used for dry goods only; there are besides, the coom = 4 bushels; the wey or load = 5 quarters; and the last = 2 loads or 10 quarters.

In Beer measure, the barrel contains 4 firkins or 36 gallons; and the hogshead  $1\frac{1}{2}$  barrels or 54 gallons.

In Wine measure, besides the gallon and its subdivisions, various denominations are used, as the butt, pipe, &c., but these are now to be considered rather as the names of casks than as expressing any definite number of gallons. The standard gauges in trade are as follow:—pipe of Port, 115 imp. gallons; pipe of Lisbon, 117 do.; pipe of Cape or Madeira, 92 do.; pipe of Teneriffe, 100 do.; butt of Sherry, 108 do.; hogshead of Claret, 46 do.; aum of Hock, 30 do.

Herrings are measured by the barrel of  $26\frac{1}{2}$ , or cran of  $37\frac{1}{2}$  gallons.

IV.—MEASURES OF WEIGHT.

I.—AVOIRDUPOIS OR COMMERCIAL WEIGHT.

|                        |            |                      |              |
|------------------------|------------|----------------------|--------------|
| 27.34375 troy grains   | = 1 dram.  | 2 stones, or 28 lbs. | = 1 quarter. |
| 16 drams               | = 1 ounce. | 4 qrs., or 112 lbs.  | = 1 cwt.     |
| 16 ounces, or 7000 gr. | = 1 pound. | 20 cwt.              | = 1 ton.     |
| 14 pounds              | = 1 stone. |                      |              |

Flour weight.—1 stone = 14 pounds; 1 boll = 140 pounds; 1 sack = 280 pounds, or  $2\frac{1}{2}$  cwt.; 1 barrel = 196 lbs.

II.—TROY WEIGHT.

|                 |                  |           |            |
|-----------------|------------------|-----------|------------|
| 24 grains       | = 1 pennyweight. | 12 ounces | = 1 pound. |
| 20 pennyweights | = 1 ounce.       |           |            |

The use of this weight is confined to the precious metals.

The fineness of gold is expressed in carats and grains, the unit of reference being divided into 24 carats, and the carat into 4 grains. The standard of gold coin is 22 carats, that is, the pound or other weight should contain 22 parts pure and 2 alloy. The mint-price of gold is £3 17s. 10d. per ounce; and hence the full weight of a sovereign is 5 dwts. 3.274 troy grains; but the sovereign of 5 dwts. 2½ grains, and the half sovereign of 2 dwts. 13½ grains, are allowed currency (Proclamation, June 7, 1842). Wrought gold has two legal standards, one is 22 carats, and the same as the coin, and the other 18 carats. The latter, instituted in 1798, is used chiefly for watch-cases and rings.

The fineness of silver is expressed in ounces and pennyweights; the standard fineness is 11 oz. 2 dwts. of pure metal and 18 dwts. of alloy, making together 1 pound troy. Prior to the recoinage in 1816, a pound of standard silver was minted into 62 shillings, and was thus issued at 5s. 2d. per oz.; but although the market price of standard silver bullion has for many years varied little from 5s. per ounce, the new coin is minted at 5s. 6d. per oz., as 66 shillings are coined from a pound of bullion. The Act of 1816, however, declares "that silver coins shall be a legal tender for 40s. only at one time," and "that gold coins shall be in future the sole standard measure of value and legal tender for payment without any limitation of amount.

Wrought silver has two legal standards; one is the same as that of the coin, and the other 8 dwts. better, or 11 oz. 10 dwts. But the latter, called new sterling, is seldom used.

Diamond Weight.—Diamonds are weighed by carats,  $151\frac{1}{2}$  of which make one ounce troy; this carat is therefore equal only to  $3\frac{1}{2}$  troy grains.

Pearl Weight.—The troy ounce contains 600 pearl grains, and hence one pearl grain is 4-5ths of a troy grain.

Apothecaries' Weight.—20 troy grains make 1 scruple; 3 scruples make one dram; and 8 drams make 1 ounce. The ounce and pound are the same as in troy weight. This weight is used in medical prescriptions only.

COMMON RULES FOR FINDING THE TIME OF HIGH WATER.

To determine this time, these elements are necessary :—

1. The time of high-water at full or change, is found by observation : and to be accurate, it must be the mean of many observations made at different times of the year, and in different states of the weather.

2. The moon's age on the proposed day.

3. The time after noon when the moon shall arrive at the south.

The moon's age is found, by adding the epact for the year, (the moon's age on the 1st of January,) to the epact for the month (the age of the moon on the 1st of the month if it had been the new moon on the first of January,) and the day of the month. If the sum be less than a lunar month it is the moon's age ; but if greater, take a lunar month from it, and the remainder is the moon's age.

The epact for the months are these : January 0, February 2, March 1, April 2, May 3, June 4, July 5, August 6, September 7, October 8, November 9, December 10.

Thus to find the moon's age for June 10, 1828.

|                    |   |   |    |
|--------------------|---|---|----|
| Epact of the year  | - | - | 14 |
| Epact of the month | - | - | 4  |
| Day of the month   | - | - | 10 |

28 days.

The moon, when new, is south at the same time with the sun, and eight-tenths of an hour nearly late for every day of her age. Therefore, multiply the moon's age by 8, take away the unit figures and multiply it by 6, for minutes ; the other figures are hours after noon. If they exceed twelve, the excess is the hour of southing on the following morning.

As, if the moon's age were 28 days,  $28 \div 8 = 22$ . 4, or 22 hours 24 minutes ; that is, 24 minutes after ten the following morning.

The high water is found by adding the time of the moon's southing to the time of spring tide in the table. As to find the high water at Bristol for 10th June 1828.

Suppose the tabular number for—

|                     |   |   |             |

| Bristol to be       | - | - | 6 h. 36 m.  |
| Add moon's southing | - | - | 10 h. 24 m. |

17 hours.

Subtract 12

---

Remains 5 o'clock.

From the variations already mentioned, as well as from local causes, the rules are not perfectly accurate ; but they may serve to explain and exemplify the principles.

RULES OF PRACTICE FOR THE BOMBAY COURT OF SMALL CAUSES.

I. All applications for the usual process of the court shall be made to the clerk and shall set out the names and additions in full of the plaintiff and defendant, as far as practicable, with their last place of abode or business, the cause or causes of action, and the amount claimed ; and when there is more than one defendant, a separate copy, under the seal of the court, shall be issued for each defendant. If the application is not made by the plaintiff in person, the agent shall file, in writing the particulars of the demand signed by the plaintiff.

II. Where an infant applies to enter a plaint for any cause of action, (other than for wages or piece work, or for work as a servant,) he must procure the attendance of a next friend at the office of the clerk at the time of entering the plaint, and no plaint shall be entered until the next friend has undertaken, in the form in the schedule, to be responsible for costs, and on entering into such undertaking, he shall be liable, in the same manner, and to the same extent, as if he were a party in an ordinary suit, and the cause shall proceed in the name of the infant by such next friend, and such undertaking shall be filed by the clerk, and no order of the court shall be necessary for the appointment of such next friend. If the plaintiff fail in, or discontinue, his suit, and shall not pay the amount of costs awarded by the court to be paid by him to the defendant, such proceedings may be taken for the recovery of such amount from the next friend as for the recovery of any debt or damage ordered to be paid by the same court.

III. Where an infant defendant appears at the hearing, and names a person willing to act as guardian, and who then assents so to act, such person shall be appointed guardian accordingly; but if the defendant do not name a guardian, the judges may appoint any person in court willing to become guardian, or in default of such person, the judge shall appoint the clerk of the court to be guardian, and the cause shall proceed thereupon as if another person had been appointed guardian, and the name of the guardian appointed shall be entered in the form in the schedule, and no responsibility shall attach to the person so appointed guardian.

IV. Claims by husbands in their own right may be joined with claims in respect of which the wife must be joined as a party.

V. The summons to appear to suits or actions shall be issued according to the form in the schedule, and shall be dated as of the day when issued; and every summons shall be made returnable on the tenth day, exclusive of the day of issue, unless otherwise ordered, but may be made returnable in a shorter or longer period, at the discretion of the judges.

VI. Every summons to appear to a suit or action shall be served by one of the bailiffs of the court four clear days before the holding of the court at which the defendant shall be summoned to attend, and in case the bailiff shall not be able to serve the same within the time limited for that purpose, the plaintiff, on satisfying the court that he has used due diligence in pointing out the defendant, or his place of abode or business to the bailiff, may, by order of the court, take out, without fee, successive summonses returnable at such time as the court may order, in continuation of, and founded upon, the first summons, and the first summons shall be deemed the commencement of the suit.

VII. On applications to recover possession of tenement in pursuance of section XCI of Act IX. of 1850, the fee shall be calculated and taken on the yearly rent or value of the premises sought to be recovered, but in case no express contract to pay rent is proved, it shall be calculated and taken on the actual value of the premises, which the court shall determine in a summary way.

VIII. The service of a summons to appear to a suit or action shall be by delivering a sealed copy thereof to the defendant, or to such person, at the place of abode or place of business, of the defendant, as shall afford reasonable ground for presuming that the service thereof will come to his knowledge, and in such cases as the bailiff may require, the plaintiff, or his agent, shall accompany the bailiff to point out the defendant, or his place of abode, or place of business.

IX. When a defendant, shall be living or serving on board any ship or vessel, or be residing in any military lines, barracks, or quarters, and serving Her Majesty or the East India Company as a mariner or soldier, it shall be sufficient service to deliver a sealed copy of the summons to the senior officer on board, or to the person who may at the time have charge of such ship or vessel, or to the adjutant of the corps, or to any European officer, or to a jemadar, subadar, serjeant, or havildar of the particular company to which such defendant shall belong, or be temporarily attached.

X. When any defendant shall, by keeping his place of abode or place of business closed, or by violence or threats prevent any bailiff from serving any summons as hereinafter directed, and such summons shall have been fixed conspicuously on or near to such place of abode or place of business, or otherwise served, as nearly as may be, according to the mode hereinbefore directed, such service may be deemed good service. In other cases, not herein provided for, in which difficulties arise as to the service of any summons, the court, on special application, shall order in what manner such service shall be made.

XI. The bailiff who serves the summons, shall indorse on a copy of such summons the time and manner of the service thereof, and shall forthwith deliver the same so indorsed to the clerk of the court, who shall file it.

XII. The rules as to the mode of service of the summons to appear to a suit or action shall apply to the service of all orders, judgments, notices, and processes whatsoever issuing under the authority of Act IX. of 1850 when ordered to be served upon the parties to a suit, except as to cases in which it shall be otherwise directed by the said act, or by any rule made under the authority thereof. Subpoenas to witnesses shall be served one clear day before the day of trial, by the bailiff delivering a copy thereof to the witness, or to such person, at his place of abode or business, or shall afford reasonable grounds for presuming the same will come to his hands. plaintiff fail to appear and to prove that he is entitled to more than has been paid into court, he will be liable to pay costs to the defendant.

XIX. Notice of all causes settled by agreement shall be given to the clerk by the parties, or either of them, of their or his constituted agents or agent, previous to the cause being called on in court, or in default thereof the parties shall not be entitled to a return of half of the fees paid up to that time.

RULES FOR THE ADMISSION OF ATTORNIES.

Whereas it is expedient to make some rules, under Act XIII of 1845, to regulate the admission of persons capable to act as attorneys of this courts who have not been already admitted as attorneys in any of Her Majesty's court of Law, and it is desirable to make such rules as comfortable to the law of England as the circumstances of this country admit, it is ordered as follows :—

1. No person shall be capable of being admitted and enrolled as an attorney unless such person shall have been bound by contract in writing to serve as clerk for five years to a practising attorney, and shall have duly served under such contract for five years, nor unless such person shall have been examined, and sworn, as hereinafter directed ; provided that attorneys or writers to the Signet in Scotland already admitted in any of Her Majesty's court may apply for admission as heretofore, and provided also, that three years' service shall be sufficient in case the articulated clerk shall have taken a degree in the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, or Durham, or in any of the universities of Ireland.

2. No attorney shall have more than one articulated clerk at a time.

3. Every person bound by contract in writing to serve as a clerk to an attorney, shall, during the whole term of service to be specified in such contract, continue and be actually employed by such attorney in the proper business of an attorney, provided nevertheless, that the attorney to whom any clerk, either European or native may be articulated, may dispense with his actual service for any portion not exceeding in the whole two years of the said period of five years, to enable such articulated clerk to visit and reside in England either for the benefit of his health or for the purpose of better qualifying himself for his profession and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the Court, that his absence in England has been bona fide for either of those purposes, the time for which he has been so absent may be reckoned as part of the period of actual service under articles.

4. Every attorney of the Court who takes an articulated clerk shall enroll the articles or contract with the Prothonotary within six months of the execution of the same.

5. When any person having served his clerkship as aforesaid shall desire to be admitted, he shall present a petition to the Judges praying for admission after such examination into his fitness and capacity to act as an attorney as the Judges shall think proper, and he shall attach to such petition a copy of his articles, and affidavit of due service, an affidavit by the attorney whom he has served, that he has conducted himself with diligence and honesty, and testimonials as to his good character by two resident householders of Bombay.

6. The Judges will nominate examiners from time to time to conduct such examination, who shall make inquiry touching the due service under articles as aforesaid, and as to the fitness and capacity of the petitioner to act as an attorney, and also, if a Native of India, as to his ability to write and speak the English language with fluency and correctness.

7. On the Court being satisfied by the certificate of the examiners, or by such further examination as the Court or a Judge thereof may direct, that the petitioner is duly qualified and fit and competent to act as an Attorney, a fiat will be issued for the admission of such person to act as an Attorney of the Court on his taking the Oaths now enjoined by the rules of the Court.

8. Rules 1 and 2 are not to apply to clerks now serving under articles.

9. In all cases not provided for in these and previous rules of the Court, the practise of the English law is to be observed.

The Hon'ble the President of the Council of India in Council is pleased, under instructions from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, to notify that British Subjects, Native or European, intending to embark for a Foreign Country, will on applying at the office (if the place of embarkation be Calcutta) of the Secretary to the Government of India in the Foreign Department, or (if the place of embarkation be Bombay or Madras) at the offices of the Chief Secretaries to Government at Bombay and Madras respectively, be furnished, after due enquiry with a certificate attesting their rights to protection as British Subjects. British Subjects, Native or European, intending to embark at any of the Subordinate ports of the different Presidencies, are to apply to such officer at the Port, as the Local Government shall have notified to be the proper authority for granting the certificates.

SALES OF VALUABLE PROPERTY TO FOREIGN PRINCES AND CHIEFS PROHIBITED.

Circumstances having recently come to the knowledge of Government which suggest the expediency of preventing sales of valuable property from being made by Civil and Military officers of the Hon'ble Company's service to Foreign Princes and Chiefs, or to Natives of rank or opulence residing under the protection of the British Government, without due intimation to Government, through the principal local authorities, of proposed sale and transfer of such property, and the consideration to be received for it, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to prohibit in future all sales, purchases and transfers, between the Civil and Military servants of Government on the one hand, and natives of the description above noticed on the other, of grounds, houses, boats, equipages, horses, elephants, plate, furniture, and generally every description of private property, exceeding the value of five thousand (5000) Rs., without the sanction of Government being previously obtained, under such penalties as the circumstances of each particular case of disobedience to these orders may demand.

The Governor General in Council takes this opportunity of adverting to the Resolution passed in the Political Department under date the 17th September 1813, and published in General orders of the 18th of the same month, cautioning all Civil and Military Officers of Government against carrying on any communications with native Princes and Chiefs, or their Vakeels, except through the channel of the Political Agents of Government, and of renewing the order for the strictest observance of this caution in future.

4.—The amount of freight received on account of the conveyance of treasure shall be divided into eight parts, and distributed as follows, viz :—

If on a station where there is a duly appointed commodore or senior officer one-eighth is to be apportioned to him, one-eighth to the Indian Naval Fund, and the remaining six-eighths to the captain or commanding officer of the ship or vessel.

If on a station where there is no properly appointed commodore or senior officer, one eighth is to be appropriated to the Indian Navy Fund, and the balance of seven-eighths is to be retained by the captain, or commanding officer of the ship or vessel.

It is however to be distinctly understood, that no commodore or senior officer shall be entitled to share in the freight on treasure, &c., unless he shall have notified his intentions to the captain or commander of the vessel bearing the freight, by furnishing him with an engagement in writing in the following form :—

I, A. B., am desirous of partaking in the advantages, with the risks attendant therein, arising out of the conveyance of freight of treasure in any of the ships or vessels in the squadron, (or in the particular ship, as the case may be) and I hereby engage to make good to the captain or captains, officer or officers, commanding such ships or vessels respectively (or ships or vessels, as the case may be) such part of any loss of damage for which he or they may be liable in respect to the gold, silver, treasure, or other articles so carried on freight and which he or they respectively shall have actually paid and satisfied, as shall be in proportion to the share or interest in the said freight money to which I may be entitled.

5.—In the event of loss or damage happening to the gold, silver, jewels, or other articles so received on freight exceeding the total freight money, the Indian Naval Fund shall not be entitled to any sum on account of such freight, and in cases in which the loss may not amount to the whole of the freight money, the Indian Naval Fund shall be entitled only to its proportion as the balance of freight money over and above such loss or damage.

6.—The captain or commanding officer of any ship or vessel on board of which treasure may have been received shall, if under a commodore or senior officer, transmit to him a return, of the amount of treasure, and of the freight paid or to be paid thereon: copies of this return are also to be furnished by the superintendent indian navy, and to the secretary of the Indian navy fund, through the commodore or senior officer, if any ; but if there be no commodore or senior officer on the station, they are then to be transmitted direct.

7.—When treasure shall, during the voyage, be transhipped into one or more ships or vessels, the freight shall be divided pro rata itineris, among the commodores or senior officers, and the captains or commanding officers, according to the services performed by the different ships or vessels respectively.

8.—The freight chargeable under the foregoing rules shall be payable clear of all deductions; and it shall be stipulated, that the captain or commanding officers shall not be liable to any expense attending the shipment of treasure or any other articles, until the same shall be safe along side their respective ships or vessels, and their liability shall cease from the moment they shall have landed the treasure at the port to which the ships carrying the treasure shall be destined.

9.—In order to prevent any doubt or misunderstanding as to the rate of distribution of freight on gold, or silver, jewels, or other articles received on board any of the honorable company's vessels, and to prevent any private arrangement inconsistent with these regulations, all commodores or senior officers, captains or commanding officers, are expressly forbidden to receive on board any treasure, upon any agreement or condition different from these regulations, or to take, demand, or receive any sum, other than those established by these regulations.

10.—Should any dispute arise in the adjustment of freight to be charged on treasure, or should any case occur not provided for in these regulations, the subject is to be referred to government, through the superintendent, whose decision is to be considered final.

Rules for the Engagement of Passages and Accommodation of Passengers.

1. Application for passage is to be made at the office of the master attendant in Bombay, and at other ports to the commander.

2. The vessel which conveys the mail intended to reach Suez on the 17th of any month is to be designated the steamer of that month: for instance, the January steamer is the one which is destined to reach Suez on the 17th January, although leaving Bombay possibly before the end of December.

3. Passengers are to be divided into two classes, viz:

First class, who sit at the commander's table, and are entitled to all the privileges of the quarter deck.

Second class, who are not entitled to walk aft of the paddle boxes, who berth forward, and either arrange for their own provision, or mess with the warrant officers or engineers.

4. Every passenger of the first class shall pay the following sum, as table money, for the voyage from Bombay to Suez, or from Suez to Bombay, viz :—

A lady or gentleman	Rs. 200
A child ten years of age and above five years	„ 100
A child five years and above one	„ 80
A child one year and under	„ 50
A child under one year, and with the mother.	Free.

These rates apply to the steamers of every month throughout the year, with the exception of those of July and August, in which the table money from Bombay to Suez will be as follows, viz :—

A lady or gentleman	Rs. 300
A child under 10 years of age	„ 150
A child under 5 ditto	„ 120
A child under 1 ditto	„ 75
Ditto with the mother	Free.

But the rate from Suez to Bombay will be the same in all months. It is to be understood, that for the above sums, the passengers are to be provided with as plain substantial table ; but no person is entitled to more than one pint of wine and one bottle of beer per diem. Cabin passengers have the first choice of seats at the table, and after them the saloon passengers, in preference to those on the deck, whose priority will be arranged according to their standing on the passage list. The seats will be arranged by the commander, and once taken they cannot be changed without his permission during the voyage.

5. In addition to the table money, the following sums will be charged for the accommodation engaged by first class passengers, viz :—

A treble cabin.	Rs. 1,000
A double cabin.	800
A single cabin.	500
A saloon berth.	350
A deck passage.	300

6. Every second class passenger shall pay rupees 150.

7. For each European servant 50 rupees must be paid as subsistence money, and 50 rupees as passage money ; for native servants the charge will be one-half the rate for an European ; but none are to be considered and taken as servants, unless they accompany actually their masters or mistresses.

8. Three lists for each month's steamer will be kept at the master attendant's office, viz. one for cabin passengers, one for saloon, and one for deck passengers. A statement of the number of each class which each packet is calculated to accommodate will be open at the same place to the inspection of the public.

9. Every applicant may register his name in whichever of the lists he pleases, but the name of the packet will not be declared until 10 days prior to the appointed day of sailing, when choice of accommodation will be given according to priority of standing on the lists. Ladies having the preference for the first three cabins.

10. In the event of a greater number of names having been registered than the steamer, when declared, is calculated to accommodate, the supernumerary names on the cabin list may be transferred to that of the saloon or deck, and those of saloon lists to that of the deck, or they may be withdrawn, and deposit repaid, at the option of the parties. In the case of a transfer under this rule, the name will be placed in the same position in which it would have stood by date of registry had the original application been for a saloon or a deck passage instead of for a cabin, or for a deck instead of for a saloon. Should any of the cabin or saloon berths remain open after the vessel has left the harbour, the saloon or deck passengers may be allowed to take them, on paying into the hands of the commander the regulated difference of price.

11. Ladies and children can take passages in cabins only, and female servants cannot be accommodated otherwise than in the cabins engaged for the family they accompany.

12. A passenger who has engaged a cabin may make what arrangements he likes for its occupation ; he may either keep it entirely to himself, or admit to share it with any one that he pleases, provided only that the name of the person so admitted (if an adult) must have been previously on one of the lists, and subject to the following restrictions, viz :—

A treble cabin cannot be appropriated to the accommodation of more than

Four ladies.		Three ladies and two children.
Three gentlemen.		One gentleman and three children.
Six children.		Two gentlemen and two children.
One lady and four children.		A lady and her husband with two
Two ladies and three children.		children.

A double cabin cannot be appropriated to more than

Three ladies.	Two ladies and two children.
Two gentlemen.	A gentleman with two children.
Four children.	A lady and her husband with one child.
A lady and three children.

A single cabin cannot be appropriated to more than

Two ladies,	Three children.
One gentleman.	One lady and two children.

Children under 5 years of age may be taken extra to the complement of a cabin on payment of 50 rupees for each, additional.

13. Passages for intermediate places can be engaged only when there is accommodation not taken up for the entire voyage, unless the parties are willing to pay the price of the whole voyage, in which case they may register their names in the same manner as all other passengers. The vacant accommodation will be declared three days before the sailing of the vessel. The passage between Aden and Mocha, and Bombay and Suez respectively, will be counted as one-half of the whole passage between Bombay and Suez; between Judda and Suez will be counted as one-third; and between Judda and Bombay as two-thirds; Cossier and Suez are considered to be alike.

14. The engagement of a passage will not be considered valid unless a deposit of the following sums be made at the time of application, viz:—

For a cabin passage.	Rupees 300
For a saloon.	" 150
For a deck.	" 125

This deposit, should the party not proceed, will invariably be forfeited except under the provisions of Art. 10, and in cases where, by the production of a medical certificate, it is satisfactorily shown that the person was compelled by sickness to abandon the passage. A deposit is not required on the registry of the names of children, except when the children are to occupy a cabin by themselves, in which case the same deposit must be made as for the cabin passage of a lady or gentleman, viz. 300 rupees.

15. To prevent unnecessary trouble, the master attendant is authorized to receive and pass receipts for the deposit money.

16. Ten days prior to the appointed day of sailing, each passenger must pay to the master attendant the remaining portion of the passage money, in default of which the deposit will be considered forfeited, and any claim to passage invalid. When the cabins are finally allotted, an adjustment will be made with the party or parties to whom they are appropriated, the difference between the value of the place occupied by each individual and the deposit made under article 14 being paid up or returned as the case may be. When the passage money has been paid up, no portion of it can on any plea be returned, except under the provisions specified in article 14.

17. Persons who from non-arrival at Bombay may have omitted to pay the balance of the passage money, may be re-admitted as passengers, if before the period of departure the balance is paid. They, however, will be placed at the bottom of the list of the class of passengers in which they are registered.

18. No transfer of accommodation in the steamer by an individual who has taken a passage to one who has not taken his passage will be permitted; but after the list has been filled up, any person wishing to stand the chance of succeeding to a vacancy caused by a lapse of any kind may do so, by registering his name and paying the required sum, which will be refunded to him should no vacancy occur.

19. It is to be understood, that Government reserves to itself the right of appropriating a cabin or cabins, for the use of public functionaries or others proceeding on duty, or by special order of Government, as passengers in any of the Honorable Company's steamers.

20. Passengers on a steamer that may from accident or other cause be obliged to return to Port, will be entitled to the refund of the amount that has been paid, deducting therefrom a sum for the table allowance of the commander according to the number of days that the vessel may have been at sea, calculating the average time occupied in a voyage to or from Suez to be 18 days, and Aden 10 days.

21.* All passengers, whether belonging to the public service or not, are required to make arrangements at Suez, or other intermediate ports, with the commander for the payment of the passage money before, or at the time of their embarkation; and it is discretionary with the commander to accept or decline any orders upon houses of agency, or banks, or individuals in Bombay, which may be tendered.

22. For the convenience of passengers, the commanders are authorized to receive payment of passage money at Suez, or any port between Suez and Bombay, in sovereigns, Spanish dollars, or German crowns, at the following rates of exchange, viz. sovereigns at rupees 11 each, Spanish dollars at rupees 2-3-0 each, and German crowns at rupees 2-2-0 each. Passengers paying their passage money in the above coins are allowed, if they please, to give notice in writing to the commanders, pursers or clerks in charge at Suez, that they intend to pay their passage money in company's rupees at Bombay; in such cases the coins they present at Suez are to be held as in deposit only, and, as such, are to be made over by the purser, or clerk in charge, to the military pay master immediately on the arrival of the vessel in Bombay harbour, in order that they may be claimed by the parties from the military pay office; but if not claimed within one week, the parties will be considered to have relinquished their claim, and the deposited coins will be sold on account of government.

23. The baggage of each passenger must not exceed four boxes, of the following dimensions, viz:—

Length-	-	-	-	-	-	-	2 feet 5 inches
Breadth-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1 foot 5 "
Depth-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1 " 3 "

and the total weight must not be more than four cwt. Second class passengers are allowed half the above quantity,

24. Each cabin passenger may, if he pleases, put all his baggage into his cabin. The saloon and deck passengers will be allowed to keep one box or bag above. The rest of the baggage is to be in the baggage-room, and passengers will be allowed access to it twice a week, on a day and hour fixed by the commander, who will appoint a person to have charge of the baggage.

25. Any applicant may be refused a passage without any cause being assigned, either by the authorities at Bombay or by the commander of the vessel when away from Bombay, but a report of the rejection is to be communicated to government.

26. All persons who take passage, either themselves or through their agents, will be considered as thereby binding themselves to comply with these rules, which will be shown by the master attendant or by the commander of the vessel to parties who engage a passage.

The honorable the governor in council is pleased so far to relax article 14 of the rules for the engagement of passages and accommodation of passengers in the government steam packets between Bombay and Suez as to permit the return of a forfeited deposit, whenever it can be shown that the government has sustained no loss by the lapse.

A deposit of rupees (500) five hundred, is required to be made on

J. W. Muspratt, Esq.—Secretary.

Accountant and Actuary.—James Johnson.

Office Rules of the Government Savings' Bank.

1. Mr. James Johnson, the actuary, is authorized to sign all Receipts and Payments.
2. The Bank opens for the transaction of business at 10 A. M., and closes at 4 P. M. every day, Sunday and Holidays excepted.
3. No deposit will be received of a less amount than one rupee, nor in excess of five hundred.
4. No copper coins will be received, nor other than government paper.
5. The Bank book must be produced whenever any sum is deposited or withdrawn.
6. Individuals resident out of Bombay at places where there is no public treasury, and females who, according to the manners and customs of the country, do not usually make their appearance in public, are required to appoint (by letter addressed to the secretary) agents to carry on transactions on their behalf. Payments to these agents will only be made on the production of the Pass Books of the Principals (or the persons in whose names the Accounts stand), accompanied by orders signed by the latter, authorizing the payments. These orders, in cases of Native female depositors, are to bear the signatures of two respectable witnesses as to the signature of the drawers being genuine.
7. Depositors resident at the Presidency, with the exception of the native females aforesaid, are expected on making withdrawals, to attend personally at the bank, in all practicable cases.
8. It having been observed that many persons deposit money about the beginning of the month, seemingly for safe custody, and then withdraw sums as they are required from time to time in the course of the same month, a practice which, pursued as a system, seems scarcely to come within the legitimate use or proposed ends of a savings' bank, the Secretary is, therefore, empowered to close the account of any depositor who may use the bank as an agency by very frequently withdrawing portions of his deposits.

I.—All Arab boats arriving in Bombay, not using a Pilot, shall report their arrival at the Police office, when the names of the crew and passengers, and any extraordinary occurrence which may have happened, will be taken down, in writing, by the Deputy Superintendent of the Water Division, and a report made to the Senior Magistrate of Police.

II.—Two days previous to the departure of the Vessel, the Nacodah or Tindal shall report to the Police office any casualty or other peculiar circumstance which may have occurred on board the vessel while it has been in the harbour, together with the names of all passengers proceeding in her; this information is, if necessary, to be verified by a search under the orders of the Deputy Superintendent of the Water Division.

III.—A certificate that this has been duly performed will be given by the Deputy Superintendent of the Water Division, and without which, the certificate from the Senior Magistrate of Police will be withheld.

IV.—All boats shall, one day previous to their departure, anchor as near as possible to the Police Hulk, in order that they may be overhauled, and their crews mustered before leaving the port.

V.—In reference to the embarkation of Pilgrims; the following rules will be in future observed.

VI.—When an application for a clearance is made by the Nacodah of the vessel, he will deliver in a list of the intended Pilgrim passengers; an officer of the Water Division will then proceed on board and inspect the vessel, compare the list with the Pilgrims on board, and certify before the Senior Magistrate, the state of the vessel, the correctness of the list, &c.

VII.—Until this is done, no certificate will be granted.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

For the measurement by callipers upon shipments to Great Britain, of cotton, wool, hemp and other screwed and pressed bales at this port.

I. That callipers shall from time to time be submitted to the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and, if found correct, shall be branded with a stamp bearing the name of the Chamber, to indicate the same.

II. That if, from use or otherwise, any callipers should get out of order and be objected to, the party objecting shall send the callipers to the Chamber for examination ; and should the objection be valid, the Chamber stamp shall be defaced by the Secretary ;—if, however, the objection is found to be groundless, the Secretary shall give a note to that effect, and the party objecting shall be bound by his decision.

III. That any callipers found incorrect and on which the stamp has been defaced, may be re-stamped after adjustment.

IV. That no measurements shall be held good, except such as are taken by callipers bearing the Chamber's Stamp.

V. That cotton, hemp, wool, and other screwed bales, shall be measured as follows, namely : the greatest length to be first ascertained, and then the bale to be set on either end, as the shipmaster may wish and cross measurements to be taken at the top over the lashings, excepting the knots, and as near the centre of the bale as possible. That an average of 100 bales be struck by ascertaining the actual measurement of any 10 bales, and proportionately, the Shipper selecting and measuring one and the shipmaster the other half ;—should, however any dispute or difficulty arise in the selection of bales, either party to have the option of measuring the whole quantity.

VI. That all produce subject to measurement be measured within the day on which it has been ordered to be screwed the order has been given by the shipmaster or agents of the vessel ; and that from 1st June to 15th October the same be measured at the screws ; during the remainder of the year, if required on the bunder, weather permitting. No cotton, wool, or other goods to be measured until a Custom House pass has been obtained for the same.

VII. That, in the event of the shipmaster not attending to measure at such hour as may have been appointed by him, the agent or agents of the ship do empower a person to attend on his behalf, whose sanction to the measurement shall be binding upon the shipmaster.

These schools were first opened in October 1849. They were originally taught by volunteer Teachers, members of the Society, but latterly paid Teachers have been appointed.

The schools are open from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M.

The nature of the Education imparted will best be seen from the following extract taken from the circular issued at the opening of the Schools:—"The chief attention will be given to the culture of the moral nature, under which is included the formation of habits of order, propriety, and cleanliness; and this is proposed to be effected chiefly by means of moral tales, read by the Masters, which will interest the children. In the Mental culture, every effort will be given to form habits of observation by means of lessons on familiar objects, such as animals, trees, &c., and the Society hope that in a short time they will have attached to each School a small museum and a collection of pictures, which will cultivate not only the senses but the taste. In addition to these subjects there will be taught reading, arithmetic, (at first mentally,) linear drawing and writing.

The Society, owing to the kindness of individuals, have also been able to introduce sowing and knitting into the Parsi Schools, and hope soon to be in a position to extend this branch to the Hindu Schools.

BOYS' INFANT SCHOOLS.

The Society, encouraged by the success of their Female Schools, have within the last half year opened three Boys' infant Schools, of which two are attended by Parsi and one by Hindu children; besides these another School in the Fort has been placed under their superintendence by its supporters.

Sub-Assistant Surgeons of the 3rd and 2nd Classes, eligible by length of service for promotion to the superior grade, will, however, in no instance be promoted till after re-examination by the Professors of the Grant College in the practice of Medicine, Surgery, and Midwifery, conducted with the view of ascertaining whether the Sub-Assistant Surgeons continue possessed of proficiency in these practical subjects, and whether their knowledge has kept pace with the advances of Medical Science. Act No XVI of 1851 passed 24th Dec. 1851.—Every person who receives any property knowing it to have been stolen, may be tried and punished in the place in which he shall have such property, in the place in which the party guilty of the principal felony may be tried, or in the place where he received such property.

BOMBAY CUSTOMS' ACT.

Passed 2d January, 1852.

Act No 1 of 1852. To consolidate into one act the laws relating to the Customs in the Presidency of Bombay and to amend the rules for the collection of the same (1.) Acts of the Bombay Code so far as they prescribe the levy within the Bombay Presidency of any Custom duties are repealed. (2.) But the levy of Harbour dues, special duties, town duties or Municipal taxes, shall not be abolished. (3.) The Governor may appoint one or more persons to be Commissioners for the collection and management of Customs, throughout the whole presidency with such salaries as he may deem reasonable, the persons so appointed shall hold their offices during his pleasure and shall be subject to his control. (4.) The Governor shall appoint Collectors subject to the authority of the Commissioners to such extent as he may direct. (5.) The Governor may appoint the other subordinate officers and may require from them such securities for their good conduct as may be considered necessary. (6.) The Governor may delegate the whole, or any of the powers with which he is thus invested to a Commissioner or Collector, and all officers appointed by such Commissioner shall be liable to be dismissed, suspended, or fined, to an extent not exceeding two month's pay, by the authority by which they were appointed, subject to the control of Government, or of superior authority in the customs department. (7.) Whoever obstructs any officer in the exercise of any power given by this act shall be liable to imprisonment not longer than six months or a fine not exceeding Rs 1000, or both. (8.) Any person who shall offer a bribe to a Custom house officer shall be liable to imprisonment not longer than six months or a fine not exceeding Rs. 1000, or both. (9.) No action shall lie in the Supreme Court for any thing done under this Act; but every action for wrong done in the island of Bombay shall be tried before the Revenue Judge of Bombay, and if committed in any other part of the Presidency, before the Zillah Judge, of such part, and such Judge shall award equitable damages to the party aggrieved. But if there was reasonable cause for the Act complained of, the Plaintiff shall not be entitled, beyond the restitution of the article seized, or the value thereof, to more than two annas damages, without costs. (10.) Any officer guilty of a breach of the rules prescribed by this act, shall be liable for imprisonment not exceeding two years, to fine or both. (11.) Any officer who connives at fraud to the injury of the customs revenue, shall be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, or to fine, or both. (12.) Cases in which goods are liable to confiscation and persons liable to penalty, may be adjudged by a Commissioner or collector of customs, or by a deputy or assistant collector being a justice of the peace; but the power to adjudicate confiscation shall not extend as regards a deputy collector to goods beyond the value of Rupees 1000, nor as regards an assistant collector to goods beyond the value of Rupees 100, nor shall a deputy collector impose a fine beyond Rs. 50, nor an assistant collector beyond Rs. 10. And all cases adjudicated by a deputy or assistant collector, shall be liable to revision by a collector of customs on appeal. (13.) In case any goods, vessel, or other article shall be seized, the adjudicating officer may order the same to be restored on such terms as he may think fit: and if the proprietor accepts such, he shall not maintain any action for recompense or damage on account of the seizure. (14.) Any officer authorized to adjudicate customs cases, deciding a seizure of goods to have been vexatious and unnecessary may adjudge damages to be paid to the proprietor by the defaulting officer besides ordering the immediate release of the goods; the proprietor having accepted such damages no action shall thereafter lie against the customs officer; and if the adjudicating officer decide the seizure to have been warranted but deem the penalty of confiscation unduly severe, he may mitigate the same by levying on the goods seized, any portion not less than one-tenth of their market value. (15.) Penalties except as provided for under Sec. XIII shall be determined by the officiating local magistrate, and the collector, deputy, or assistant, being a justice of the peace and authorized by his superior, may take informations and depositions on oath, or solemn declaration touching matters involving a breach of any provision of this act and if taken in the presence of the party charged with the breach, it shall be received in evidence by the magistrate as if taken before him, but the magistrate may, if he think fit, take the information or deposition afresh or take other and further depositions. (16.) In the case of any vessel having become liable to a fine or any goods being passed through the custom house having become liable to a fine, the collector may refuse port-clearance to the vessel or detain the goods until the fine be discharged. (17.) No person shall act as agent for the transaction of business in the custom house except he be licensed by the collector of customs who may require securities not exceeding Rupees 5000, and agents acting without license are subject to a fine not exceeding Rupees 500; but the clerk, servant or accredited agent of any person or firm may transact business for his master without a license. (18.) European ships having Firman privileges of the port of Surat shall not be subject to further duties than may be prescribed by their Firmans. (19.) Spirits exported at any port of the East India Company and imported at Bombay shall be liable to duty as per schedule marked A. But if the spirits be accompanied by a certificate of duty already paid to the E. I. Company, credit shall be allowed for such sum in settling the customs at the Port of Import. (21.) The Governor may direct that an anchorage toll shall be levied according to the rates specified in schedule marked C. (22) No goods mentioned in the schedules named, shall be exempted from duty except under the special orders of the Governor, but a customs officer may pass free of duty any passenger's personal baggage. The average length of passage by boat differs according to the month in which it is made, but the month in which the longest passage occurs has here been taken as the average. For marching ten miles per diem is allowed according to Art. 45, Section VI. Jameson's Code. When free passages are provided on Government Steamers, a corresponding reduction is to be made from the number of days by water. For the length of passage by the Sea Steamers see Art. 428, Section 51, Supplement to the Code. The average length of the Indus River Steamer passage from Kotree to Sukkur is nine days.

THE COURT OF DIRECTORS.

The Court of Directors consists of twenty-four Members, six of whom go out annually by rotation : they constitute what are called the House List, and are always re-elected. The only qualifications required for a Directorship, is that the candidate shall have two shares, that is, that he shall have £2000 worth of India Stock, and that he shall reside in London. The Directors receive a salary of £300 a year each. They elect their own chairman, and deputy chairman, each of whom receives £500. The charges of the India House establishment in all amount to £125,000 annually. They are elected by the Proprietors of East India Stock, of which one share of £1000 gives a vote. It requires three shares or £3000 to give two votes ; six shares to give three votes ; ten to give four votes, this being the largest number any individual can possess. Previously to 1834, votes were taken by ballot ; since then they have been given by proxy. In three contested elections previous to 1834, the average number of votes given was 1467 ;—in the three last contested elections, there has been an average number of votes that there are at present about 1770 voters :—2350 is the total number of votes that could be given. In the twenty years betwixt 1814 and 1834, 26 directors were elected, seven of whom had never been resident in India. From '34 to '52, 21 Directors have been elected, of whom Mr. Martin Tucker Smith is the only one that has not resided in India. There are always candidates in the field in the prospect of a vacancy. A canvas often extends over a period of six or seven years, the candidate soliciting votes for a second or third election that may occur in case he should be unsuccessful in the first : a canvas is said to cost from £2000 to £6000. The Directors enjoy the whole patronage of appointments to India, their nominations to the higher offices being under control of the Crown. In the eighteen years betwixt 1834 and 1852 there were 642 civil appointments made, or an average of 35 annually ; there were 5146 military, or 286 annually, 798 medical appointments, or 44 annually, 168 Indian Navy appointments, or nine annually. When the number of appointments for the year is determined upon, it is divided into 28 portions ; two of these go to the chairman, two to the deputy chairman, and two are allowed by courtesy to the President of the Board of Control ; the arrangement was made when Lord Melville was chairman half a century ago. One of the remaining 22 shares is assigned to each of the Directors. The Court appoints Members of Council, excepting the Legislative Member at Calcutta, general officers of the staff of the Company's army, the Superintendent of the Indian Navy, the Master Attendants at Calcutta and Madras, the law officers of Government, and Government Chaplains at the Presidency, the Assay-Masters, and deputy Assay Masters of all the Mints, who may, or may not, belong to the service, but require an Assay certificate from some Mint at Home ; and the Astronomer at Madras, and the Oculists at the presidencies. The observatory Bombay was a Court's appointment, until 1847, when it was made over to Government ; it has no salary attached to it. The Court appoints Governors-General and Local, and Commanders-in-Chief, with the Legislative Member of Council, and the Bishops subject to the sanction of the Crown. Should a vacancy in any of these offices not be filled up within two months of its being known at Home, the Crown may fill it up ; the nominee of the crown not being subject to the recall of the court. Should a nomination distasteful to the crown be made, it is supposed that the court would be allowed to make a second, or a third nomination : no case of the kind has ever occurred : the power of the crown is absolute, and unquestionable. The Court of Directors can recall or dismiss any of its servants from the Governor General down, without assigning any reasons ; a similarly independent power belongs to the Board of Control, and they can cause officers removed by the local authorities to be reinstated under sanction of the Board. Copies of all dispatches and documents received from India by the Directors are immediately forwarded to the Board, and no reply or order can be sent out by the Court without the sanction of the Board, which can compel the Court to forward or withhold any thing they please. To save time, an unofficial draft, called a previous communication, of what is intended to be sent, is forwarded to the Board. This is returned with remarks, and a despatch prepared accordingly: the despatch itself is next prepared, and submitted to the Board's revision, and then sent to India in the name of the Court, however much it may in its altered form be opposed to its views. The Board are authorised to prepare and forward despatches such as are desired, and which the directors might themselves have had no idea of transmitting; or the president may prepare any despatch he thinks fit, and if they refuse to send it, forward it on his own authority, which is independent and absolute.

The Court of Directors is divided into three sections, called committees; the first manages the financial department, the second the political and military, and the third the administrative and judicial department. Each committee consists of eight members. There is also a secret committee, consisting of the Chairman, Deputy Chairman, and President of the Board of Control whose business it is to consider all the more important questions respecting the declaration of war, the conclusion of peace, and the management of other political negotiations, which occur as frequently in India as in Europe. The Secret Committee dispatches whatever business they like, and take up in the name of the Court, but without the directors knowing anything whatever about the matter: no power anywhere exists of interfering with or bringing to light their proceedings. The president of the Board of Control now reigns supreme. Certain general questions, especially such as regard considerable financial disbursements, must, according to an Act of Parliament, be submitted to the final decision of the proprietors.

The following is a series of notices of the lives, occupations, and antecedents of the directors for the present year: the election over in April.

Three admirable letters were written by him to Lord Palmerston in 1839, and one to Lord Aberdeen in 1841 on the frightful insanity of the Afghan War, and disastrous consequences which must flow from it. A copy of the letter fell into the hands of Mr Montgomery Martin, and was published by him in the Colonial Magazine in 1841, just as Sir Henry's predictions were being realized. See Colonial Magazine, 1841. Debate at India House, January 1842.—Asiatic Journal, vol., xxxvii., page 19. Bombay Times, February 1842.—One year to serve. Political and Military departments.

Resident at Nagpore 1817 to 1826. Brilliant career under Lord Lake, during the Maharatta war. "Thornton's history of India," vols. iii. and iv. His determination to maintain the Residency brought on the severe battle and secured the glorious victory of Seetabuldee, 26th May 1817. The Governor General complimented him on the signal merit of his conduct in the transactions which succeeded and preceded the battle; on the extraordinary temper, firmness, and prudence which marked his conduct in the anxious crisis preceding the attack, and the circumspection and vigilance with which he provided for every event likely to occur. Mr Canning spoke of him as affording a singular instance of the happy union of military qualifications with diplomatic skill and a courage and constancy conspicuously displayed under the most trying circumstances. He received the grand cross of the Bath in 1828—a late but well merited tribute to his deserts.—Asiatic Journal, 1838, vol. xxvii., page 48. Blacker's History of the Maharatta War. The following analysis of the list will make the matter still more clear :—

Out of thirty Directors—twenty-four active or in office and six in reserve just out one year and ready next year to come in again,—we have seventeen members of the covenanted civil or military service, all of whom had attained places of eminence—all save Captain Eastwick—enjoyed at least a quarter of a century of experience in active and eminently responsible employment in India, and two-thirds of whom held the highest and most laborious and responsible appointments open to them. We have next three Captains of the East India Company's mercantile navy—a service second to none in the world save the royal navy of England in power, splendour and efficiency, consisting of ships manned, officered, and equipped, like men-of-war, and paid as no service at sea ever was before or will be again; two-thirds of the whole Directors having served the Government of India in which they now share. We have next a couple of Calcutta barristers of eminence and fortune,—Sir J. W. Hogg and Mr. Macnaghten;—a China and a Madras merchant,—Mr. Dent and Sir Robert Campbell—heads of houses that could purchase a German principedom, and leave capital enough to spare for the purposes of commerce, and who have exercised ten times the influence on the destinies of their race, and done a hundred times as much for their advantage, as many a continental prince or duke; and following these, Mr. Wigram, a citizen of London of credit and renown, who entered the India House close on half a century ago. Then we have Messrs. Masterman, Muspratt, and Mills—three distinguished bankers, the first being the representative of the first money corporation and most distinguished political constituency in existence—at the head of the poll for the city of London when the Premier of England was at the bottom of the successful candidates. We have not had leisure to trace out the antecedents of Mr. John Harvey Astell, Mr. Martin Tucker Smith M. P., or Mr. Russel Elicce, but they belong to the same general class as the rest. There are two divisions of the Company's service wholly unrepresented in the India House, and we look in vain over the list of the present or any former year for the past quarter of a century for one medical man or officer of the Indian navy.

“ THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS FOR THE MANAGEMENT OF THE AFFAIRS OF INDIA,”—

Commonly called “ The India Board,” or the “ Board of Control,”—was brought into existence in 1784 by the India Bill of Mr. Pitt, introduced immediately after the measure of Mr. Fox had been passed by the House of Commons and rejected by a vast majority of the House of Lords during the coalition with Lord North. The East India Company, which had little more than a century before aspired to nothing higher than the character of a mercantile corporation occupying factories for the custodiation and sale of their goods by permission of the Native Chiefs,—were now rapidly becoming the masters of a vast empire. Their wealth and prosperity as merchants had at first awakened the envy and cupidity of the chiefs around who had bound themselves to protect them, and compelled the seizure of the country to provide for their own protection against the intrigues or assaults of their former protectors. An assault once repelled, as a natural consequence led to the subjection of the assailant, and a succession of victories while acting on the defensive carried them on from point to point till the germ of supreme dominion began to develope itself. No provision at the outset had been made for this undreamt of change of circumstances; and such throughout Europe was the fame of their conquests—such the amount of the wealth acquired by the servants of the East India Company—that the Crown, by which they had been originally incorporated as traders, felt bound to interest itself further in their affairs when they became transformed into conquerors and invaders of other countries, and the rulers of the magnificent dominions even at this time owning their authority, and which were daily being encreased. The constitution of the Board was at the outset vague and general: it was to consist of six members, amongst whom were to be the secretary of state and chancellor of the exchequer. They were not to meddle with the commercial affairs of the court or of its servants, but were to "check, superintend, and control all acts, operations, and concerns, which in any wise related to the civil and military government of the territories or possessions of the United Company in the East Indies.*" The power of the Court of Directors was at the same time encreased in relation to that of the Court of Proprietors, which was greatly diminished. A secret committee, consisting of the president of the board of control, the chairman or deputy chairman or senior member of the court of directors, was next instituted,—to save the publicity, often found to be inconvenient, incident to discussions in open court involving peace and war or the fate of kingdoms. By one clause it was rendered imperative on the court to obey the board in all things: by another, introduced on the second reading of the bill, the board might in cases of secrecy, of which it constituted itself the sole judge, frame and transmit orders to India without the inspection of the Court of Directors. "Oftwo bodies," says Mill, [History, vol. iv., p. 489] "when one has the right of unlimited command, the other is entitled to unlimited obedience, the latter has no power whatever but just as much or as little as the former is pleased to allow." "The powers of the board convert the Company's courts into agents of its will." "The real sole governing power of India is the board of control, and it only makes use of the Court of Directors as an instrument or a subordinate office for the management of details and the performance of business for the convenience of the superior power." These ill-digested and ill-understood arrangements continued little altered till 1813.† About the end of the century, while Mr. Dundas—afterwards Lord Melville—was chairman of the board, an arrangement was made which has ever since continued in force—that nominations to Indian appointments equal to those possessed by any two of the directors, should, as a matter of courtesy, be assigned to the board—a source of much political influence to the statesman who for nearly half a century held the destinies of Scotland in his hands. The commissioners of the board of control were originally an unsalaried body: the chairman like the rest held a separate office under the Crown,—and the allowances received from this were all the emoluments he enjoyed. The board has since 1813 been authorised to draw from the India House £26,000 a year to meet all charges, including £2000 for the president, £1500 for the secretary; in 1835 an assistant secretaryship of £1200 a year was abolished, and of late years £24000 has sufficed to meet all the charges of the board. By the Act of 1813 the board was made to consist of the lord president of council, the privy seal, the first lord of the treasury, the three principal secretaries of state, and the chancellor of the exchequer, besides the president, who alone of all the members receives a salary. It requires three or more commissioners to form a board, but in point of practice the president takes the whole duties and responsibilities on himself, not deeming it requisite to consult any of his colleagues in the cabinet in anything, or to take council with or listen to the Court of Directors.‡ The board never meets at all. The board receives duplicates of all papers of all descriptions, whether important or insignificant, sent from India to the India House,—and no reply or draft of any sort can be sent by the court without its sanction,—the orders of the board being in all things imperative on the court. To avoid delay and save appearances, the chairman of the court sends a draft of the despatches proposed to be forwarded, termed "a previous communication:" the board makes what remarks on this is deemed requisite, and the despatch is framed accordingly. Should the board change its mind, the despatch is altered; or should the court fail to frame a despatch comporting with the wishes of the board, the board frames one and directs its transmission; if not forwarded to India within a fortnight, the board can compel its transmission,—all governors, commanders-in-chief, and other servants of the Company, being ordered by law to obey the board; which, however rarely it may disagree with the court, as disagreement under the “previous communication” system is not very often to be looked for, is absolute and irresponsible in all things in the government of India,—with this reservation, that it cannot raise the salaries of the Company’s officers. The board has the power of dismissing or recalling any officer in the Company’s employ, but cannot prevent the Court from exercising a similar power. Since 1834 it seems in general to have stretched its power to the fullest extent. No one knows which of the two co-ordinate authorities is primarily responsible for the origination of the unwise measures with which India has been saddled from home: the Board has the power of unlimited check and control—the Court of itself is powerless: the suggestion of the Affghan war and sanction of the Scinde conquest we know to have been exclusively the work of Cannon Row,—and to the same quarter is attributed the delays in our railways, and the obstruction of measures for the general improvement of India, so constantly and justly complained of. The delay occasioned by the inharmonious operations of the two bodies, and the total irresponsibility that ensues, is reason enough for the extinction of the one or other of them. The board since 1813 has cost India a million sterling in salaries alone: the expenses of the India House amounting to about £125,000 annually, or four times that of the Board, have within the same period exceeded five millions. The following list of the presidents and secretaries of the board, with the chairman and deputy chairman of the India House, will show from which of the two authorities good government for India is most to be expected. The only pretence for their joint maintenance is the deliberation they are imagined to ensure,—but delay by no means implies deliberation—a paper laying a twelvemonth unopened before the president gives no assurance of mature counsel: were the checks of which the India House boasts as securing good government to be admitted into H. M.’s administration, the affairs of the nation would stand still—they would bring the wealthiest joint-stock copartnership in the world into the bankrupt list in a twelvemonth. Who would not prefer the speed of the locomotive, with all its dangers, to the snail’s-pace of the coal-waggon with its safety? Such are the two home divisions of the Government of India—the one competent but powerless, the other incompetent but omnipotent!

Since 1820, then, we have had as Presidents of the Board of Control—Mr Canning, from 1818 to 1820 : Mr. Bathurst, from 1821 to 1822 ; Mr. Wynne to 1829 ; Lord Ellenborough in 1829-30, and again in 1835, and for a short time in 1841 ; Mr. Grant from 1831 to 1834 ; Sir J. C. Hobhouse from 1834 to 1842, and again from 1847 to 1852 ; Lord Fitzgerald De Vesci 1843 ; Lord Ripon from 1844 to 1847 ; and Mr Harris from April 1852 to the present time,—or nine gentlemen in all in the course of twenty-two years. Or, taking into account Lord Ellenborough's three and Sir J. C. Hobhouse's two returns to office, we have had fourteen changes in thirty-two years time in the supreme government of India,—not one of the gentlemen at the head of the department ever having been in the East or in any way whatever connected with or in a position to study its affairs,—none of them having ever before their appointment exhibited any predilection or aptitude for the study of oriental literature or politics. There have scarcely been fewer changes in the department of the secretariate than in that of president : we have had - 1, Mr. T. P. Courtenay ; 2, Mr. J. S. Worthy ; 3, Mr. Hyde Villiers ; 4, Messrs. R. Gordon and Stewart Mackenzie conjointly ; 5, Messrs. Gordon and Vernon Smith ; 6, Lord Seymour and Mr. W. Clay ; 7, Messrs. Bingham Barry and J. E. Tennant ; 8, Lords Jocelyn and Mahon ; 9, Messrs Byng and T. Wyse ; 10, Messrs. Thomas Wyse and G. C. Lewis ; 11, Messrs. Wilson and John Elliot ; 12, Mr. baillie ; or twelve secretarial changes in thirty-two years, eleven in twenty-three years, Mr. Courtenay having been nine years in office,—the same disqualifications for office attaching to the presidents attaching with still greater force to the secretaries, who with the exception of Lords Jocelyn and Mahon, the former of whom was for some years in India and China, the latter being long well known as a public man,—have not before their nomination been like their principals, men known at all in public life : and this ever fluctuating body of utterly incompetent men—incompetent for the stupendous tasks assigned to them by the very shortness and uncertainty of their tenure of office, hold the destinies of India absolutely in their hands, treating with contempt the idea of taking counsel with their colleagues in the India House, four-fifths of whom have spent a quarter of a century at least in India, and made its affairs the study of their lives holding office as directors as long as health and faculties allow. Were the Board of Control merely an useless body, it might very well be asked why twenty-four thousand pounds of the revenues of India should be yearly thrown away in their maintenance : that they are particularly mischievous, the Afghan and other wars which have since last Charter Act was passed, cost the country, according to Mr. Melville's showing, thirty millions sterling, and for which they alone are responsible, clearly show. And yet this most monstrous system of mechanism is threatened to be maintained for twenty years longer as it at present stands,—no one gainsaying it !*

* The following very admirable remarks by MIH were written before the mischievous influences exercised by the board of control within the last twenty years were dreamt of :—

" 1. Few men will contend that the lord, or other person, whose power, or powerful kinsman, may recommend him for President of the Board of Control, is more likely to possess knowledge or talent, than the Court of Directors. That which the practical state of the British constitution renders the presiding principle in directing the choice of men for offices wherein much either of money or power is to be enjoyed, affords a much greater chance for ignorance than knowledge. Of all the men who receive education, the men who have the most of parliamentary influence are the least likely to have any unusual portion of talent ; and as for appropriate knowledge, or an acquaintance in particular with Indian affairs, it cannot be expected that the Board of Control should ever except by a temporary and rare contingency, be fit to be compared with the Court of Directors ; besides it would have been easy, by laying open the direction to men of all descriptions, and by other simple expedients, to increase exceedingly the chance for talent in the Court of Directors.

11. If the Board of Control then is more likely than the Court of Directors to govern India

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

THE Government of India at large is conducted by the Governor-General, who is nominated by the Court of Directors under sanction of the Crown, and is in reality a nominee of the Cabinet of the day,—never a member of the Company's service. He is appointed for five years at a time—he receives £5,000 as an outfit, and a salary of £25,000 a year. The Commander-in-Chief of India is appointed in like manner, with an outfit of £2,500, military allowances of £8,000 a year, and a salary, if appointed a Councillor by the Court of Directors, which he always is, of £10,000 a year, or £18,000 in all,—nearly double of the emoluments of all offices enjoyed by the Duke of Wellington, and exactly three times the well, the advantage must arise from its situation in regard to motives : motives of two sorts ; motives to application ; and motives to probity. Both the Board of Control, and the Court of Directors, are destitute of these motives to a high degree ; and it is a matter of some nicety to make it appear on which side the deficiency is most extraordinary.

" Motives to application, on the part of the Board of Control, can be discovered none. And application, accordingly, such as deserves the name a careful pursuit of knowledge, with incessant meditation of the ends and the means, the Board has not even thought of bestowing. If Mr. Dundas be quoted as an objection, it is only necessary to explain the circumstances of the case. The mind of Mr. Dundas was active and meddling, and he was careful to exhibit the appearance of a great share in the government of India ; but what was it, as President of the Board of Control, that he ever did ? He presented, as any body might have presented, the Company's annual budget, and he engrossed an extraordinary share of their patronage. But I know not any advice which he ever gave, for the government of India, that was not either very obvious, or wrong.

" The institution of the Board of Control, as it gave no motives to application in the members of that Board, so it lessened prodigiously the motives to application in the Court of Directors. Before the existence of the Board of Control, the undivided reputation of good measures, the undivided ignominy of bad, redounded to the Court of Directors. The great sanction of public opinion acted upon them with undivided energy. Men are most highly stimulated to undergo the pains of labour, when they are most sure of reaping the fruits of labour ; most surely discouraged from labour, when they are least sure of reaping its advantages ; but taking pains to understand the grounds of action, and laboriously to frame measures adapted, to them, the Court of Directors, before their subjugation to the Board of Control, were sure of reaping the fruits of their labours in the execution of their schemes. What motive, on the other hand, to the laborious consideration of measures of government, remained, when all the fruits of knowledge and of wisdom might be rejected by the mere caprice of the President of the Board of Control.

" Such is the sort of improvement, a retrograde improvement, in respect to knowledge or talent, and in respect to application, which the expedient of a Board of Control introduced into the government of India.

It only remains that we examine it in relation to probity ; and inquire, whether the men who compose it are subject to the action of stronger, or weaker motives, to the exercise of official probity, than the Court of Directors.

" There are two sorts of motives, on which, in regard to probity, the conduct of every man depends by the one he is attracted to virtue ; by the other repelled from it.

" In regard to attracting motives, very little is provided to operate either upon the Board of Control, or the Court of Directors. The sanction of public opinion, the credit of good, and the discredit of bad conduct, is one source, and it does not appear that there is any other. In the first place, it ought to be remembered, as a law of human nature, that the influence of this sanction is weakened, or more truly annihilated, to any important purpose, by division. Whatever might have been its force, upon either the Board of Control, or the Court of Directors, acting alone, it is infinitely diminished when they act both together, and by sharing, go far to destroy responsibility.

" For the salutary influence of public opinion, both the Board of Control, and the Court of Directors, are unfavourably situated : but it will probably without much dispute, be allowed, that the Court of Directors is the least unfavourably situated. So long as they acted by themselves, the Court of Directors were exposed, without shelter, to the public eye. The President of the Board of Control is the mere creature of the minister, existing by his will, amount received by him as Commander-in-Chief of the British Army.* The Council consists of five members, including the Commander-in-Chief, each of whom receives £10,000 a year; two of these belong to the civil service, one is a military man—all four are appointed by the Court of Directors: the fifth or Law Member is appointed by the Crown, his sole function being the preparation of drafts of Acts for the Legislative Council,—a body consisting of the same members as the Supreme Council of India, but at which the Law Member has a right to speak and vote. There are six Secretaries to Government, whose functions will fall to be explained presently.

The Government of Bengal consists of a Governor—with a salary of £10,000,—who is either the Governor-General or Senior Member of Council. He has no Councillors, and only one Secretary and two under Secretaries, who with sufficient establishments seem adequate to all the work proposed to them.

Madras has a Governor, appointed like the Governor-General, but who may be, and often is, a servant of the East India Company, with a salary of £12,000 per year, and an outfit of £2,500: the Commander-in-Chief, always a Queen's officer, with military pay of £5,000 a year, an outfit of £2,000 and a salary as Member of Council of £6,000: and two Civil Members of Council, with salaries of £6,000 a year each: together with a large Secretariate establishment.

The Bombay Government is in all respects the same in point of organization and allowances as that of Madras.

The Government of the North West Provinces consists of a Deputy Governor at £8,400 a year, and £500 table allowances, with two Secretaries, but without any Council. The Government, like that of Bengal, is considered immediately subordinate to the Supreme Government of India.

confounded with the other instruments of his administration, sheltered by his power, and, but little regarded as the proper object either of independent praise, or of independent blame.

“With regard to motives repelling from probity in other words, the temptations to improbity, to which the Board of Control and the Court of Directors are respectively exposed; the following propositions are susceptible of proof: That almost all the motives of the deleterious sort, to which the Court of Directors stand exposed, are either the same, or correspond, with those to which the Board of Control is exposed; That those to which the Court of Directors are exposed, and the Board of Control is not exposed, are of inconsiderable strength. That those to which the Board of Control is exposed, and the Court of Directors are not exposed are of great and uncommon strength. And that by the conjoint action of the two bodies, the deleterious motives of the one do not destroy those of the other, but combine with them, and increase the power of the whole.

“It is to be observed, that neither the Board of Control, nor the Court of Directors have any direct interest in the misgovernment of India. Their ambition is not gratified by the unnecessary wars, nor their pockets filled by the oppressions and prodigalities of the Indian rulers. In as far as the Directors are proprietors of India stock, and in as far as good government has a tendency to increase the surplus produce of India, and hence the dividend upon stock, the Court of Directors have an interest in the good government of India. The Board of Control, as such, has necessarily no such interest; in this respect therefore, it is inferior to the Court of Directors.”—Mill's History of India, Vol. iv, pp. 490-94.

The affairs of the Punjaub are conducted by a Council of Administration consisting of a President and two Members, with two Secretaries: the Government seems to have been admirably managed by them, but the arrangement is probably only provisional.

To return to details. The Governor-General and Members of Council, supreme and subordinate, hold office for a period of five years, which may however be extended at the pleasure of the Court of Directors, without limit,—but these extensions are of rare occurrence. The Governor-General is entitled to carry any measure through on his own responsibility, however much opposed his views may be to those of the members of council: so are the Governors of the minor Presidencies;—each of the conflicting parties recording their reasons for the conclusions at which they have arrived. These are referred for the consideration of the home authorities,—who may in these as in all other matters confirm or reverse as they think proper. The Governor-General is specially entrusted with all powers of Governor-in-Council on proceeding to the Upper Provinces,—a resolution to this effect being passed and published by the Legislative Council just before his departure. He is attended in his peregrinations by any one of the Secretaries to Government whom he may select, and by his personal staff. All orders issued by him have the same force as if issued by the Governor-General in Council. The chief functions performed during his absence by the Supreme Council of India are those of Legislation; but the Governor-General requires to add his signature to every Act before it passes into Law. When any one of the ordinary members of Council are absent, besides the Commander-in-Chief, who is hardly ever present, the work of legislation stands still: this condition of affairs has of late years frequently obtained for months and months together. The civil members of council are always elected from Bengal: the military member from any of the presidencies—the late General Morrison belonged to the Madras army. It is allowed on all hands that it would be most important to have one representative at least from Bombay and Madras at the Council Board of the Supreme Government. As soon as a vacancy in the Council has been filled up, the Court for the most part appoint a provisional member ready to take his place at the council board on an emergency, or to succeed in case of an absolute vacancy. He receives no salary, and has no duties irrespective of those of his office: and he continues to hold the office he held previously, whatever that may be, and to be promoted according to the rules and customs of the service.* This equally applies to all the governments.

Lord Ellenborough introduced some innovations of importance into the arrangements of the secretariate—those referring to the methods of despatching business being very great improvements on the plans previously existing. The

The manner in which business is dispatched by the Bengal Government is explained by Sir H. T. Maddock and Mr. Bird before the Lords' Committee : it is probable that details are omitted by them we are unable to supply : unless this be the case, their system of management seems very inferior indeed to that obtaining at Bombay—under any circumstances our own seems preferable. Papers being sent in to the secretary to whose department they belong, are by him circulated to the Governor-General or President and members of Council in turn :—the party first receiving them minutes his opinions on the back of them, occasionally also minuting the steps he recommends to be taken regarding them : the councillors follow in succession, subscribing their initials, or minuting their views should they differ from those already stated. The whole are then returned to the office of the secretary from which they came, and are by him brought before council for discussion, when they are finally disposed of. Until 1843 it was the custom to discuss every paper before council : Lord Ellenborough introduced the judicious plan of holding those matters settled on which the councillors had out of doors been unanimous, the secretary acting on the views they had recorded : only where there was a want of unanimity, or where papers were wished to be reserved for consideration, was it deemed necessary to bring the question before the council board at all. It does not appear from this that the amount of deliberation, consideration and study, is necessarily ensured that is set forth as the chief reason for the maintenance of councils ;—on the contrary, it would appear that the Governor-General alone—that is, we presume, the chief secretary—is called upon to study or examine the questions before Government, and where there is, as Sir H. Maddock admits to the committee, a prima facie case made out, other members give themselves little more trouble about the matter—they have faith, and they assent. The Secretaries to Government enjoy £5,120, the Under Secretaries £1,500.

The Government of Bombay consists of the following members :—the Governor and Commander-in-chief, appointed by the Court of Directors under sanction of the Board of Control (the first nominated in fact by Her Majesty's Ministers,)—and three Members of Council. The Councillors, who are selected by the court without the interference of the Board, are very often chosen from the Secretariate, the members of which body are all selected by the local Government from the elite of the service. The Council meets once a week, in the Town Hall, generally on Wednesdays, although all their proceedings are dated from Bombay Castle—the fortress close by, which they never enter ! The Governors of Bombay have for the last ten or fifteen years been in the habit of spending April, May, part of October, and most of November, at the Hills of Mahabuleshwur—a sanitary station established by Sir J. Malcolm in the year 1830, which has an elevation of 4,500 feet above the level of the sea. It is nearly uninhabitable during the rains, in consequence of the enormous quantity of rain—of from 240 to 300 inches—which falls during the months of June, July, August and September :—these periods of the year the Governor spends at Poona. He is during these months of absence from the presidency accompanied by his private and military secretaries, his private surgeon, and two or three aides-de-camp, together with the military secretary to Government, and one of the civil secretaries—generally the chief. The Commander-in-Chief for the most part follows the footsteps of the Governor, accompanied by the general staff of the army,—that is, the Adjutant General, the Quartermaster-General, the Judge Advocate General, the Deputy Adjutant General and the Inspector of Hospitals Queen's Troops, with a considerable portion of their establishments ; the duties of office being in their absence performed by their deputies, or by gentlemen acting in their room.

The Secretariate consists of four principal Secretaries, with their Deputies, namely those of the Political and Secret, the Revenue, the General and Judicial, and the Military and Marine Departments. Each Secretary receives 3,000 rupees per month, and the Chief Secretary 3,500 rupees: the three first-mentioned are always civilians, and the fourth an officer of the army. The Persian department formerly comprehended in the general department, was separated from it in the year 1847, and was conferred upon Mr Claud Erskine, who was in 1852 succeeded by Mr Richardson.

The duties of the Secretariate consist in receiving all letters and petitions addressed to the Government, in preparing replies to these and transmitting them to the proper quarters, in making such communications as come initially from the Government itself, in keeping records of proceedings and preparing reports for transmission home. The papers sent in to Government are addressed to the secretary of the department to which they are supposed to belong. By him they are handed to his deputy, who enters their date, name, and title, and occasionally an abstract of their contents, in a general register, in which is also set down any information the records supply on the subject to which they refer. This is returned to the Secretary with all the papers in the archives of Government bearing upon the case, or abstracts of these if required ; when it is apparent or probable that the opinions of other parties will be requisite, these are requested beforehand, and are transmitted, for the sake of dispatch, along with the other documents, for the consideration of the Governor and the Members of Council,—the secretary having previously minuted his own opinions on the whole matter. The documents are examined by the Governor and Members of Council in succession ;—those approving the view taken by the secretary, attaching their initials thereto,—those dissenting, writing their own views in a minute. Should there be no difference of opinion, the secretary prepares a reply on the papers being returned to him. When any doubt or difficulty occurs, the secretary writes the word "refer" on the back of the documents, which are then referred for discussion at the Council Board, the opinions of the Council being endorsed, according to which the Secretary prepares a reply. From this it will be seen that the great bulk of the labour devolves on the secretaries, and is performed without the walls of the council chamber. Each of the Secretaries has one day a week assigned to him for waiting on the governor at his house and discussing with him matters of moment.

The last portion of the avocations of the secretariate consists of their duties after everything has been arranged. A list of letters, with their dates and numbers, and an abstract of their contents, is entered in a record called the minute book. The inward letters on which resolutions have been passed, are set down first in the list ; then any report which may have been received thereupon in consequence of reference for opinion : next are placed any minutes on the subject members of council may have made ; and lastly, the communications sent out expressive of the views of Government. When an inward letter has not been reported on, and there are no minutes to be recorded, it is copied in the record book with the reply to it. All letters replied to or issued from the secretaries' office on a given day, are noted as coming within the proceedings of that day. All letters are numbered as they are entered, commencing with New-Year's Day, carrying the numbers on in succession throughout the year. The minute book is subscribed by the members of council, as certifying its correctness.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWIXT ENGLAND AND INDIA. THE CONNECTING LINK.

HAVING already explained the machinery of the Government of India as it exists in England, and also as it exists in India itself, the mode in which the two departments are connected together comes next to be considered. It will be found that nothing can be more perfect than the method of communication and the connection between them, but it has this fault that for the sake of security it is made so complex and cumbrous that no amount of industry could serve to render it effective : and it is consequently found that, although the home division of the Government of India is most fully informed of every thing that passes here, they are often not aware of the information in their possession, or cannot make use of it in sufficient time to render it of value to them. The principle of supporting the authorities and not meddling with acts accomplished however objectionable, would be fatal to the whole system were it otherwise ; the views of the Home Government go for nothing, however elaborately recorded, with a man who dares to disregard them. The mistake appears to rest in the supposition that a country can be managed, or business carried on, by purely mechanical means and without the intervention of intellect and integrity ; and accordingly the means taken to supply the possible want of these, which in reality are rarely found deficient, have interrupted the exercise of capacities and virtues which they had contemplated doing without. It must be recollected to begin with, that the Home authorities initiate nothing except perhaps war,—that the commencement of everything takes place in India, and the rest comes in the shape of permission or reply. Each of the Governments of India prepare a diary of proceedings for the use of the Court of Directors :—this comprises a full and complete copy of all letters, documents, and resolutions, of Government, of which an abstract merely is given in the minute book already referred to. They are copied at full in the same order as that in which they appear, and are subscribed by the members of Council. The minute book is sent to England monthly or quarterly, accompanied by a minute and elaborate index. The diary is forwarded by the Cape, as being too bulky for overland transmission. The records from all parts of India weigh many tons, and arriving as they do in cartloads, and referring to matters mostly already disposed of, it is impossible they should ever be read. The Act of 1833 directed that the Supreme Government in India should be furnished with copies of the proceedings of the minor Governments. The Governor-General has dispensed with this, and is content with an outline.

The index is in itself a most elaborate document, referring back to all papers and proceedings on each subject entered in succession. It is not merely a catalogue of names, but contains in itself an outline of all proceedings alphabetically arranged.

The despatches sent home are of three descriptions : 1, special letters ; 2, general letters ; and 3rdly, general replies.

A special letter is forwarded on each particular subject when the proceedings regarding it are ready for report ; and this is accompanied by copies of all papers pertaining to it, duly catalogued and made up in the order prescribed by the Court. 2.—General letters embrace a multitude of matters of lesser note :—these are accompanied not by complete copies of papers alluded to, but by extracts of them or outlines of the matter in hand. These are required by the Court to be furnished monthly or quarterly as may be found convenient. 3rd,—What are called general replies are letters in reply to dispatches from home, in which these are answered severally and in order, and in a form similar to that observed with the Court's dispatches to Government when copied in double column for retention as records. The whole of the papers of Government, after having been examined and arranged alphabetically, are put up together under the various heads to which they belong.

As happens in cases where a vast quantity of superfluous work is undertaken in order to attain a degree of security not attainable by such means,—while a vast deal that might have been left undone with advantage, is performed—that which was most useful of all is omitted. In a despotic government such as we must always have in India : nothing is so important as the appointment of the best men that can be secured to office : measures here are nothing of themselves—it is the men who make the measures that are everything, and the most important therefore of all the records would have been a register of applications for employment, with a full account of the grounds on which the candidates based their claims for office and the reasons of the patron for compliance,—these being indexed and arranged and circulated for remark like the rest,—the patron being punishable as guilty of corruption when he acts on personal motives and not with a single view to the good of the state.

We cannot see that secrecy is at all desirable in nine-tenths of the proceedings of Government,—but it has been seen that with this cumbrous and complex system of record it is not attainable : the only things kept secret by Government are those no one cares to learn. We do not at all think that it would be expedient to throw open either the Council room or Court at Leadenhall Street to the world while business was in progress, but the two difficulties might be very easily reconciled. Why not publish all the records as described, just as they are prepared for the Court? The publishing of five hundred copies of diaries, journals, private correspondence, reports, minutes, revisions, indices and all, would cost less money than it requires to have them transcribed ; and then every member of the Court of Directors and Board of Control—every one connected with or belonging to the Indian Government,—and every one in short who thought the volumes worth purchasing and perusing, would have the means of studying every subject at leisure that had ever come before Government at all, and assisting the authorities with advice and information of which they might avail themselves or not as it seemed proper to them whenever this appeared desirable. The Secretariate department at Leadenhall Street costs £90,000 annually—that in India about half as much,—or £150,000 a year spent on penmanship : why this at Bombay rates of printing would afford four hundred folio volumes annually of five hundred pages each—reading enough for the most studious for the next half score of years to come.*

The various dispatches received from the Court of Directors are, on their arrival, sent round for the inspection of the Governor and Members of Council. On their return they are copied, leaving half the sheet as a margin. In this margin the proceeding of Government to which each para belongs is entered: so that this paper as it now appears, contains at once paragraph by paragraph the reference by the Government and the Court's reply. In this state they are once more forwarded to the Members of the Government for their approval, and on their return the letters and orders founded on them are prepared and dispatched. We are not sufficiently enlightened to go farther into particulars, but we believe that the whole details of the Secretariate are conducted with the most elaborate system, method and order.

We cannot enter with the same minuteness into the details accompanying the reception of Indian documents at home. On their reaching the India House we believe a catalogue raisonné is prepared of them and lithographed for the use of the Directors, and with the perusal of this we should imagine a considerable proportion of them would rest content. By no possibility can it be imagined that such enormous masses, such ship loads almost, of manuscript as those referred to, can be read and examined in London with the care it deserves; nor is there the slightest reason why it should, provided it is assumed that men of integrity and intelligence are employed to manage affairs on the spot, — and in the absence of these there is no mechanical contrivance which the wit of man constantly floating about.* And we believe nothing could be more easy with all their vigilance than to evade or violate the orders of the Court were such a thing desired. Betwixt 1842 and 1844 Acts of Parliament, and orders and resolutions from home, were treated as piecrust—only to be broken,—and no heed was ever paid to the matter.

The grand reform required in all these things is simplification—with regard to the proceedings of the Government in India, nine-tenths of the correspondence might be dispensed with, or only attended to for the purpose of registration. If India is to be governed in London as it is now, why have any local Government at all, when the Secretariate clearly does all the work? An answer from London might at present be obtained in less time than is taken to screw a reply out of Bombay Castle!

It must be remembered that the two Local Governments, costing betwixt them some eight or ten lakhs annually, dare not spend above Rs 10,000 on any public matter whatever, and cannot confer a salary of two rupees without the sanction of the Supreme Government!—that the Governments supreme and subordinate profess to hang on the word of Leadenhall Street; and that Leadenhall Street dare not lift a little finger without the leave of Cannon Row!

We have already exposed the childish but it seems indispensable cumbrances of “previous communications by which” harmony betwixt the Board of Control and India House are secured. “My darling,” said a doting mother to a spoilt daughter, “you must really learn to do what I bid you at all ovents before people: I let you have your own way at home, but really before people you must promise to be obedient.” Well mama, I will promise to do what you bid me: but then, you must promise not to ask me to do anything but what I would like to do at any rate,” was the reply. “We mean to send you,” says the Chairman, “a despatch like the draft I enclose: tell us what you think of the previous communication.” “Oh,” says the president, “just strike out the first half and alter all the rest, and it will do nicely.” This is duly attended to, and a despatch framed accordingly, with which of course Cannon Row is

* The following from the Friend of India, is well worthy of publication.—Mr. James Melvill stated in his evidence that this statement comprehends a period of 16 years of actual account from 1834-35 to 1849-50 inclusive, and also the estimate for 1850-51. In four of the 16 years there was a surplus of revenue over expenditure, and in the other twelve years there was a deficiency content,—and then the triumphs of harmony are proclaimed. It must be remembered that according to the published accounts the India Board draws just £30,000 a year from the treasury,—the India House itself costs £7,600 for salaries of Court of Directors, £27,500 for contingent charges of both Courts, £94,000 to secretaries and officers of the Court of Directors,—or in all nearly £130,000, the two betwixt them £160,000 a year. Mr. Millet affords a very excellent illustration of the speed with which the work gets on under this most glorious system of checks, corrections and balances. The law commission was appointed in 1835—the year after the passing of the Charter Act : we are within a year and a half of its expiry, and still await the fruits of its labours. The code proposed by them was originally submitted to the Supreme Government in May 1837—it was sent back for revision, and re-submitted in October the same year. It was next sent home with the remarks of Government for the consideration of the Court of Directors : it was then sent out again with the observations of the Court. It was once more considered at Calcutta and sent home to London for further consideration ; and finally, after eleven years' deliberation, it reached India in 1848, and has been laying on the table ever since. Considering the importance of the subject, we believe that the rate of proceeding was in this case rather above than below the average in point of celerity ; and that things not one hundredth the importance of the Code have occupied full half the time on the way. How long would Sir Robert Peel have taken to manufacture from the first a code of laws for India, or to re-construct and re-arrange those in existence so as to render them practicable and the aggregate of the whole 16 years is a deficiency in 11,800,000*l*. I have divided the 16 years into four periods, each of four years, taken consecutively, and I have made an annual average of each : in 1831-35 to 1837-39, being the first period, there was an annual surplus of 81*l*.89*l*.4*l*. ; in 1839-43 to 1841-42 there was a deficit of 1,511,732*l*. per annum ; in 1842-43 to 1845-46, there was a deficit of 1,256,757*l*. per annum ; in 1846-47 to 1849-50, there was a deficit of 1,000,567*l*. per annum ; and the estimate for 1850-51 shows a deficiency of 678,351*l*. The first head of receipt is the great source of income, the land revenue, including subsidies and a kharree : the amount from this was 10,049,550*l*. annually, in the first period ; in the second period, 10,116,112*l*. ; in the third, 10,739,463*l*. ; in the fourth, 11,773,106*l*. ; and the estimate for 1850-51 is 12,639,147*l*. The next item of receipt is the customs, which has been 1,312,568*l*. annually, for the first period. In the second period, the amount was 1,083,524*l*. per annum ; in the third, 1,218,703*l*. ; in the fourth, 1,083,524*l*. ; and the estimate for 1850-51 is 1,331,179*l*. The next item is salt. The receipt under the head of salt, exclusive of customs duty on imports, was 1,359,692*l*. for the first period ; for the second period, 2,053,224*l*. ; for the third, 2,035,020*l*. ; for the fourth, 2,093,454*l*. ; and the estimate for 1850-51 is 1,533,192*l*. The customs duty from salt for 1851-52 is estimated at 60 lacs of rupees—that is, 600,000*l*. There has been a considerable increase, the revenue from salt at Bombay is about 200,000*l*. a year.

The next item is opium : in the first period the receipts from opium average 1,263,462*l*. per annum ; in the next period only 746,238*l*. : that was the time of the China war ; in the third period, 2,012,354*l*. ; in the fourth, 2,569,693*l*. ; and the estimate for the year 1850-51 is 2,700,662*l*. : from the passes in 1834, and in the last year. It was 13,77,425 rupees in 1834-35, and in 1850-51 the estimated amount is 79,77,200 rupees ; in the last two years the amount has been largely increased ; the only other item of receipt which it seems desirable to mention in this classification is stamps ; in the first period that is 330,769*l*. ; in the second, 373,534*l*. ; in the third, 385,904*l*. ; in the fourth, 407,482*l*. ; and the estimate is 420,495*l*. Now to complete the review of the receipts for the whole 16 years, I ought to add, that within that period there was received 154,867*l*. under the treaty of Gwalior ; 576,137*l*. from the late Government of Lahore ; and also 652,195*l*. from Golab Sing, under the treaty.

Lord Ellenborough is reported to have stated that when he left the Government, he left the Treasury, with ten million sterling in them, and those who are unacquainted with the system of Indian Finance, might thus be led to suppose that the fact reflected the highest credit on his brief administration. But he forgot to state that he found 8,35,00,000*l*. in the treasury when he took charge of the Government so that the accumulation of Cash in two years and a half had been only to the extent of about 1,65,00,000*l*. From the following returns, it would appear that the cash balance in the treasuries have been

BOMBAY UNDER SEVEN ADMINISTRATIONS, FROM 1819 TO 1848.

THE extent to which the names of great men become current amongst the universal community of their time, or to which they secure for themselves a traditional renown amongst posterity, is one of the best criteria that can be obtained of the extent of impression they have made, and weight their characters were felt to possess; or, more correctly speaking, these things are the absolute images of their characters and actions that have been impressed on cotemporary or transmitted to future generations. The Mothers of England of the thirteenth century were said to have frightened their children into propriety with the name of Wallace, as did those of the nineteenth with that of Buonaparte. To descend from great men such as these to others of our own time as illustrating the same principle—the names of Jonathan Duncan and Mountstuart Elphinstone are so continually associated together as the illustrious Governors of a past generation, that it is difficult to imagine that they were not either the contemporaries or the immediate successors of each other. Not only would no one imagine that a nine years' administration had come between them, but were the name of the intervening Governor to be mentioned, four-fifths of our present denizens would feel disposed to ask, who then was the Governor from 1809 to 1820? To those to whom the name of Sir Evan Nepean is known as once a bigwig amongst us, not one in twenty could tell whether he was Chief Justice, Commander-in-Chief, General commanding at Poona, or Governor of Bombay. Yet the Governor, whose name is already so completely eclipsed by those of his predecessor and successors, seems to have been an able, upright, and eminently amiable man: he had acquired a good name for talent and business habits in the Admiralty before being sent to Bombay, who laboured diligently in the performance of his duties, gradually on the increase during the last twenty years, and that they have never been so high as during Lord Dalhousie's administration.

and Captain Hall has preserved not a few traits of great amiableness of character and anxiety to promote our social institutions while he reigned over us. The memory of his personal virtues has long since passed away; and having no particular claims on public gratitude, his name is already ranked along with those of Governors of past generations known to us by name alone.*

For thirty out of the fifty-three years intervening betwixt the accession of Mr. Duncan in 1795 and that of Lord Falkland to office in 1848, government had been in the hands of gentlemen long and intimately acquainted with Oriental affairs, and who had acquired distinction in the East before their promotion to the head of authority, all of whom were members of the Company's service. The father of Sir Robert Grant had been a distinguished Bengal civil servant, and was long one of the most active members of the Court of Directors: his son had been closely connected with our Indian administration at home before coming out as Governor. The whole arrangements of the Charter Act were entrusted almost exclusively to the hands of Mr. Chartres, President of the Board of Control, and afterwards Lord Glenelg, and to those of his brother, Mr., afterwards Sir Robert. Sir Evan Nepean, Lord Clare, and Sir George Arthur, the exceptions referred to, were men of good talent, of great industry and experience in business,—the latter gentleman being one of the oldest and most experienced Colonial Governors in Her Majesty's service.

THE HONORABLE MOUNTSTUART ELPHINSTONE :—1820-1827.

The Hon'ble Mountstuart Elphinstone, a scion of a noble Scottish family, entered the Bengal civil service in 1798, and was early distinguished for the assiduity and devotion with which he devoted himself to business,—for his extensive and varied attainments in Oriental literature,—but above all, for the uprightness of his conduct and amiable gentleness and benevolence of disposition. In the year 1808, when the glory of Napoleon was at its height, and nothing less than universal empire seemed to suffice his ambition, General Gardane was sent to the Court of Persia with views as was understood in the last degree inimical to the tranquillity and interests of our empire in the East: and the British Government in India resolved on dispatching an embassy into Eastern Afghanistan, with the view of obtaining information as to the geography of the country, the character and dispositions of the people, and the probability of a hostile demonstration in this direction on the part or at the instigation of France being likely to annoy us. Mr. Elphinstone was appointed Ambassador, and it was resolved that the embassy under him should be on such a scale of splendour and magnificence as to meet the conceptions understood to be entertained of European greatness by the Court at Cabool. Mr. Richard Strachey was appointed Secretary, Messrs. Fraser and Alexander assistants : all these were men of distinction, all members of the civil service. Captain Pitman commanded the cavalry ; Lieutenants Macartney and Tickell, of the Engineers, were surveyors : there were seven officers besides, in addition to the Surgeon in charge, attached to the Mission. They left Delhi on the 13th October, proceeding by Bahawalpore and Mooltan, and crossed the Indus on the 11th January 1809 at Dhera Ismael Khan, where they remained a month. They quitted this in the middle of February, and proceeded through Kohat to meet the Shah Soojah at Peshawur, whitherward he was now wending after one of those unhappy vicissitudes with which throughout his whole life he was afflicted. The mission spent the spring and a good part of the summer at Peshawur,—they never penetrated the passes,—returning through the Punjab in July and August. Their homeward progress was for a time delayed by the flooding of the rivers : Mr. Elphinstone became impatient, and though assured by Captain Pitman of the unwisdom of attempting to cross, desired the convoy to get in readiness, when he would lead the way. He plunged into the stream followed by a portion of the escort, and before he had got many yards from the shore his horse was carried down and the rider for an instant supposed to have been drowned :—he was cast ashore a little way down, stunned and bleeding, but not otherwise hurt. He was anxious once more to try the stream, when he was deterred by seeing the extreme danger to his followers : and there are officers still in the army who formed part of the escort, who described to us the depth of the emotion felt by all when for a moment he was supposed lost : he was throughout life one of those who at once secured the affections of all to whom he was known,—every one around him felt for him the affection of a brother. An account of these things was published ten years afterwards in the “ History of the Mission to the Court of Cabool,” which will always remain a standard in oriental libraries. The narrative (published in 1815, 2 vols. 8 vo.) of the mission occupies little more than a chapter : the mass of geographical information collected by it fills the greater part of a couple of volumes. In 1810 Mr. Elphinstone was appointed to political charge in the Deccan, where great events were then on the eve of development. A more delicate or difficult post than that of Resident at the Court of the Peishwa could scarcely have been found, and no man could have filled it with greater ability than Mr. Elphinstone. The conduct of this Chief had been for some time wavering and suspicious, and in the end of 1817 it became so alarming that the Resident requested the assistance of the troops then engaged north of the Godavery under Brigadier Smith. On the 5th November the Peishwa threatened the Residency at the Sungum, which it was found necessary to abandon ; and Mr. Elphinstone with his escort crossed the river, and then re-crossed at the British camp at Kirkee by the bridge close by. The battle of Kirkee, which gave the death blow to the Maharatta power, and placed the Deccan in our hands, almost immediately followed. The task which succeeded was an arduous one : arrangements had to be made for the future guidance of a vast tract of country as wide as possible of those under which it had hitherto been governed. While the Peishwa himself deserved no mercy at our hands, it was resolved that the Sovereign, dethroned and imprisoned by his own minister, should be restored to his hereditary dominions, and the Rajah of Sattara, to whom the Deccan had for a time belonged, was placed in possession of the noble principality from which his title was derived,—and here but for his own folly his dynasty might still have been supreme. All these matters were arranged by Mr. Elphinstone.

with a wisdom, humanity, and regard for right and justice not to be surpassed. When all these things were fully arranged and a commission appointed for a time to carry out the plans so ably projected, the Court of Directors resolved to reward one of the ablest of their servants by the greatest boon within their gift—Governorship of Bombay. It was during his stay in the Deccan that his work on Cabool was, at the suggestion of Sir James Macintosh, prepared for the press; and he took the opportunity afforded by meeting in with many Affghan traders then visiting the presidency to correct and extend the information he had collected on his embassy.

In 1820, when Mr. Elphinstone assumed the government of Bombay, the dimensions of the presidency had just been tripled: the whole dominions of the Peshwa had at one fell swoop been placed under our authority, and minor states were rapidly coming in. Mr. Elphinstone had already been ten years Resident in the Deccan: great talents and acquirements, active and powerful in body as in mind, every plain and mountain, every town and village, every tongue and race, within the presidency, had been long familiar to him. He had next to nothing to learn, and had now the power of putting into effect the measures that he had long looked forward to as likely to prove of advantage to the people. Perfectly aware of the absurdity of the idea of a free or representative government in India, Mr. Elphinstone had been accustomed to study the best portions of the best Native despotisms in the East, and was bent on so far as this was practicable, engrafting them on our own. The natives of the country had no aversion to absolute power—none other had they ever seen,—and absoluteness, even in the eyes of freemen, was stripped of half its objections by the freedom with which subjects were at all times allowed access to their sovereign. The most exemplary of the rulers we expelled from the land far better deserved the name of paternal despots than did on many occasions those who followed them. They presided personally over the administration of the laws of the realm,—were always ready to listen to complaints of grievance or oppression,—received the people frequently in open durbar,—and were at all times accessible to them, and shared with them, as the people shared with them, the auspicious as well as the sad observances domestic joy or affliction called forth. It may not here be amiss to stop for a little to notice the personal appearance of one who was personally so much before the eyes of the community.

Mr. Elphinstone was in the forty-first year of his age when in 1820 he became Governor of Bombay; and being a man at once of temperate and active habits and fine natural constitution, was in the very prime of manhood, and in fullest vigour and health. He was close on six feet high, but a slight stoop made him appear somewhat less tall than he was. With this trivial imperfection as an exception, his figure was a noble one; his countenance, as immortalized by the chisel of Chantrey, was in Nature's most pleasing mould. It was oval and somewhat thin: the lofty forehead, and deep-seated calm reflective eye marking the man of talent. His nose was prominent and slightly aquiline: it was thin, as were his cheeks and lips,—his colour inclining to pale; his skin pure and transparent,—his hair was light brown, soft and silky. His usual expression was that of sweetness, benevolence, placidity and repose: when excited, his whole countenance was lighted up with a glow of warmth, his bright eye gleaming out, and his thin lips becoming compressed, showing though placid he was far from inanimate—though usually tranquil, how easily he could be awakened into energy and fire. His hands were soft, white, and beautifully delicate: and this description of a man as he was a quarter of a century ago, would well-nigh suit him as he is now. Any one who has ever seen the statue in the Town Hall, or the numberless prints and portraits of him, will readily recognise in the thin old man standing gazing at the print-shop windows as he moves down Oxford Street slightly bending under the load of three score and ten years, the most distinguished and most popular of the Governors of Bombay, and one of the most able and upright statesmen of modern times.

—We do not know by whom the practice of keeping once a week at least open house at Parel at breakfast time was introduced—the device was an excellent one, whoever was its author, for permitting the lieges to become personally known to the Governor without ceremony, and for enabling him to become familiar with the appearance, intellectual character and attainments, of all under him. The Government House breakfasts had all the familiarity and friendliness of private interviews, and none of the stiffness of formal parties,—where men with much or little or no business at all could equally converse with the supreme authority; and the hour was so convenient that it permitted business men to proceed to their offices and resume their work just as if they had breakfasted at home. Mr. Elphinstone kept open house every day at breakfast time—very morning was the breakfast table laid out with forty covers, and all comers were welcome: we have been assured by a member of his staff that this species of hospitality alone cost him close on £1,000 a year. Once a week, in those jovial days, there was a large dinner-party at Government House—every dinner-party was followed by a ball: the King's birth day, Waterloo day, and other great national festivals were observed with unusual pomp and circumstance. While the breakfast parties by reason of their frequency were never large, every one who desired it obtained a personal introduction—ensigns and midshipmen just arrived had a conversation with the head of government at once without the necessity of a formal presentation: the officers of vessels whose stay in port might have been too short to make them known could be presented, and tell on their return whence they came, of the conversations they had had with the Governor. The great substantial result obtained by a perfect knowledge on his part of every one within the reach of his patronage or influence of his power, was invaluable. This is an end that ought never to be lost sight of: a late upright and well-intentioned but sadly abused Governor at Madras, the Marquis of Tweeddale, used to make notes of the services of his visitors their perusal to be reserved for future use: a less courtly and graceful method than that of Elphinstone, who possessed a memory which scarcely knew forgetfulness, yet one well worthy of imitation,—while the facts, however preserved, ought to be carefully collected and treasured, and never lost sight of.

It has been a constant, and we fear a too well deserved, reproach to the English in India, that they seemed to leave their consciences on the other side of the Cape;—that in the land of their adoption, the faith and customs of that of their nativity were equally abandoned;—and that while the theatre, the billiard-room, and the race-course, made their appearance with sufficient promptitude,—the Church was nearly the last thing that was thought of either by Government or its servants. If such has been the general character of our proceedings, a common source of reproach to us, there have been occasionally better periods in our annals, to which we can look back with gratitude and gratification; and in the administration of Mr. Elphinstone one of these is to be found. The beautiful churches at Poona and at Tanna were both begun and completed in the early part of his regime: the one at a charge of Rs. 42,509, the other at a cost of Rs. 45,553: they were both consecrated by Bishop Heber on his visit to Bombay in 1825, Dr. Barnes, our first Archdeacon, being then the highest ecclesiastical dignitary Bombay possessed, while others were built in 1825 in the Northern Concan—Rs. 14,348,—at Dapoorree and Baroda. The Church at Surat was built in 1823 at a charge of Rs. 58,328; that at Kaira in 1824 for Rs. 74,756. During his administration Rs. 3,82,266 were expended on Churches. Our first Bishop was appointed under the new Charter, in 1834. It was in Elphinstone's time that the prejudices against the Education of the Natives began to give way, and the apathy of the home authorities, who on being appealed to by Government on the impossibility of finding natives qualified to fill the places required to be occupied by them, in their courts of justice, replied by a further reduction of their salaries : better days were now close at hand, and it began to be felt that if we desired to acquire or retain the affections of the people, or rule the land of our supremacy aright, we must send the schoolmaster abroad amongst them and cheer and elevate their path by the light of knowledge.

The Bombay Education Society was brought into existence in 1815, chiefly through the exertions of Archdeacon Barnes : its principal object at the outset was to provide for the instruction of the children of soldiers, and those of mixed blood in the humbler ranks of life—orphans, and those who had none to care for them, were supported as well as instructed. In 1820 a separate division of the scheme was organized for the special benefit of the natives. The first public meeting over which Mr. Elphinstone presided during the first year of his administration, was that summoned for the purpose of getting the new project under weigh : he headed the subscription list, and his most earnest exertions were ever devoted to the advancement of a scheme with which his name has since become indissolubly united. To provide a suitable supply of school books was one of the first things that required to be done ; and the Society suggested that rewards should be offered for the production of translations of standard English works into Mahratta or Goozerattee. Government at once expressed their willingness to give prizes of from one to four hundred rupees for the objects in question, and prizes of five thousand rupees were soon afterwards conceded. A lithographic press was established, and every effort made to extend an art so admirably calculated for the production of works in the native character. Not satisfied with this, Government presented the Society with four lithographic presses and their appurtenances, and ordered for their use from Calcutta and England fonts of type in the native characters, with the whole requisites of a large printing establishment. From an official return it appears that betwixt 1826 and 1830 nearly two lakhs of rupees, or upwards of Rs. 30,000 a year, had been contributed from the public purse to the Society,—while during the same period close upon a lakh of rupees, £10,000, had been expended by Government in printing books for them,—a sum sufficient now a days to have printed in cheap editions double the amount of valuable English works the library of the Asiatic Society contains. In 1823 Government were applied to assist in the establishment of a Native General Library. The appeal was at once munificently responded to,—a large collection of valuable books and MSS. in the native tongues being amongst the number of their contributions. In 1825 the body out of which, though mainly intended for the orphan children of soldiers, two distinct divisions of labourers had subsequently sprung, secured a piece of ground near the Byculla Church, and commenced the erection of the buildings in which the orphan schools have ever since been located ; and about this time Captain (afterwards Colonel) Jervis established, under the patronage of the Governor, a seminary for the instruction of natives in engineering, which for a while promised to be eminently advantageous to the state ;—and which falls to be more minutely noticed under the following administration.

On the 1st of January 1826 Government published a long notification intimating the establishment of a Medical School at the presidency for the instruction of native practitioners. Students were to be regularly enlisted for a period of fifteen years as soldiers, and not only taught but maintained at the public charge ; and when duly qualified, were to obtain certificates from the medical board,—when they were to receive subordinate medical appointments under Government. At fifteen years they were to be entitled to a pension : after thirty years' service they might retire on full pay. Dr. McLennan, then a young assistant surgeon, was appointed superintendent to the school, with a salary of five hundred rupees a month : the judiciousness of the selection was afterwards fully borne out by the professional eminence attained by our present physician-general long before he became a member of the medical board. In 1826 an address was presented by the leading members of the native community to the Governor, thanking him for the uniform kindness and accessibility manifested by him towards them, and the constant attention bestowed by him on their wants. He had made sally ports to be constructed to permit egress and ingress to and from the fort by night ; he had caused numberless wells and tanks to be cleared and opened up ; and watched over the welfare and happiness of those under him as if they had been his family.

A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump,—virtue like vice is contagious,—and the movement set on foot or accelerated by Mr. Elphinstone, impressed itself on everything around. We are in the habit of talking of native female education as a thing of our own time—as the work almost exclusively of the natives themselves. Without any idea of detracting from merits we have so often commended, or a state of things that seems so eminently auspicious, it ought never to be forgotten that it is to the American Missionaries, who had arrived in Bombay in 1814, and immediately commenced the task of male instruction, we owe the earliest of our girls' schools ; and that in this same most auspicious year 1825—when Christian Churches were being consecrated, and Native Schools and Libraries were springing up in all directions—was the task of female education, never since interrupted, commenced. At this time there were seventy-five females taught at the Mission school ;—in the following year they amounted to two hundred and four,—and before the commencement of 1827 they had risen to three hundred and forty : that year above two thousand rupees were subscribed at the presidency for the benefit of the mission schools—thirty six had been established, with an attendance of close on 2000 pupils.

When we look to the marvellous developements of talent, excellence, or power, which from time to time and at intervals make their appearance, we will generally find them explained by the presence of some single exciting cause ; but the germs which are at all times around in greater or less profusion, become excited and manifested through some special means, and when they seem to spring into existence are in reality only being brought to light. Under dulness and mediocrity—in want of the necessary rain and sunshine—the seeds of excellence sleep in the earth until the fulness of time arrives. Though often dormant, and hardly ever wanting they are very unequally distributed ; and the time when Lords Amherst and W. Bentinck administered the affairs of state, Bishop Heber represented the Head of the Church, and Munro and Elphinstone ruled at Madras and Bombay, seemed one not only peculiarly favorable to the developement of patriotism and talent, but when these qualities were to be found in unusual abundance around us, Mr. Elphinstone would doubtless have brought willing coadjutors to light at any time or place, and under any circumstances. To have had such men as Sir C. Colville, Archdeacon Barnes, Mr. Francis Warden, and Captain Jervis,—not forgetting one of the most enlightened native gentlemen unconnected with Government Western India has ever produced, Framjee Cowasjee,—at his command, was a piece of good fortune as striking as auspicious.

During the seven years, which may well be regarded as the Augustan Age at Bombay, while Mr. Elphinstone ruled, a larger advance was made in the extension of religion, the promotion of native education and general cause of improvement than during twenty-four years which have since elapsed. The blot on Mr. Elphinstone's administration was the oppression of the Newspaper Press—it was the failing of the time ; and, strange to tell, with the exception of the present members of H. M.'s Supreme Court, the judges and lawyers amongst us, throughout the world the great champions of freedom of speech, have at Bombay been the most inveterate and constant in their hostility to the press. The outrageous tyranny to which through their means Mr. Fair was subjected, is a disgrace to their memory, and a slur on all who sympathized with or assisted them.* By the close of 1827 it became known that Mr. Elphinstone was about to retire finally from India : we extract the following fine testimony to his worth from the address of Sir Lionel Smith, who presided at a splendid meeting held at Poona on the occasion :—

"Gentlemen,—The next toast I have to propose you will have been all anticipating with sincere pleasure, 'the health of the Hon. Mountstuart Elphinstone.'—(Great applause.)—Seven years ago I was called to this chair to convey the grateful estimation of the society of that day towards Mr. Elphinstone, when he was about to resign the office of Commissioner, and to assume that of governor of Bombay. On that occasion, the delicacy due to a mind like his, necessarily limited every allusion to his public situation ; and on the present occasion, while he is still in high authority, I must observe the same rule with still stricter caution. It would not become us to go into any review of his official administration, nor does he stand in need of the applause which would be its certain result. If, therefore, I have faithfully interpreted your design, I shall leave nothing even for ungenerous suspicion to infer, that we have brought Mr. Elphinstone here for purposes of adulation. He comes amongst us this evening as our guest, a common friend, beloved by all, composed as we are of various services, but united in one and the same spirit in offering our homage to his personal character.

"Gentlemen, you are all probably aware, that Mr. Elphinstone's present visit to the Deccan has been to consolidate the general tranquillity by his interviews with the native chieftains ; yet, as in former times, his public labours have not prevented those habitual attentions to society, which have constantly brought us all together in happy intercourse, giving relief to our toils and variety to our pleasures. In a few words, he has been labouring as usual for our happiness, as he has ever done for the public weal. He has given a useful lesson to many of you, gentlemen, who may rise to high stations in public life, by shewing that universal kindness, so far from being

* Nothing could be more absurd or irrational, than the panic throughout India regarding the power and the danger of a free press, down to the time of its liberation in 1835. Until the passing of last Charter Act, no Englishman could reside in India without a license from the Court of Directors. This any of the local Governments were authorized to withdraw and to have the party as speedily as possible transported to England, clapping him in jail, and keeping him there, until a ship was ready to sail home. In 1827, Mr. Buckingham was sent home for having ridiculed the appointment of the Reverend Dr. Bryce, a clergyman of the Kirk of Scotland, and editor of the John Bull, as keeper of stationery to Government. He had been before threatened with deportation for pointing out an error of the Madras Post Master, for which the supreme government demanded an apology, although they allowed at the same time, that the Post Master was in the wrong, and Mr. Buckingham, who obtained the redress he desired, in the right. On another occasion he was threatened with a like punishment for pointing out the mode in which the troops in the Nizam's service were paid, where he was again allowed to be in the right, and had the grievances, adverted to, remedied. One of his heaviest offences short of the last, was his reprinting an extract from the address, of the Marquis of Hastings himself to the inhabitants of Madras. Mr. Buckingham's wrongs have now been formally admitted by his having received a pension from the Court of Directors. In 1823 Mr. Arnott, a assistant editor of the Calcutta Journal, was ordered to leave India immediately, for having alluded to the discussion between Dr. Bryce, and Mr. Buckingham, as he was residing without a license, and having refused finding security for his departure, was clapped in the jail. From this he was released by a writ of Habeas Corpus, the court however, being divided on the subject. Sir Alexander Buller remarking that every individual residing without a license in India was in hourly commission of a misdemeanor. Sir Francis Macknaghton conceiving that there was some uncertainty about the matter gave the prisoner the benefit of the doubt, and had him released.

In 1823, a difference took place in the Recorder's court Bombay, betwixt the bench and the bar, on which occasion five barristers were suspended, a report of the proceedings appeared in the newspapers, which six months afterwards was complained of as being unfair. The editor disclaimed all intentional misrepresentation, and expressed his conviction that the report was as faithful as it could be made without the assistance of a short hand writer, and off red to produce the testimony of several gentlemen in the court at the time, as to its accuracy, producing a note in which the Chief Justice intimated his desire that all parts of the court's proceedings should be published.

By the court's own showing it was quite clear, that the newspapers were in the right, and the judges in the wrong. Mr. Fair was nevertheless ordered to depart for England immediately, and in want of a ship direct, was compelled to proceed to China on his way home. A grosser act of tyranny never was committed, and the court escaped the censure it deserved through the popularity of the Governor, who himself the soul of liberality and kindness, seems on this occasion to have suffered his good temper to be practised on by the judges.

In 1829 Mr. William Adam, one of the most distinguished promoters of native education in the east, had his license as printer of the Calcutta Chronicle withdrawn, and the paper incompatible with dignified office, is sure to command universal good-will; and in his own case it will yield him the rare felicity of relinquishing power without the loss of a single friend! (Shouts of applause.) Gentlemen, my first duty and my first desire in this chair, is to assure Mr. Elphinstone of our grateful regards. If I am unable to express your sentiments in terms proportioned to your feelings, the attempt comes at least with the purest earnestness and truth. I have been constantly honoured with his friendship, and there is not one among you who can feel more than myself the apprehension that this may be the last time we shall enjoy the happiness of his society in this interesting quarter of his fame. When I say this, I do not mean to assume Mr. Elphinstone has any local partialities; for we are all aware, if he could go to Guzerat or any distant part of his government to-morrow, he would receive the same tender of affectionate respect. The apprehension I have spoken of is the only drawback I know of to the pleasures of this evening. If the contemplation of an event, which we must hope is still very distant, interposes so many regrets with the European Community, it will be still more severely felt by the natives, who never see Mr. Elphinstone here except to receive benefits from him, either through his political power or by his private charities. But, Gentlemen, we will keep this only alloy to our meeting out of present view, and prepare for the toast.

"Gentlemen of the Civil Service, you will, I am well aware, do it ample justice, proudly remembering that Mr. Elphinstone is one of you. Gentlemen of the Army, you will receive the toast with joy, for Mr. Elphinstone has always been a soldier wherever he could, and has often been seen foremost in your ranks in the field of action. Scholars, however recently from your studies in science or in literature there is not one of you who would overstep him in any form to-morrow; you will drink to Mr. Elphinstone as your master example in talent and in knowledge. Sportsmen, though last not least, (for I never yet knew a good sportsman who was a bad soldier) you will hail the toast with delight, for Mr. Elphinstone has ever been your Patron, and the partaker of your joys."

was extinguished: he continued for ten years afterwards in India, universally respected by all who knew him. It was never discovered on what ground the Chronicle was suppressed. In 1833 Mr. Francis Boden of the Bombay Gazette was threatened with immediate deportation for publishing a letter complaining of the rates of exchange allowed to British soldiers, and only escaped by the writer giving up his name, he was a private of the Queen's Royals, and was tried by a Court Martial and punished with six months imprisonment. The letter was faultless in point of expression and the complaint was founded well grounded, the grievance for complaining of which he was punished was remedied immediately afterwards. The censorship was established by the Marquis of Wellesley Under it on one occasion the censor at Bombay, Mr. Francis Warden was censured by the Governor General for permitting the appointment of Lord Cornwallis to appear in print, and on another occasion a publication was suppressed because it contained an apology was insisted on from the editor of the Gazette, for reprinting an article from an English paper reflecting on the Duke of York. In a case before the court involving a sum of £50,000, the Company's Solicitor was directed by Government to make the most accurate report of the proceedings, and for this purpose obtained the Judge's notes; the Judge afterwards formally approved of the report: when it was submitted to him, and it was thus sent into Government. Some time afterwards another report of the Judge's altogether different from this, was obtained by Government, and now pronounced to be the correct one. The solicitor maintaining the accuracy of his report, was censured under these circumstances, says Mr. Francis Warden, from whom we quote, had an editor of giving satisfaction. We give the following from the Hurkaru, in reference to the Press Regulations:—

"There was added rigour in these rules, but either the press seems to have become so reconciled to its fate, or the censor to have exercised his power so greatly, that in the record before us we find no account of a contravention for nearly two years. Then, we learn, 'the very irregular conduct of the editor of the Mirror in having inserted an account of the route from Janpnoor to Catmandoon, after the same had been struck out by the Secretary to Government, was pointed out to him by the Chief Secretary.' This was a very mild punishment for such an offence, but probably it was thought too ridiculous to be very severe on the publication of a mere way-bill.

The Calcutta editors seem at this time to have been plucking up a spirit. The case just cited is evidence to this effect, and a fortnight afterwards, we find the same daring journalist censured, at the recommendation of the Adjutant General, for having inserted—where was the censor then?—a statement of the information of the three new regiments, with their allotment of officers, such a measure being at that time only under the consideration of Government." The contumacious editor begged to decline naming the mercantile house from which he had obtained his information, stating 'that all the forthcoming civil and military appointments are generally known before their publication in the Calcutta Gazette or the public official communication of them by Government.' He also remarked on the rigour exercised by the present censor, when compared with the conduct of his predecessor. So said Dr. Bryce, the reverend Scottish chaplain, editor, and dispenser of tape and sealing wax;

The following from the farewell address of the Asiatic Society, was prepared by General Vans Kennedy, himself a scholar, and a ripe and good one, who well could comprehend the merits of a brother scholar :—

"It must at the same time be admitted, that from a singularly diffident and retiring disposition, which is so often the accompaniment and ornament of real ability, neither our labours have been animated by those discourses, nor our transactions enriched with those Memoirs, which Mr. Elphinstone was so competent to compose. For, if not a profound classical scholar, he was sufficiently master of the Greek and Latin languages to enable him to appreciate and enjoy the matchless work of antiquity; and with the modern literature of his own country, France, and Italy, he was intimately acquainted. But his active life and public duties restricted his knowledge of the numerous languages of Asia to a conversancy with Persian, and prevented him from prosecuting, even in that language, the study of oriental learning by applying to its original sources. Yet his information on all subjects connected with it, and particularly with the civil and political history of Persia and India, was most extensive. That cause, perhaps, united to the correct and elegant taste which he had derived from nature, but which he had improved and sedulously cultivated by the perusal of the best ancient and modern authors, rendered him a rather too severe critic of oriental composition. He denied not, indeed, that its occasional beauties deserved every praise, but he was inclined to think that these could not compensate for its numerous imperfections. This opinion, however, applied merely to the critical merits of eastern literature; for he evinced, by many enlightened acts, his firm conviction that the government of this country could not be conducted efficiently and prosperously for many years without adopting it, as far as the real interests of the people would admit, to their long established and deeply rooted habits and prejudices ;

but perhaps he was identical with the editor of the Mirror, who had twice before beard the censor. He had at all events some reason to complain when Mr. Secretary Adam, in his wisdom, struck out a criticism which he thought might offend the author, reviewed although, as it afterwards appeared, the said author had read and approved of it! The story is altogether rather an amusing one, and we give it entire :—

"In 1817, Dr. Bryce, the editor and managing proprietor of the Asiatic Mirror, complained to Government of the Chief Secretary (Adam,) for having 'overstepped the powers of his office,' as censor of the press, in striking out of the proof-sheets a critique on a historical, political, and metaphysical work, by Lieutenant Young, which critique, Lieutenant Young had perused and approved. Mr. Adam stated, that he considered the critique 'to be written in at one of sarcasm and bantering, likely to produce irritation, and to have occasioned an angry discussion in the newspapers;' and that he deemed the prevention of such disputes to be strictly within the limits of his duty and authority, as connected with the control of the press: but that, on hearing from Dr. Bryce that Lieutenant Young had approved of the critique, he should have allowed its publication had not Dr. Bryce accompanied the intimation with a threat of complaining of him to Government, for an undue exercise of his powers as censor, in having expunged it from the proof sheets. Dr. Bryce, at the same time, submitted to Mr. Adam a notice of his leaders, accounting for the hiatus, which would appear in that day's Mirror, in the event of his (Mr. Adam's) persisting in his refusal to allow the appearance of the critique. The notice, strongly reflecting on the conduct of the censor of the press, in prohibiting the appearance of a criticism on a work purely literary was cut down by Mr. Adam to a mere apology 'for a blank in this day's Mirror.'

"It was intimated to Dr. Bryce, in answer to his complaint, that, under the explanation given by Mr. Adam, the latter was not considered to have unduly exercised his powers as censor in the instance specified by Dr. Bryce, whose conduct with respect to the intended notice to his readers was deemed highly disrespectful. He was, therefore, informed, that in his 'editorial capacity,' he stood under the unfavorable sentiment of Government. The Governor-general also remarked on the 'incompatibility of the avocations of an editor and managing proprietor of a newspaper,' with the clerical character, even 'supposing the paper conducted without inviting controversy.' Dr. Bryce, on receiving the above mentioned communication, again addressed the Government, and submitted certain explanations relative to his conduct as editor of the Mirror, with a view of inducing a revocation of the censure passed on him by Government. He also defended the propriety of his conduct, in having undertaken the office of editor of a newspaper, which he did not consider to be incompatible with the clerical character. In the course of his observations Dr. Bryce commented severely on the conduct of Mr. Adam, as censor, when compared with that of former censors of the press.

"The Governor-general in council, after a perusal of Dr. Bryce's defence, declared that he could see no reason in his present explanations to withdraw the public censure passed upon him in his editorial capacity, and that his Lordship had observed with sincere regret, 'the whole strain and tenor of Dr. Bryce's letter; but that his Lordship in Council deemed it unnecessary to continue a discussion with him on the subject, adding, that it was 'almost superfluous to observe that the character of Mr. Adam stood too high in the estimation of Government, and of the public, to be, in any way, affected by the insinuations stated in Dr. Bryce's letter.'"—Hurkaru, Nov. 1832.

and hence it was, that in order to acquire an accurate knowledge of their customs, usages, and laws, he encouraged, with the utmost munificence, the study of the native languages and literature." * * *

"It is not, however, by his public measures or private exertions alone that Mr. Elphinstone has thus successfully contributed to the promotion of literature. For his invaluable account of the Embassy to Cabul will ever remain a Memorial, and I hope not the only memorial, of his eminent literary qualifications; and from the public applause which it has so justly received, it must also afford a most inciting assurance, that neither an active life nor official business do necessarily prevent the prosecution of intellectual pursuits. Occupied, indeed, as Mr. Elphinstone always seemed to be, either in the discharge of his numerous and important public duties, or in maintaining the intercourse of private life with that urbanity and engaging friendliness for which he was so peculiarly distinguished, those words of Catullus to Crassus in Cicero's Treatise de Oratore, became strikingly applicable to the extent of acquisitions displayed in Mr. Elphinstone's conversation—'Sed tamen, cum omnes gradus cœtatis recorder tui, eumque vitam ac studia considero: neque, quo tempore ista didiceris, video, nec magnopere te istis studiis, hominibus, libris, intellego, deditum. Neque tamen possum statuere utrum magis miror, tō illi, quæ mihi persuades maxima esse adjumenta, poluisse in tuis tantis occupationibus perdiscare, an si non potueris, posse isto modo dicere.' It was, therefore, to that instructive intercourse, to that courtesy with which Mr. Elphinstone listened to those with whom he conversed, to that unassuming and engaging manner with which he communicated the copious and diversified stores of his own knowledge, and to the bright example of his literary excellence, that is principally to be ascribed the more general diffusion of a literary taste throughout this Presidency."

The following is from the address of Colonel Leighton to a general meeting of the inhabitants of Bombay held in honor of the departing Governor:—

"In adverting, as this order does, to Mr. Elphinstone's conduct as Commissioner, I cannot be silent on a point which I think more than any other forms a striking feature in his character—I mean his moderation in victory. When that war was terminated, the destinies of the Dekhun were almost left at his individual disposal though subject to the control and approval of the Supreme Government; and I have it from unquestionable authority that it was mainly owing to the liberal and judicious policy adopted by him in settling the conquered territory, that the minds of the Natives in the more distant provinces of Hindostan, which at the same period fell under our rule, were first reconciled to the change of Government, and that led to that general tranquillity which now reigns so universally through this mighty Empire.

"I shall now, Sir, turn to the proceedings in Parliament, and read to you what was said of Mr. Elphinstone by the present great Premier of England on moving the vote of thanks to the Army of India on the termination of the war. On that occasion Mr. Canning, after adverting to the peace concluded with the Peshwa in June, observed—In the midst of this unexpecting tranquillity, at a moment now known to have been concerted with the other Mahratta Chieftains, the Peshwa manifested his real intentions by an unprovoked attack upon the Residency. Mr. Elphinstone, a name distinguished in the literature as well as in the politics of his country, exhibited on that trying occasion military courage and skill, which though valuable accessories to diplomatic talents, we are not entitled to require as necessary qualifications for civil employment. On that, and not on that occasion only but on many others in the course of this singular campaign, Mr. Elphinstone displayed talents and resources which would have rendered him no mean excellence and reputation."

The history of the magnificent seminary which bears his name, and was brought into existence in his honor, is too well known to require to be here related. He left Bombay in November 1827 amidst the deep and universal regrets of all classes of the community, followed by the public blessing,—the history of his administration engraven on the memory of a grateful people. He returned to Europe by the Red Sea, Thebes, and Alexandria, and the lapse of a quarter of a century has but little if at all impaired the estimation of his worth. He has been spared through a green old age to reap the fruits of his virtues and read his history in a nation's eyes. He never seems to have dreamt of supreme authority, but his counsel was ever at the command of all those who desired to advantage by it. Lord Ellenborough, in his evidence before the Parliamentary Committee of 1832, stated that though he never dreamt of consulting with any of the Court of Directors while he presided over the Board of Control, he invariably referred to Mr. Elphinstone for counsel in all cases of difficulty.* Had this monitor been within his reach in India, we should have been saved the follies of Ferozepore, and crimes associated with the annexation of Scinde, of which no man more thoroughly disapproved than Mr. Elphinstone. He continues to this hour a constant reader of the journals of the East; and in the discussions on the Afghan War, the Annexation of Scinde, and most other public questions—that of the deposition of the Rajah of Sattara being an exception,—he has cordially concurred in the sentiments of the Bombay Times.

A more monstrous arrangement never was dreamt of than that by which the supreme vice-regal authority over a hundred millions of people may be entrusted to a Hardwicke, an Auckland, or an Ellenborough, or any other mediocrity or madman alike ignorant of the constitution, geography, and people of the country,—while such men as Metcalfe, Elphinstone, and Clerk are excluded from the governor-ship of India, although the pricelessness of their administration in any other part of the world is allowed.

* The following extract from the Bombay Times of the 9th December 1852, seems worthy of preservation. It must be remembered that the Duke of Wellington never was at the head of government, subsequent to the passing of the Charter Act, and it is his Lordship's experience of the India Board previous to 1831, that is in both cases instanced. We have no doubt that Mr. Elphinstone actually was the party referred to, and not the Duke of Wellington at all as now stated. In 1841 when Lord Ellenborough was again in the India Board, Sir Robert Peel was premier, and his lordship assures us that with him he never had any communication on Indian affairs :—

Lord Ellenborough, who now thinks that the Court of Directors have nothing to do and no right whatever to exist, was in 1832 of opinion that they were a highly respectable body of men, well qualified to govern India, and not at all deserving to have their dignity diminished or their authority curtailed. He then thought their patronage eminently well administered, and things as they then existed deserving in every way to be continued as they were. But Lord Ellenborough has not only changed his opinions, the authorities by whom he now professes to have been guided are altogether different from those whose names he formerly gave as advisers. 'When I was President of the Board of Control,' says his Lordship in June 1852, 'upon all matters of difficulty I always went to the Duke of Wellington, who was the head of the government, because I knew that he had not only a practical but an intuitive knowledge of every thing connected with India.'—'When I had the honor,' says his Lordship, to the House in July 1833, 'to preside at the Board of Control I always thought that on matters of difficulty I could not act more usefully or more safely than by requesting the opinion of Mr. Elphinstone. The opinions of Mr. Elphinstone were adverse to almost every one of the alterations proposed, and his lordship confidently staked the opinions of Mr. Elphinstone against the opinions of every man who had been examined before the House of Commons.' But, alas! a change similar to that which could occasion so vast an alteration of opinion in reference to the Court betwixt 1833 and 1852, had given rise to a similar revulsion of sentiment in relation to the two distinguished parties just named. The Duke of Wellington had in 1844 stigmatized the recall as 'a great indiscretion' and stated himself ready to defend his Lordship's acts in any thing and every thing that might be alleged against him. The Duke was therefore now worthy of obtaining the place as an oracle which the statesman who possessed a hundredfold his Indian experience had previously occupied. In 1833 Mr. Elphinstone had held the same view with the then ex-Chairman of the Board of Control: In 1844 he was understood to have expressed the same scorn of the Somnath song of Triumph and the Ferozepore processions, and the same indignation at the robbery of Scinde, as every man of integrity and sense experienced who was conversant with the matter. In 1852 accordingly in the same spirit in which the name of Outram was excluded from the Southam monument—Elphinstone, who had for thirty years held the most important appointments in India and distinguished himself in them all, ceases to be quoted as an authority, and Wellington, who sheathed his maiden sword amongst us, was only six years in the East, and that only in one quarter of the country and in one capacity—that of warrior; and who at the time he is said to have been consulted, had been close on a quarter of a century away from it, takes his place! Well might the Times say that the testimony of one so easily biased by his feelings was worthless as evidence"—Bombay Times, Dec. 9, 1852.

SIR JOHN MALCOLM : 1827-1830.

It would be difficult to imagine two men enjoying so many high qualities in common, and brought so closely into comparison with each other, so unspeakably dissimilar as Mountstuart Elphinstone and his successor in the government of Bombay : yet Malcolm proposed to follow the footsteps of Elphinstone, and has left a no inconspicuous name amongst the great men of his country. Sir John Malcolm was born at Burnfoot, near Langholm, in Dumfriesshire, in 1769 ; and though of poor family, was one of four brothers who attained Knighthood. He was appointed a cadet on the Madras establishment at the age of thirteen, and in 1792 so distinguished himself at Seringapatam as to attract the attention of Lord Cornwallis. In 1799 he was sent on an important mission to Persia, and on his return in 1801, was appointed private secretary to the governor-general—an appointment he held for a few months only, having returned to Persia the following year. In 1803 he was engaged with the army under Wellesley in the campaign against the Mahrattas. From 1805 to 1806 he held important political employment in Bengal. In 1807 he was sent on a special mission to the Court of Teheran, with the view of counteracting French intrigues, and the following year was appointed Resident in Persia*. He returned to England in 1812, and shortly after received the honor of Knighthood. In 1815 his history of Persia was published, and in the following year he returned to India, and was attached in 1817 to the Bengal army under Sir T. Hislop, with the rank of Brigadier-General. In the war which followed the deposition of the Peishwa, Sir John Malcolm was appointed to the command of the third division of the army, and he was specially mentioned by Canning in the vote of thanks to the army as "second in command on the occasion, but second to none in valour and renown." "The name of the gallant officer will be remembered in India as long as the British Flag is hoisted in the country." He was in 1821 created a Grand Cross of the Bath—an honor from which he was precluded by his rank at the time of the achievements just referred to. From 1818 to 1822, he was Resident in Malwa, where the settlement of the disturbed districts was satisfactorily accomplished by him. In 1822 he returned overland to England, and soon afterwards received from the East India Company a pension of £1000 a year, in acknowledgment of his services. Such is a brief outline of the antecedents to his acceptance of the Government of Bombay in 1827.

* A humble follower, lately deceased, attended him on this service, whose name is worthy of notice. John Higgs had come out with him as his groom : he was a smart, active, steady lad, and an excellent judge of horses. From what he had seen during his short residence at Bombay, and much more from what he had heard from his master, he saw in a moment, from the vast abundance of magnificent animals to be met with at Teheran, that the establishment of a horse trade with India on a much more extensive scale than any hitherto existing, might be made infinitely advantageous. Having saved some money, and made his arrangements otherwise, he procured a ship, which afterwards became his own, which he called the Francis Warden, after the distinguished Chief Secretary of the day. It was commanded by the afterwards celebrated Silk Buckingham, and traded betwixt Bombay and Bushire. The enterprise continued for some time eminently successful, when the vessel, with her crew and cargo (Mr. Buckingham had by this time left her, and was conducting the Calcutta Journal as "a licensed free mariner.") were lost in a storm. Mr. Higgs' accumulations by this time amounted to some £10,000 or £20,000, but they were all embarked on this single adventure, and he was unable to sustain the shock. His mind at once became unsettled, and he never again resumed business, or was, indeed, capable of managing his own affairs. He believed himself to be one of the illegitimate sons of George IV. He was well known for nearly a quarter of a century as a beggar in our streets—a large, fat, overgrown, good-humoured looking man, to be met with out of doors at all hours of the day, and making himself perfectly familiar with every one he addressed. He might, had he chosen, remained within doors with his family, but he preferred living in the open air. He died of paralysis in July 1852. Few who had seen him rolling about, barefooted and in rags, could have imagined that the jolly, happy-looking beggar was the founder of the horse trade with the Persians. Higgs, now shown by the Custom-house Returns to be worth from £40,000 to £50,000 annually.

He arrived just before the departure of his illustrious predecessor, and was installed into office on the 10th of November. With the literary tastes, the vigour and activity, bodily and mental, of Mr. Elphinstone, he was almost as vain, egotistic, and loquacious, as his predecessor was quiet, shy, and retiring. State secrets were no secrets at all with him : he rattled away with everybody about everything and got into the most serious scrape by reading, at a public breakfast table, the famous letter of Lord Ellenborough about the dispatch of two judges as tame elephants to which to tie Sir John Peter Grant and keep him in order. These weaknesses were not only, in the main, perfectly harmless, in many cases they assumed an eminently amiable form. While he considered himself one of the first of Governors and of men, he never indulged in detraction or depreciation :— he stood so high in his own estimation that he could never bear a comparison with any man, while he was ready to do full justice to all, and felt exalted by over topping the most elevated names.

The first public appearance of Sir John Malcolm after his installation was at the memorable and melancholy feast which closed the illustrious career of Elphinstone in India, and bore testimony to his hold on the affections of the people. In adding his testimony to that of all around to the distinguished talents and exalted virtues of him whose place he had just taken, Sir John proclaimed that there should be no change in the general measures of Government—that he would follow the path and seek the ends his predecessor had pursued ; and peals of applause, long and loud, hailed the announcement. A month after his arrival, the new Governor left for the Deccan, and he examined almost every year during his administration a large share of the territory over which he ruled.

Bold and energetic by nature,—accustomed all his life to independent power or to heavy loads of responsibility,—he was not a man to wait for the suggestions of councillors or hints of secretaries, and he took on himself the entire measures which seemed for the good of the State. He carried this indeed occasionally to a culpable extreme, and in not a few instances—the main fault of his administration was the haste and obstinacy of its measures, and the absoluteness with which they were insisted on. Very early in his administration, Sir John Malcolm obtained for the Literary Society—just before this transformed into the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, of which he was himself the most active and energetic president—the splendid library, (now furnished with close on 100,000 volumes) and suite of rooms they now occupy, and it affords a curious instance of retrogression to find the care, attention, and anxiety bestowed thirty-three years since on such matters by Government, and contrast the efforts recently made for alterations which were understood mainly to aim at securing the reading-room for a ball-room ! So much had been accomplished under the previous administration for the promotion of native education, that for a time all that could be looked for was that the movement that had commenced and was now in progress should be guided and maintained ; and in this the Governor fully redeemed the pledge he had given. The institutions brought into existence under the administration of his predecessor, or which were now in process of being organized, were at this time best to be left uninterfered with, until it should be seen, where they required guidance, where assistance, and what they were able to accomplish for themselves. But there still remained an abundant field of usefulness, whose soil was wholly unbroken, and while the institutions already in being were devoting themselves exclusively to the elements of literary instruction, it appeared to the Governor of the utmost importance, that means should be provided for training the pupils, after they had been taught to read and write, to some profession by which they might earn their bread, to which mere elementary tuition would not assist them ; and it seemed important that an early check should be given to the tendency to seek employment as copying clerks, the demand for which must be so soon exhausted, and which, to so large a number, seemed alone worthy of ambition.

The establishment of a medical institution in January 1826 under the supervision of Dr. McLennan, has already been referred to as having occurred in Elphinstone's time. The greatest efforts were made by Sir John Malcolm to extend it, and to enlarge its efficacy. In May 1828, the superintendent gave in his second report, which indicated a degree of success attendant on his efforts which nothing but ability and zeal such as his could have brought about. There were twenty students in attendance, on allowances similar to those in the medical school; a supply of anatomical preparations had been obtained from London, the Pharmacopœia and a variety of other works of less importance had been translated into Mahratta, and lithographed at the Engineers' establishment. The medical board recommended that the pupils should study the practice of medicine at the native general hospital, and that two sepoy boys should be employed in the hospital of each native regiment for the purpose of being brought up, as hospital assistants, in lieu of the shop cooly; and consequently at no additional charge to Government,—for information on all these matters, we are indebted to the report of the committee on Indian affairs of 1832, and are not able to trace the history of these things farther than it extends. A medical school, such as this, in its most efficient form, could not be made sufficient for the wants of the presidency, and it remained for another illustrious Governor to trace out the plan of the Grant Medical College which afterwards arose to his memory.

We have already adverted to the establishment of an Engineer institution at the suggestion of Captain, afterwards Colonel, Jervis, under the preceding illustrious administration. In October 1829, Sir John Malcolm called particular attention to the objects which had been attained by it, and the promises it held out. It had in view the instruction of those intended to fill offices in the revenue department, or who were likely to pursue the profession of surveyors and builders, on their own account, or in the employment of government. At this period, there were seventy-nine pupils in the establishment in all, each of whom received fifteen rupees a month, as maintenance money, paid to a sergeant who fed and clothed them while under tuition. The number of European boys admitted was unlimited; allowances were restricted to those who had been educated at the Education Society's charity schools. Already a hundred and fifteen pupils trained at the establishment had been taken into government employ and thirty seven more were ready for appointments when they turned up. The encouragements held out were found to have been too high; they brought more to the school than could find employment on leaving: not a few being content to remain under perpetual tuition, so long as they were better paid for learning, than they elsewhere would have been for working, after being taught. It was henceforward resolved to confine encouragement to gratuitous instruction, with the prospect of employment afterwards.—In 1830, the engineer establishment was transferred from Bombay to Poona, for what reason is not quite apparent, further than this, that the duties of Captain Jervis, its superintendent and founder, seem now to have called him to the Deccan. The Governor considered that the institution had given a great impulse to the cause of education, and that it would enable government from henceforth to conduct its surveys at one third the charges they had before cost them. In many points it seems, in its general plan, to have resembled the engineering college at Roorkee, brought into existence in 1850. The pupils were expected to repair the most and manufacture the simplest instruments required for survey purposes. Not only were instructions in Mathematics, drawing, surveying, and practical mechanics given, but the Superintendent had placed at his disposal the lithographic presses from time to time sent out by the Court of Directors since 1822, when through the enterprise of Dr Rhind, this invaluable art was first introduced into India. One of the results of this has been that while Lithography at the Government press until 1847, under a sinecurist Superintendent, was in the most disgraceful state of backwardness, the Engineers' presses, both at Bombay and Poona, have turned out work nearly as good as the climate allows, and been the means of affording instruction to twenty or thirty lithographic establishments now flourishing within the presidency and furnishing the natives we have taught, to read with the sole means at command of obtaining books in their mother tongue. During the five years intervening betwixt 1825 and 1830, close on £10,000 had been expended by Government in printing works in the native languages for the various educational establishments; fourteen thousand rupees were allowed annually to the Education Society for salaries, and thirty-two thousand rupees a year for prizes. And in the course of this time, £20,000, sterling had been expended from the public purse at the Presidency for education. Native contributions for three years having fallen short of £500. European contributions exceeding Rs 8,000. Many useful scientific works were in this way prepared and sent abroad by the Institution in the vernacular languages, and useful knowledge, to a large extent, disseminated, not only in reference to the direct concerns of engineering but to a vast diversity of other matters, as will presently appear. The establishment, excellent and promising as it was, came into existence thirty years too soon, and was maintained in a state of prosperity solely by the zeal of Captain Jervis, its founder, and the enlightened philanthropy of the two distinguished governors under whom it flourished. A few years afterwards, it disappeared from the list of our educational establishments and the books, instruments, drawing materials and scientific apparatus belonging to it, have long lain, inch thick of dust, in a room in the Sanscrit college, Poona, a disgrace to all concerned. In 1844, the Court of Directors established an engineer class in the Elphinstone College Bombay, which, after lingering a couple of years in a state of extreme unhopefulness, perished of inanition, and the whole system which seemed so prosperous thirty five years ago, requires to recommence afresh.

By far the most helpless and dependent portion of the whole Indian community have ever been the Indo-Britons or half-castes, (as they are called) who seem invested with all the weaknesses of both the races to which they belong without possessing the virtue of either parent, seem to have the failings of both; utterly devoid of European enterprize and vigour, they are almost equally so of the sobriety, parsimoniousness and power of endurance of the Native. Hitherto they have sought to earn their bread by one single profession—that of copying clerks; and though they are, in general, better educated than the natives of like classes, and possessed of an infinitude of advantages for supporting or advancing themselves, of which the others are devoid, they never contrive to rise in the scale of society, or in one case in a hundred to make their way creditably through the world: they are perpetually in debt and difficulties, and constantly dependent on external aid, without apparently dreaming of advancement from exertions of their own. It appeared to Sir John Malcolm that much might be done by them were they trained to husbandry and afterwards provided with farms,—and a large establishment for the purpose of teaching them agricultural pursuits was accordingly organized at Phoolshair, fifteen miles from Poona. Unfortunately for the fate of this, the elements most wanting in the Indo-British character were those most essential to success in rural pursuits: the pupils thought work beneath them—their glory was in being idle and dependent; and the result was, as matter of necessity, that, with such elements to deal with, the scheme fell to the ground. To the energy of Sir John Malcolm is due exclusively the establishment of the sanatorium at Mahableshwur, which bears his name, though it is doubtful whether this establishment would have met the countenance of the authorities had the abuses attendant on it been apprehended, or had it been seen how much more frequently it was sought as the resort of idleness or excuse for dissipation, than as a place of restoration from sickness,—and how injurious were the attractions by which it allured the heads of Government from the sphere of their duties, to the retardation of public business.*

Within three miles of the site of the battle, now the Cavalry Barracks at Kirkee, the river Powah, just as it joins the Moola makes a deep and circuitous bend, partly surrounding about eighty acres of rich and nearly level alluvial ground plentifully supplied with fresh water. Here, in former times, resided Major Ford, the principal European officer in the Peishwa's service; close by were meant to be the Mahratta lines. When the Peishwa, in 1818, commenced the war which so quickly proved fatal to the Empire, Major Ford declined, by permission of his engagement, to serve against his country, and from this time he continued to reside at Dapoorie. It appeared to Sir John Malcolm that nothing could be more expedient for the improvement of the

* The following will give some idea of the occasional wanderings of the most erratic of our Governors. Sir James Carnac assumed the reins of Government on the 31st of May 1839, and returned to England on the 23rd April 1841, after an administration short of two years or 700 days. He spent his time as follows:—

From 1841 to 1848, our Governors were very domestic men indeed. Lord Falkland proved a greater wanderer than Sir James Carnac. He arrived in Bombay on the 27th of April 1848.

The Adjutant-General, Quartermaster-General, Judge Advocate General, Adjutant General Queen's Troops, and Inspector-General of Hospitals Queen's Troops, with portions of their various establishments, all move in the train of the Commander-in-Chief—all receiving the full pay due to their rank, amounting in all, including that of his personal staff, to about Rs. 2,500 a month;—the eight months tour of Inspection—that is, the journey to Mahabeshwur and Poona—besides the delay and inconvenience it occasions, incurring a charge on the State of some Rs. 20,000 at least; with, as usual, the interruption of business which broken-up establishments give rise to.

Deccan than the establishment of a botanical garden, for the sake of providing improved seeds and plants, and teaching better modes of culture to the natives, and that Dapoorree presented an eminently favorable locality for such a purpose. The great success which had just attended the introduction of lucerne into the country, and the rich promise unfortunately not realized by the result of the Deccan for the production of silk, with the perfect success that had attended Sir Lionel Smith's attempts to introduce European vegetables, seemed to hold out the brightest prospects for the experiment. The authorities of Bengal were consulted on the subject. Mr. Henry Colebrooke and Dr. Wallach heartily concurred in the Governor's views. It was proposed that eleven acres should be left as a lawn and approach to the buildings, twelve acres for a garden for the house, and forty-eight acres of good land under irrigation to constitute the botanical gardens. At this time however, the Burmese war had put the Court of Directors, not only fearfully out of pocket, but sorely out of temper. Mr. Francis Warden, member of Council stoutly opposed the project on the score of expense, and the Court disapproved of it having been entered on without their sanction, though they authorized the continuance of it, as an experiment, until their final decision should be given at some future day. The dispatch bears date 19th August 1829. Dr. Williamson was first put in charge, and on his death, which occurred a short time afterwards, he was succeeded by Dr. Lush. The scheme exceeded the expence, and did not realize the advantages expected.

The Phoosahir establishment was the only one specially brought into existence for the benefit of Anglo-Indians, but the Governor exerted himself to have them trained as joiners and artificers in the Dockyard in the cordial co-operation of which, in his schemes of benevolence, he could depend with his brother at the head of the Indian Navy, and his Captain's Clerks, and Purser on board the Company's vessels of war; as Engineers in the Mint and as Surveyors under the Engineer establishment. Judging of them from theory rather than observation, he regarded them as the connecting link betwixt Europeans and Natives; as possessed of advantages in matter of education and influence, not within the reach of the latter, and of the capacity of living on little, and withstanding the climate, to which the former could lay no claim. The number of Indo-Britons at this time in Bombay was estimated at a thousand, and to all appearance was somewhat under the mark; by the census of 1849, they were set down at 1,333; but, of all the human inhabitants of India, none seem more incapable of being promoted, or of taking the benefit of the advantages they enjoy; and the whole of the schemes devised for their advantage during the past thirty years, have proved almost equally fruitless.

We have been the more minute in this part of our memoir, in that the exertions of Sir John Malcolm as a practical educationalist, seem to have been, to a considerable extent, overlooked; and the reports of the evidence before the Committee on Indian Affairs, in which the facts just given are to be found, are not very frequently consulted. The merits of the first two distinguished statesmen, who gave the first grand impulse to education in India, are not to be measured by the standards of modern times; the cause has now become as popular as it then was the opposite, and the eclat secured by the mere semblance of exertion—to say nothing of the frequency of success,—is sufficient to stimulate those who are philanthropic enough to desire the welfare of their fellow-creatures or who have the ambition to be supposed men of intelligence or philanthropists. Until 1824, it had been the custom to sneer at the idea of native advancement, and there were not a few who then thought, as Lord Ellenborough* and many others do still, that to educate the natives was to put a period to our power. In the year we have just named, the Bombay Sadder Adawlut complained to Government that the crisis, for which they had for ten years looked forward, had at length arrived, that since 1815 they had been constantly calling attention to the decadence of education amongst the natives, and the consequences which must follow from it, and that there was then not a single Mahomedan law officer qualified to fill the appointments daily falling vacant,—so perfectly indifferent were the home authorities to these matters, that in place of giving any heed to the statements laid before them, they directed the salaries of the native judges to be still further reduced, thereby diminishing the only incentive which had previously existed to educate themselves, and which had hitherto proved insufficient.* And it must further be remembered that at the time of Mr. Elphinstone's appointment, so lightly were the services of the most illustrious of the East India Company's employes esteemed, that in 1818, Mr. Canning taunted the Court by telling them, "that it was more usual for them rather to look for their Governors amongst persons of eminence in England than amongst the servants of the country;"—the King had sometime before refused to sanction the Commander-in-Chief for Bombay, because he had belonged to the Company's Army.† Matters are still in this respect very much the same, with the exception that eminence in England is not now considered requisite for the highest appointments in India, and they are so proposed to be continued. A Pollock, a Nott, a Littler, or a Gilbert, have not the smallest chance with a Sir Richard Armstrong, or a Sir John Grey, or any other septuagenarian of interest. Cabool is a pregnant illustration of the excellence of the whole plan.—So is Burmah.

One of the most notable passages in the administration of Sir John Malcolm was the contest into which Government fell with the Supreme Court,—and the various issues that arose from it. From the time of the establishment of the Queen's Court in Bombay in 1823, the Judges had manifested an almost constant disposition to attack the Government and interfere with its proceedings; to invest themselves with such an amount of authority and secure such an immunity from censure and responsibility, as was scarcely to be endured. The failing was manifested in the most opposite directions—they at one time flatly refused to register the press regulations recommended by Government, and the most violent attacks on Government from the bench, knowing that these would be published as reports, and knowing, also, that their appearance in any other form would have occasioned the banishment of the publisher; and at another, moved the authorities to act in the most arbitrary and tyrannous manner towards the newspapers. In September 1828, a writ of Habeas corpus was issued under the orders of the Supreme Court, to produce the body of a native confined in the jail of Poona,—the court maintaining that, in this matter, their jurisdiction was not limited to the island of Bombay but extended all over the presidency. In October a letter was addressed to the Chief Justice by the Governor in Council, forbidding the Court to proceed further in the matter. The Chief Justice, Sir William Chambers, on reading this from the Bench, stated that they declined recognizing the right of any party or parties to address the Court in other form than that prescribed for the humblest suitor,—that within these walls they owned no equal and no superior but God and the King. The Judges declared their determination to maintain their rights to the uttermost, and directed the Clerk of the Crown to write to the Chief Secretary that the letter had been received, but that no notice would be taken of the instructions contained in it. A few days after this, Sir J. P. Grant became Chief Justice for the time by the sudden demise of Sir W. Chambers, and he continued in the same course his predecessor had pursued. Matters having now come to a crisis, the acting Chief Justice, on the 1st April, declared the Court to be closed. On the 7th Government issued a proclamation intimating the measures adopted by them for the protection of His Majesty's subjects while this state of matters endured, and the Chief Justice was not slow in making the step thus taken matter of severe animadversion. The Governor-General on being applied to, to support the Court, declined to interfere in the matter until the arrival of instructions from home; and in June, Sir John Grant, by desire of supreme authority, deemed it expedient to open the criminal sessions for dispatch of business, and to go over the whole matter in his address to the Grand Jury. On the 10th June the case came before the King in council, when it was decided that the Bombay Court had exceeded its powers—that its jurisdiction was much more limited than had been assumed. Meanwhile, it was determined to visit the contumacy of Mr. Justice Grant by supercession:—Mr. Dewar, the advocate-general, a young man of thirty years of age, was appointed chief justice, and directed to be knighted and installed with all the pomp and circumstance that was permitted, with the view of impressing the natives with magnificent ideas of the supreme authority of the Local Government. The instructions given on these points by Lord Ellenborough, then head of the Board of Control, have been shown to be eminently typical of the pomp and circumstance of his future career when Governor-General of India. It was resolved, at the same time, to send out a third judge to Bombay, that Sir John Peter Grant might be kept in order, like a wild elephant, betwixt two tame ones! A confidential letter, in which these expressions occur, written to the Governor by Lord Ellenborough, then at the head of the Board of Control, on the subject, was most incautiously read by him at the Parell breakfast-table, and the substance of it, almost verbatim, forwarded to Calcutta for publication in the newspapers.

The stir made by the publication of this was brought fully before both Houses of Parliament, when the Chairman of the Board of Control acknowledged that though he had kept no copy of the original, the substance of it, as published was, in the main, correct. By the bulk of the Conservatives, the letter was defended: Lord Durham, Lord John Russell, Sir James McIntosh, and Mr. Brougham, on the other hand, stated that it seemed very doubtful whether a minister who could write a missive so degrading and hostile to the independence of the colonial bench was qualified for remaining in office at all. The great cause of all the mischief was still in the field. Moroo Raghonath was a boy of nine years old, and it was from the custody of his grandfather, Pandoorung Ramchunder, that it was desired to release him by habeas corpus. In the sessions of 1830, a year and more after the fray had been at its hottest and the Court resumed its duties, an indictment was preferred against Mahadoo Senoba for wilful perjury in 1828 on one part of the case referred to. On the case coming on before the Court, Mr. Morley, counsel for the defendant, moved for the postponement of the trial, on the ground that he had been prevented bringing forward the most indispensable witnesses,—the habeas corpus ad testificandum directed to Pandoorung Ramchunder to bring up Moroo Raghonath as a witness, having been resisted. A correspondence which had taken place a twelvemonth before was produced in Court, from which it appeared that though Government authorised the payment of the expenses of witnesses in this case from Poona, they declined to make use of any means, or to suffer any to be made use of, to enforce attendance; their—Moroo Raghonath and Pandoorung Ramchunder was especially named as neither to be influenced nor to receive expenses for attendance,—and thus “for political reasons of paramount importance.” The Chief Justice stated that in this case Mr. Morgan, the Company's attorney, had been guilty of a great contempt in suffering himself to be made the means of such a communication as that, the substance of which has just been stated, to the attorney of the defendant: it was the grossest possible act of injustice to procure a man to be indicted for perjury, and then for the prosecutors to interpose and prevent him providing himself with witnesses; and thereon dilated on the frightful injustice contemplated by Government, and the great impropriety of lawyers not considering their first duty, on all occasions, due to the Court. The case was at once sent home for the consideration of the king in council. Long before it could be considered at home, a change came over the opinions of the Governor, coincidentally with, and it is said in consequence of, despatches received from home. Pandoorung Ramchunder was now told that he must attend to the order of the Court : he had an interview with the Governor at Daporee, when he expressed his astonishment at the change, as he had proceeded all along according to the wishes of Government ; but he was again assured that, however this might be, he must now submit to the writ. What the objects of Government may have been in this second act of the drama, in which they most assuredly were in the wrong, does not appear,—but the whole matter wears in history the aspect of an undignified petty blunder.

Sir John Grant had called the conduct of the Bombay Government tyrannous, oppressive and unjust : he had treated their orders with something more than arrogance and contempt:—he had, in the manuscript of his speech as meant to have been delivered, and as actually published, though it was stated that the paragraph was struck out, termed the Government little short of rebels. “Nothing” said he “can be more like to rebellion than the Governor of a province part of the realms of the King of England, turning the military force of the province against the King’s Supreme Court of Justice there.” And the war of words had raged as furious and hot as wordy warfare well could become,—and that, too, betwixt two men not apt to control their tempers or willing to give way. The Judges, by addressing the Court, could make their sentiments of Government known to the world through the reports of the newspapers; and this at a time when an editor who dare to express any views of his own ran the risk of deportation ! Nothing could exceed the violence, nor, under such circumstances, the indecorum, if this sort of declamation in a country in which political discussion of all sorts was at the time prevented by law. But Sir John Malcolm and Sir John Grant, though both resolute and headstrong enough, and both, on this occasion, somewhat in the wrong—the lawyer the most so,—were at bottom kind-hearted, amiable and able men, and it is equally to the honor of both parties to find, within a twelvemonth of the time when the squabble was at its wildest, that the Governor and Chief Justice had become cordially reconciled—and this after a fashion which demanded the unalloyed admiration of all.* The result of all these wranglings was a memorial from the Court of Directors, urging Sir John Grant’s recall, and in September 1830, accordingly, he was directed to repair to England. The communication was forwarded to him through the Government, whose proceedings do not appear to have been over and above mild or respectful on the occasion,—the previous reconciliation notwithstanding. On its becoming known that the Chief Justice was about to return home, an advertisement was issued intimating that a public meeting would take place to propose an address to him on the occasion ; and thereupon Government caused an opposition notification to be published, intimating that the Governor in Council deemed it his duty to make it known that, instead of having, resigned, the Chief Justice had been recalled by an order of the King in Council, to answer complaints made against him by the Honorable the East India Company. The address, which is an able and an eminently complimentary one, was, not the less, subscribed by four thousand natives, and Sir John retired stripped of his appointment, but in triumph. Instead of proceeding to England, where his appearance was dispensed with, he went round by steamer to Bengal. His purpose of retiring from the bench had, for many months, been known, and the report that he proposed to practise at Calcutta, current so early as the month of June, had, for months before his arrival, caused no small sensation amongst the legal circles in the metropolis of India. He was soon afterwards raised to the Bench, from which he retired in 1848 as Chief Justice, full of years and of honors. He died on his way home.

Sir John Malcolm had arrived in Bombay in November 1827 ; in the beginning of the third year of his administration, he intimated to the Court of Directors his anxiety to retire early, and in March 1830, the Earl of Clare was nominated to take his place in the event of his death, sickness, or retirement. On the 1st January 1830 the functions of the military board were suspended, and the Board itself declared abolished pending the pleasure of the Court of Directors. It continued many years in abeyance. The grounds of this measure were sound and satisfactory—"in order to maintain the principle of direct responsibility, and to promote reforms which are alike calculated to decrease labour and simplify and accelerate the business which was now to be performed by the department to which it belonged" : one of the most popular measures that any Government now or formerly could well adopt towards this proverbially unpopular establishment, even under its present eminently able and popular head. In June, full batta was directed to cease at Bhooj and Deesa. The allowances of European offices were left untouched : tent and store lascars, with other servants and attendants, were to receive no batta, unless when actually employed. A few weeks afterwards the appointments of executive engineers in the northern and southern Concan, and at Ahmedabad, Kaira, Hursole, Surat, Broach, Baroda, Sholapore and Malligaum, were abolished ; and about the same time, three British officers in the service of the Rajah of Nagpore were directed to be placed at the disposal of the Commander-in-Chief. Sir John Malcolm was much too intimately acquainted with the country and its people, and held far too high an opinion of his own powers, to act on the suggestions of secretaries or desire the advice of councillors : though those in office under him were men of much experience and ability, and eminently competent to suggest and advise. Clonool Barwell, political agent in Kattiawar, lived mostly with him—so loose were the notions of the time on the subject of official residence,—and was termed by him his mentor. The retirement from office of the two great champions of this strife was almost simultaneous : the Chief Justice left for Calcutta by the steamer Enterprise in October—the Governor quitted by the Red Sea route in November, after an active but unquiet administration of three years.

He had been promised the Governorship of Madras seven years before, when Sir Thomas Munro was appointed—an arrangement prevented by the Board of Control—and at the time he came to Bombay, the finances of India were suffering from the enormous outlay of the Burmese war, which had cost the country close on ten millions sterling. Like Lord William Bentinck, he had, on his nomination, been enjoined to introduce the most rigid economy ; and while the Bengal finance committee was cutting and carving every where, Sir John Malcolm set on foot a series of supplementary retrenchments of his own, carrying economy so far that almost every reduction made by him had afterwards to be made up. The Indian Navy, over which his brother Sir Charles then presided, furnished almost the only exception in this,—and a service the Calcutta committee desired to be reduced to the verge of extinction, seemed to him to stand more in need of increase than of reduction at a time when the opening up of the Red Sea route was obviously approaching, and the preparatory surveys were begun ;—a view something more than concurred in by the Court of Directors, as may be seen by the extent to which this branch of the service has been and is being extended. In India, where most men are lavish of money, financial retrenchments are peculiarly unpopular, and the violence with which those of the government were at this time denounced and ridiculed, showed what a storm of unpopularity a system of economy might occasion. The character of Lord William Bentinck, since then universally admitted to have been one of the most lofty, pure, and dignified of the illustrious age to which he belonged, was, for a long period, blackened and buried under the half batta order, decreed beforehand by the Court, and of which the Governor-General was merely the promulgator.

There were sufficient reasons why an administration which, throughout, had been a peculiarly absolute and turbulent one, should, notwithstanding its universally admitted vigour and ability, be to some extent an unpopular one. After his departure, the Bombay Courier, for long considered the organ of Government, stated that "whether it arose from the tyrannous way in which invidious duties were performed, or the frequent absence of that courtesy the community have been accustomed to experience at the hands of their Governors, or the undignified practices which latterly characterised a recent political collision, Sir John Malcolm is perhaps, at this moment (December 1, 1830, the week after he left) the most unpopular man who ever exercised authority in India." The same journal was constrained to admit, however, that "in many instances the late Governor did tread in the footsteps of Elphinstone, and in some particulars outshone that illustrious statesman and excellent man in the clearness of his views and liberality of his measures. Literature, native education, and the propagation of the Gospel, were objects which received no ordinary share of Sir John Malcolm's attention." "While, in his bearing towards the Press, his exertions in behalf of the Indo-Britons, and the improvements he has introduced,—the roads, the salubrious stations, and the encouragement shown by him to men of capital and enterprize,—Sir John Malcolm went far beyond any of his predecessors." The Gazette again, then conducted by Captain Morris, loaded him with eulogy, and spoke of the importance of his presence in England to share in the discussions of the Charter then impending,—where it was expected that he would be the champion of the liberty of the press, and stand up for the pure administration of justice and the free resort of Europeans to India"—a hope not destined to be realized : he died in May 1833, before the Charter discussions came on in Parliament. We have no means of knowing what authority ought to be attached to the opinions of the newspapers of Bombay twenty years ago—if not greater than that which the majority of them can at the present day claim, it is light enough.* But Sir John Malcolm received addresses from nearly every class of the community, however different their views : from the Natives†, for the kindness and consideration with which he had

* This was written early in 1832, a few weeks afterwards, the management of one of the papers fell into hands under which it has been void of reproach.

† The following are extracts from the advice of Sir John Malcolm to Englishmen in India, in their conduct towards natives in the management of affairs : the counsel is not only eminently wise and sound, but is as applicable and as necessary now as at the time it was given :—

"The first, and one of the most important points is the manner of European superiors towards the natives. It would be quite out of place, in this paper, to speak of the necessity of kindness, and of an absence of all violence ; this must be a matter of course with those to whom it is addressed : there is much more required from them than that conciliation which is a duty, but which, when it appears as such, loses half its effect. It must, to make an impression, be a habit of the mind, grounded on a favourable consideration of the qualities and merits of those to whom it extends ; and this impression, I am satisfied, every person will have, who, after attaining a thorough knowledge of the real character of those with whom he has intercourse, shall judge them. without prejudice or self-conceit, by a standard which is suited to their belief, their usages, their habits, their occupations, their rank in life, the ideas they have imbibed from infancy, and the stage of civilization to which the community as a whole are advanced. If he does so with that knowledge and that temper of mind which are essential to render him competent to form an opinion, he will find enough of virtue, enough of docility and disposition to improvement, enough of regard and observance of all the best and most sacred ties of society, to create an esteem for individuals, and an interest in the community, which, when grounded on a sincere conviction of its being deserved, will render his kindness natural and conciliating. All treated them ; from the Missionaries, for the interest he had shown in the promotion of religion ; from the Indo-Britons on the only occasion perhaps on which they ever came forward with an address as a body ; and from the Learned Societies and Community at large. A magnificent statue by Chantrey was erected in the town hall in his honor, by general subscription ; a full length portrait of him was procured by contribution amongst the Indo-Britons—it is hung up in the hall of the Elphinstone college along with that of its illustrious founder ; and the members of the Asiatic Society desired a bust of him for the rooms with which he had provided them. His report on the misunderstandings of the Madras Army had been published so early as 1809 ; his History of Persia in 1815, and sketches of the same country some time after. His sketch of the Seikhs, and report on Malwa and history of Central India, had all appeared some time before he became Governor of Bombay. His work on the administrahuman beings, down to the lowest links of the chain, inclusive of children, are quick in tracing the source of the manners of others, and above all, of their superiors ; when that is regulated by the head, not the heart—when it proceeds from reason, not from feeling, it cannot please : for it has in it, if at all artificial, a shew of design which repels, as it generates suspicion. When this manner takes another shape, when kindness and consideration appear as acts of condescension, it must be felt as offensive. Men may dread, but can never love or regard, those who are continually humiliating them by the parade of superiority.

“ I have recommended those foundations of manner, towards the natives of India, upon which I feel my own to be grounded. I can recollect (and I do it with shame) the period when I thought I was very superior to those with whom my duty made me associate ; but as my knowledge of them and of myself improved, the distance between us gradually lessened. I have seen and heard much of our boasted advantages over them, but cannot think that, if all the ranks of the different communities of Europe and India are comparatively viewed, there is just ground for any very arrogant feeling on the part of the inhabitants of the former ; nor can I join in that common-place opinion, which condemns, in a sweeping way, the natives of this country as men, taking the best of them, not only unworthy of trust and devoid of principle, but of too limited intelligence and reach of thought, to allow of Europeans, with large and liberal minds and education, having rational or satisfactory intercourse with them. Such impressions, if admitted, must prove vital as to the manner of treating the natives of India ; I shall therefore say a few words upon the justice of the grounds upon which they rest. The man who considers them in this light can grant little or no credit to the high characters, and the eulogies which are given to individuals and great bodies of men, in their own histories, traditions, and records. He must then judge them by his own observations and knowledge, and his opinion will, in all probability, be formed, not comparatively with Europeans of their own class of life, but with the public servants of government—a class of men who are carefully educated, whose ambition is stimulated by the highest prospects of preferment, and whose integrity is preserved by adequate salaries through every grade of their service. Before this last principle was introduced (which is little more than thirty years), the European servants of government were in the habit of making money in modes not dissimilar to those we now reproach the natives in our employ with doing ; and it may here be asked, ‘ If the same endeavours have been made to alter the habits of the latter as the former ? ’ I believe the exact contrary to be the fact, and that the system since introduced has not operated more to elevate the European, than to sink and depress the native character ; but this is not the place for the discussion of this large question.

“ There is a veil between the Natives of India and their European superiors, which leaves the latter ignorant, in an extraordinary degree, of the real character of the former. He can only judge his own domestics by what he sees of their conduct in his presence ; of the manner in which they perform their other duties in life, he is, if not ignorant, but imperfectly informed ; so many minute obstacles, grounded upon caste, usages, and religion, oppose an approach to closer acquaintance, that it can never be generally attained : but in private intercourse, much may be learned that will facilitate the performance of public duty, and give that knowledge of the usages and feelings of the various classes of the Natives, which will enable its possessors to touch every chord with effect. In joining with them in field sports, in an unceremonious interchange of visits with the most respectable, and in seeking the society of the most learned, the European public officer will not only gain much information, but impart complete confidence, and lay the grounds of that personal attachment which will ever be found of the greatest aid to his public labours. He will also obtain, by such private intercourse, the means of elevating those tion of India was published the year after his return home. The most valuable of all his works, and which had been immortalized by the noble essay of Macaulay—the Life of Lord Clive,—was written while he was Governor; and though, stated on his retirement to be nearly ready for press, it was not published until 1836,—after he had been three years in his grave. He left Bombay on the 22nd November 1830, and taking the Red Sea and Thebes in his route, reached England in 1831. Shortly after his return he was elected member of Parliament for Launceston, and distinguished himself for his opposition to the Reform Bills then under discussion. He lost his seat on the general reform election of 1832, and died in London of paralysis in May 1833.

he esteems by marks of notice and regard: but, in pursuing this course, he must beware lest he lose his object, by falling into the weakness or indulgences of the persons with whom he thus associates. It is in the performance of this part of his duty, when all the pride of station is laid aside, that he must most carefully guard that real superiority which he derives from better knowledge and truer principles of morality and religion: for it is from the impression made by the possession without the ostentation of those higher qualities, that he must expect the benefits I have described as likely to result from a familiar and private intercourse with the natives under his direction and control.

“In all official intercourse with the natives, one of the first points of importance is, that these, whatever be their rank, class, or business, should have complete and easy access to personal communication with their European superior. The necessity for this arises out of the character of our rule, and of those over whom it is established. It is sufficiently galling for the people of India to have foreign masters: the impression this feeling must continually excite, can only be mitigated or removed by a recurring sense of the advantages they derive from the wisdom and justice of their European superiors: and this can alone be effected by direct communication with them. Though native servants must be employed and trusted, and though it is quite essential to behave to all with kindness, and to raise the higher classes of them by a treatment which combines consideration and respect, yet they can never, without hazard, be used as exclusive mediums of communication: their real or supposed influence will, under whatever circumstances they are allowed frequent approach to an European officer in the exercise of authority, give them opportunities of abusing his confidence, if they desire it; and as our servants, who are seldom selected from the higher classes, cannot be supposed to have even the same motives with native rulers for good conduct, much less the same title to regard, men under our power will have, in aggravation of the feeling arising out of subjection to foreign rule, that of being, to a certain extent, at the mercy of persons of their own nation, whom they neither trust nor respect. There is no remedy for such an evil, except being completely easy of access: but this, however much the superior may desire it, is not to be established without difficulty and perseverance. It affects the interest and consequence of every man in his employ, from the highest to the lowest, but, in proportion to their efforts to counteract it, so must his be to carry this important point, on which, more than all others, the integrity of his personal administration and the good of the country depend. No native servant, high or low, must be allowed the privilege of either introducing or stopping an applicant or a complainant: all such must come with confidence to the European superior, or to such assistant as he may specifically direct to receive or hear them.”

This is the counsel of one of the really great men of India—a man of large, generous, noble and liberal views, extensive powers of observation, and the experience of a third part of a century. Sir John here gives the true and correct definition of the often distorted and abused aphorism about the rule of opinion—we govern India by the belief in our virtue—our honor, truth, and courage,—a belief which must become extinguished so soon as the things believed in begin to disappear. Every indulgence in the base and vile species of lying occasionally practised by state-men, on the plea of state necessity or political expediency, is a blow to our power and an injury to our character. In our truth, honesty and openness, lies our strength: abandon these, and we sink to a level with the natives: so soon as they come to be tolerated, excused, or endured, they are on the eve of being abandoned—the hate of them is gone already. Again, there is no man so quick and keen in the perception of character as the Native—he takes the measure of the mind and morals of the European before he knows it, and plays upon his weakness and turns his vices to account without his ever suspecting it. On this very account he is quick to a degree in his perceptions of kindness, consideration and attention; the very timidity of his character makes him constantly seek to lean on some one, yet constantly to distrust those on whom he desires to lean; and the way recommended by Sir John Malcolm—how wide of that

LORD CLARE : 1831-1836.

Sir John Malcolm had written home in 1829 of his intention to retire from India early; and Sir Sidney Beckwith, the Commander-in-Chief, was provided with a special commission to act as Governor—the law but for this required the senior member or council to be promoted—until his successor arrived. On the 10th of March 1830 Lord Clare was sworn in at the India House as provisional governor, to succeed in the event of the death, sickness, or retirement, of Sir John Malcolm. Sir John seems to have hung on longer than he had intended, and Lord Clare left England just about the time his predecessor quitted Bombay—the end of November. He was the last Governor under the old charter—the first who ever came out overland. He embarked at Cosseir on board the Hugh Lindsay on New Year's Day, which was detained six weeks in the Red Sea for want of coal, and the rumour ran that she was burnt.

He arrived and was sworn in on the 21st March, 1831. He conferred the appointment of military secretary on Major Thomas Powell, 3rd N. I., who as private secretary to the late Governor had just received the special thanks of Government for his conduct. The Hon'ble Captain F. Upton, of H. M.'s 62nd, was appointed private secretary, and Dr. Wallace surgeon. These matters become worthy of notice, as a tolerable guess at the Governor's notions of the nature of his duties and of his own cast of mind may be obtained from the character of his personal staff. We have already stated that he spent the first wet season at the presidency, and then proceeded by Baroda, whose affairs were about this time in that condition of conglomeration which they seem periodically to obtain, on his way to meet the Governor-General Lord William Bentinck in Rajpootana. He returned to Bombay by Baroda in April 1832. That a much greater knowledge of Indian affairs is indispensable for good government than a man can by any possibility possess who first steps on our shores with the view of entering on the immediate administration of affairs is beyond question; but there is much that may be effected in the way of reforms by an able industrious man who is determined to exert himself, and familiar with the best forms of business as conducted at home,—and whatever might be effected in this department Lord Clare determined to attempt. The system of universal record under each department, and the transmission of all business papers to the supreme government, the India house and India board, necessarily makes the management of public business tardy, complex, and slow,—though a better one, even under this disadvantage, could hardly be devised where the occupants of office are so apt to be so suddenly removed—where they scarcely ever rise through the department over which they ultimately preside, and where selections are seldom made on the mere score of merit. But delays creep in which are by no means essential parts of the system—the whole Native and Eurasian portions of the establishment are proverbially slow and dilatory: and these elements seem almost to belong to the enervating atmosphere of the East, and to be imbibed by all who breathe it. The celerity with which on occasion business can be dispatched when the head of the department through which it passes has some end to gain by expedition, shows most clearly that were stimulants sufficiently strong applied, the rate of progress might be indefinitely accelerated; and Lord Clare determined that he would at the outset at all events secure the means of discovering the cause of delay. A specific time—a week if we remember aright—was prescribed by him beyond so frequently pursued!—is the only one to win his confidence, and afterwards to know his character and make him subservient to wise and good ends—to the advancement of his own countrymen and the promotion of British interests and power, so far as the two go together. We have only been able to give a few extracts from the letter: it was directed by Sir Thomas Munro to be printed for general information, and ought to form a standing preliminary chapter to Jameson's Code, the Civil Service Regulations, or whatever else is most frequently referred to and consulted by the members of both services.

which no document should rest anywhere on any pretence whatever ; and if it remained there longer, the cause of its delay was ordered to be placed on record : trivial matters were pushed on with still greater promptitude. Since his time, papers have been found reposing for months on the desks of members of council, and mere letters of form, requiring no reference whatever, and forming part of a series, are months at times in receiving an answer, though public measures of much importance must stand still, and those entrusted with them remain comparatively idle, till the reply is received. So sedulously did he labour, that by the time he had been six months in Bombay, he appeared to have mastered every part of his duties as governor, and to be most perfectly familiar not only with the most intricate of the forms and routines of business, but with the history and the interests of all parts of the presidency over which he ruled. Had no other memento been left of Lord Clare's government, this was sufficient to have caused it to be lastingly remembered amongst us. To Lord Clare, we are indebted for the foundation of the Bombay Geographical Society, established in 1831, at the suggestion of Mr. Elphinstone, with the view of co-operating with the Royal Geographical Society of London, and securing the speedy publication of those masses of information then being collected in the various surveys in progress or in contemplation. Lord Clare in June 1832 presided over one of the earliest meetings of this body, and delivered an excellent address on the subjects of its efforts, pursuits and aims. It was by him that the Deccan Agricultural Society was brought into existence, in the hope of stimulating or instructing the natives and introducing civilized habits of enterprise and activity, and improved varieties of industry amongst them—now at last beginning to be recognised as the only means through which the increased prosperity of the country can be achieved.

So far from desiring to walk in the footsteps of his predecessor, there were several points on which Lord Clare seemed anxious to reverse as far as possible the policy of Sir John Malcolm ; and this was particularly the case in reference to the affairs of Baroda. Governor Duncan had in 1802 given the benefit of the British guarantee to Rowjee Appajee, minister to the Guicowar, with his heirs : in this his nephew Wittul Row was included. In 1821 the Guicowar of his own free will and accord settled on the minister a grant of Rs. 60,000 per annum, and increased this in 1827 to something above a lakh. Subsequently his highness stated to Mr. Elphinstone that the augmentation had been made without his consent and contrary to his wishes,—and he was accordingly permitted to cancel it. In 1830 Sir John Malcolm, wishing to obtain the services of the Dewanjee, declared that the guarantee of 1802 extended to the grant of 1827, and directed the Guicowar to be instructed accordingly,—his highness most positively refusing to be guided by us in the matter. The letter of Lord Clare, which bears the stamp of vigour and originality on its face, is a long and an able one : he states that however expedient it may be for us to have those who oblige us rewarded, it is most unjust in us to insist on the Guicowar requiting his own subjects for service to a foreign state such as he regards injurious to his own : that we had no right to compel him to continue to his minister the grant made to him when in favor, after he had got into disgrace,—much less to enforce the continuance of the annuity to a son that had been adopted without the consent of the British or Baroda government.* He pronounced the judgment of Sir John Malcolm most unjust and unauthorized, and thought that but for the painful position in which it must place us in the eyes of the natives, the British Government might fairly disavow and refuse to ratify the agreement. It has accordingly been thenceforth omitted, and the sum paid by the Guicowar was directed to be refunded from our treasury. The papers on this subject were published by Parliament in 1850 : why they should at this late date have been called for, does not appear. The whole views expressed by Lord Clare are frank, honest, and upright—such as become a British statesman. An agent from Baroda, who had two years before been refused admission to Government house and threatened with ejection from the presidency, having returned from Bengal, where he endeavoured to catch the ear of the supreme government, was formally introduced to Lord Clare by Mr. John Warden, now third member of council—then assistant agent for Sirdars in the Deccan, and experienced a most gracious reception. The Baroda districts, which had for a time been sequestered to mete these difficulties, were about this time restored to the Guicowar.

* From the opinions expressed and cases cited by Sir C. Metcalf and others on the papers lately published on Hindoo inheritance, it is clear that though it has become customary to adopt by consent of Government only, the Hindoo according to his own laws, has as much right to adopt as to beget an heir without council, and that the one is just as much entitled to inheritance of his own right as the other, without the leave of any one whatever.

Throughout his administration his lordship was most assiduous in his endeavours to promote native improvement and the general cause of education : he was at all times frank, and open, easy of access, and perfectly ready to enter on the discussion of any subject that might be broached. His absoluteness of temper sometimes led him into acts of despotism and tyranny, which must ever be remembered as blemishes of an able and firm, and on the whole a benevolent, administration. His conduct towards Mr. Bruce was unjustifiable in the extreme. This gentleman was brother of Sir William Bruce of Stenhouse—one of the most upright and respected members of the civil service. He had been appointed acting collector of customs by Mr. Elphinstone, and about this time, he was sub-treasurer to government and was elected chairman to the Justices of the Peace. In a question about the allocation of the municipal funds, of which the Justices considered themselves the exclusive administrators, it fell to the lot of their chairman to reply to and come in conflict with Government, which then claimed the power of appropriating a portion of the funds the justices claimed as their own. Mr. Bruce of course deemed it his duty to represent the views of his constituents,—and this was deemed by Lord Clare an offence not to be endured,—and he was accordingly punished by deprivation of his appointment and removal from the commission.* On this Mr. Bruce prepared a memorial to the Court of Directors, which could only be transmitted to its destination through Government ; he was ordered to withdraw his complaints and abandon his grounds of appeal, on pain of the severest punishment that could be inflicted on him—and he remained accordingly for some time out of employment. Immediately after this, Natives were for the first time raised to the rank of Justices of the Peace, with the view of obtaining for Government a moveable counterpoising interest in case of collision,—a wise measure in itself in a different light from that which gave it its origin, and eminently popular with those affected by it. It must be remembered, in conclusion, that though

* We give this as the currently received version of the case of Mr. Bruce. The following is from the pen of a correspondent who had the best means of knowing the real state of the case : it may, we feel confident, be accepted in lieu of what has already been stated, and hitherto generally believed—

" I feel sure that the disagreement between Mr. Bruce and Lord Clare, and the warm discussion in the Town Hall on what was considered a misappropriation of the Municipal Fund in pensioning the Clerk of the Peace out of it, only led to the erasure of his name, with those of others, from the Commission. Shortly afterwards, Mr. Bruce thought himself so injured by Lord Clare appointing Mr. Borradaile, instead of him, to a Customs Commission of Enquiry at Calcutta, that he wrote officially to Government that the arrangement arose out of a desire, on Lord Clare's part to gratify his private pique. This, after being shewn to several members of the Civil Service, was laid before the full Council, who decreed his dismissal (or impugning bad motives to the President, who they said was entitled to be protected from insult : they would not listen to an amendment of Lord Clare's to refer it to the Governor General for disposal—as a disinterested party. Every effort was made to induce Mr. Bruce to withdraw that which is forbidden in all public and private intercourse, before the blow was struck. Lord Clare's own Military Secretary went to him—but all in vain. Lord Clare and Mr. Bruce were both highly honourable men, but the first was warm-tempered as well as warm-hearted, and the latter, though extremely amiable, was, in this instance, inflexible."

these acts seemed most tyrannous and oppressive, the conduct of Lord Clare regarding them was cordially approved of by the Court—that of Mr. Bruce was much too independent to meet their wishes. Under the succeeding administration, he was immediately restored to his employment—he had never lost the estimation of any one but the Governor—and in 1836 was made Sheriff of Bombay,—an appointment for which the servants of governments are seldom selected, and which, on this occasion, is said to have been worth Rs. 26,000. On the whole, the administration of Lord Clare, though upright, able and vigorous, was not popular, and though scholarships were established in his honor, and entertainments given him at Poona and Bombay on his departure, great care was taken to show that these were not the emanations of the public at large, but displays of personal friendship on private considerations. The Charter Act of 1834 had so abridged the power, and tied the hands of the local governments, that Lord Clare found the office, in its altered form, eminently distasteful, and resolved to tender his resignation nearly a year before the natural term of his administration arrived.* He left Bombay in April 1835, and, up to the close of his life in 1851, continued to take a warm interest in the affairs of the presidency and to correspond with his native friends, with whom he had, at all times lived on terms of warm cordiality.

In sketching Lord Clare's general administration and personal character, we alluded to his discussions with the municipal authorities of this island, which led indirectly to that which Lord Clare always spoke of as the act that has caused him most painful feelings, viz., the dismissal of Mr. Bruce from his office. These discussions arose on the Police Reform of the Presidency—which, though affecting Bombay itself alone, was, if not the most important, the most practically useful measure he effected. When Lord Clare assumed the Government, Bombay was infested with robbers, and the Police Corps encumbered with the old, the halt, and the blind, who fled before the rogues like a flock of sheep, and a large body of the Poona Horse were brought down for the protection of the island. What is now the general character of the Police of Great Britain, was then new, and was called the 'Peel Police,' after its distinguished originator. The peculiar characteristic of it was the division of Police into 'judicial' and 'executive;' and Lord Clare, aided by the powerful co-operation of the sagacious mind and large experience of Sir Herbert Compton, the Chief Justice, resolved on introducing the Peel Police at Bombay. At this moment, the office of Senior Magistrate, becoming vacant by the departure for England of Mr. De Vitre, his duties were divided,—the judicial part being conferred on Mr. John Warden, and the Executive on Captain (now Lieut. Colonel) Shortt, who was designated at the time by Sir Thomas Wiltshire, who was no mean judge of such matters, 'the best officer of the Indian Army he had ever seen.' Captain Shortt applied himself to his new task with a vigour and industry which could alone have secured him success in an island so particularly unsuited to efficient Executive Police as Bombay—he portioned out the island into divisions, to which were assigned their European Constables—(the pick of the Bombay Army) and their Native Officers, as well as Sepoys of Police, whose duty it was to become acquainted with the characters of all within their respective ranges. He promoted merit wherever he found it, and punished sloth and breaches of trust whenever they appeared. This reform was introduced at the close of 1833, and three years afterwards an address was presented out to Mr. Warden by the inhabitants, certifying 'the almost total suppression of crime on the island,' and which, as regarded violent crime, was not very much beyond the truth. The Institution of the Conservancy department, now the most efficient machine for the health and comfort of the inhabitants,—the sluices at Love Grove, before the formation of which, Bellasis Road would, at times, be a foot under water, and the Esplanade a continuous lake—the building of markets, the remodelling of the system of Spirit licences, the giving effect to the Act empowering the appointment of Natives as Justices of the Peace, were some of the measures which grew out of Lord Clare's Police Reform. Mr. Warden and Captain Shortt resigned their offices almost at the same moment, after six years of labour, and as we lately mentioned, Mr. Warden was seconded by Mr. LeGeyt, whose most conciliatory manner and kindliness of disposition secured for him a cordiality of reception by the Municipal Body which had been withheld from his predecessor, who had taken a prominent figure in, and was identified with all, the contests between the Government and the Magistrates, and the consequent erasure of troublesome names from the Commission of the Peace,—but he had been the Pioneer; and so encouraged was Mr. LeGeyt by his own success, that he has ever since been the most zealous promoter of Conservancy improvement in the Mofussil.

We now learn from the examination of Mr. Melvill that Lord Clare threw up his appointment in consequence of the manner in which he felt himself hampered under the Act of 1834, and which came into effect in the middle of his administration.

SIR ROBERT GRANT : 1835-1838.

Mr. C. Grant, long a distinguished member of the Bengal civil service, and afterwards of the Court of Directors, had two sons Charles and Robert, both brought up to the Bar : the former of these became chairman of the India Board in 1831 on the accession of Lord Grey's administration to office :—the latter was knighted on being appointed Governor of Bombay. Mr. Charles Grant, the younger, had, in 1813, been a stout supporter of the views of the India House on the subject of the Charter: he and his family afforded an excellent illustration of the folly of the policy which precludes a servant of the Company from the office of Governor-General: to this Lord Glenelg, who had never been in India, might have been promoted—his father, a man of equal talent, would have been prevented from ruling over the land in which half his life had been spent. The discussions on the Charter Act of 1833 were almost exclusively conducted by the two Grants on the Ministerial side; and Sir Robert lived to wear and to wince under the fetters he had forged for others: no man ever felt more bitterly the grief of having his hands tied from the performance of great and good actions by the bands he himself had prepared to restrict the powers of the Governors of the minor presidencies.

Sir Robert Grant and family arrived in Bombay on the 12th of March 1835, before the departure of Lord Clare: he immediately assumed the charge of government, his predecessor having resigned on his arrival. His levee seems to have been the first occasion when a register was made and published of the parties presented,—and it became apparent that, from thenceforth, the list of admissions to Government House was to be a select one: until then the Governor had been in the habit of throwing open his doors nearly to all comers. Major O. Felix, unmarried, was appointed private secretary and A. D. C. and Major W. Havelock, H. M. 4th dragoons—who fell in December 1848 at Ramnuggur—military secretary; Lieut. C. Davidson, 66th B. N. I., A. D. C., and Dr C. Morehead, surgeon to the Governor. The Charter Act which came into force in April 1834 was now rapidly altering the face of Society;—special licenses to live within the island were no longer required; and in place of the “four old houses” as they were called—Forbes and Co., Bruce, Fawcett and Co. (now Remington and Co.), Leckie and Co., and Shotten and Co.,—constituting the chief European mercantile establishments of the place, new houses were beginning to spring up on every side, and a large European population was, in consequence of the Charter Act, just about to make its appearance totally unconnected with government, many of the members of which were likely, at the outset, to have no fixed or well-defined position in Society.

It is important to remember the change which had just occurred, and the alterations which were impending in the whole constitution of European Society and relation of affairs, as explaining the principles on which Sir Robert Grant acted from the commencement to the close of his distinguished administration. Trade now was free—the connection of the East India Company with Commerce at an end : the Press had just been liberated, and was preparing for the new field of duty just opened up to it,—and all the etceteras that might be looked for, were at hand. The newspapers of the presidency, as yet unused to the change, and unable, apparently, to appreciate the character of the epoch which had just dawned were found insufficient for the emergencies of the occasion, and the leading members of the mercantile community resolved on the establishment of the *Bombay Times as an independent organ of opinion befitting the time. On this as on all other matters of change then in progress, the Governor was consulted, and he fully concurred in the views of the projectors of the journal which came into existence a few months after his demise. It has been of late well remarked, that, in England, the people scarcely feel the existence of a government beyond the operations of the tax-gatherer or the stir of a parliamentary election, or ever suspect the machinery of Govt. which grates so harshly and tells at every turn in Continental States. Englishmen govern themselves—their thousand and one associations, municipalities, and corporations, manage for them all details—the executive never interferes with them so long as the laws of the country are left unbroken ; and the courts of justice stand open to every one, to be sought or not just as is thought fit. The love and the power of self-government is universal : from the earliest stage of manhood, every man, in some way or other, shares in it and becomes impressed with the independence and self reliance which give the more prominent of their characteristics to the people : from the Lord Lieutenant of the country to the fisherman or weaver who attends a lodge or shares in the proceedings of a friendly society, a political or trades' union, every man is accustomed to the management of affairs. The great importance of endeavouring to evoke or create the municipal spirit out of which these things arises, has been often most wisely dwelt upon by our present Chief Justice, and at the commencement of the operations of the Charter Act, the Governor for the time being seemed likely to bring about the introduction, at all events, of a system which must become general before anything like power or independence can be known by a community. The continual leaning on others is the great failing of the native of India : government, hitherto absolute and omnipotent, instead of being left, as elsewhere, to rule the country, was expected to do everything ; and that which they did not attempt, or found themselves unable to accomplish, was neglected or thrown aside as something not to be thought of at all. To correct faults and uproot errors such as these, appears to have been Sir R. Grant's constant and unceasing anxiety and care.

We have already had occasion to advert to the medical school for the instruction of natives, brought into existence in 1825 by the Government of Mr. Elphinstone and placed under the charge of Dr. McLennan : this, however, was but a beginning, and the scheme was not such as to bring to pass any of the larger

* The arrangements for the publication of the Bombay Times were completed in 1837, the printing materials, and other requisites for its use, arrived early in 1838. Its Editor, Dr. Brennan, a graduate of distinction, and lecturer of some celebrity on medicine, but whose feeble health made a warmer climate than that of Europe desirable, arrived in August, but wisely declined commencing the undertaking till he had time to prepare himself for the task. The Times began to be published in October, and, almost immediately, assumed a leading place amongst the journals of India. It was a Joint Stock of sixteen shares : the following were its original proprietors :—Mr. Howard, Barrister ; Mr. Montrieu Barrister, Mr. W. Mackey, Surgeon ; Mr. Murphy, Interpreter to the Supreme Court, and formerly editor of the Gazette, under whose council all the earlier arrangements had been made.

results that seemed so desirable and that Sir Robert Grant had in view. The matter was one in which he began to move from the moment he arrived in India : everywhere he asked for information of the medical men around him, and exhorted all with whom he came in contact to endeavour to unite and organize themselves so as to obtain the knowledge in deliberation and counsel that was desired. Out of this arose the Grant Medical College—brought into existence as a monument to the memory of its designer—a noble one assuredly as patriot heart could wish ; sad that it should have been a memorial ! In 1829, the Bombay Literary Society had been transformed into the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, under the auspices of Sir John Malcolm, and awakened into vigour and activity from the sleep in which it had long lain. The establishment of the Agricultural Society of Western India took place in the last year of Sir John Malcolm's administration. In 1831, the Geographical Society was established under the auspices of Lord Clare. These three Associations Sir Robert Grant found ready prepared under the auspices of his predecessors to his hands, and set about turning them to account in the promotion of the public service, which had been the object of their founders. Lord Auckland, governor-general, through him solicited permission to become a member, and was made honorary patron of the Geographical Society,—the governor having now become patron, the Superintendent of the Indian Navy, president ; and to the close of his career, he exerted himself to assist them in their labours and help in the promotion of their views. The governor was as fond of a free representation of all the interests under him as he was averse to cliquetry and party communion or management ; and it was to his suggestion that the mercantile community should establish for themselves a recognised official organ of communication with government, that the Chamber of Commerce owes its existence : and though this body has, of late years, slept as the sphere of its usefulness seemed to extend, the number of its duties to multiply ; the earlier numbers of its transactions show the activity and energy which marked its progress, and the importance attached to it as a body. The first editor of the Bombay Times, Dr. Brennan, was its first secretary ; and he was followed by two men of great literary eminence—Mr. Murphy, Mahratta Interpreter to the Supreme Court, and author of a large number of valuable papers on Oriental subjects, and Mr. T. J. A. Scott, Editor of the Bombay Times and Journal of Commerce, and subsequently of the Telegraph and Courier, (a daily newspaper brought by him into existence) and raised under his auspices to eminence, now secretary to the Great Indian Peninsular Railway Company. The liberal salary of Rs. 300 for the performance of duties pleasant and not onerous always commanded talent in Bombay. The greatest aversion was at this time manifested by the Government of India to the establishment of a Joint Stock Bank in Western India, and it was by the exertions of the Governor that this measure was carried through and the bank of Bombay brought into existence. These things read us a lesson that ought not to be forgotten, on the power, even in India, possessed by the Mercantile community when public spirit manifests itself and men unite for the promotion of their common interests and cause : at present, we wrangle and grumble, vituperate and criticize, and do nothing ! The aversion long entertained by the Court of Directors to the Red Sea Steam communication was overcome, and the overland route opened up, mainly by the influence of the Governor ; and during the short three years of his administration, new to him as were most of the tasks he was most anxious to perform or most successful in performing, the salt tax was revised and modified, town and transit duties abolished, the house tax of the cultivators done away with, the duty formerly levied on churkas abolished, though threatening government with a loss of close on half a lakh a year. The admirable revenue survey of the Deccan, productive of such important results to agriculture, was planned and commenced. A rigid enquiry into the state of the roads of the presidency was set on foot by him : a road, forty miles in length, was constructed by him from Nassick to Chandore, and from the latter place to Sindwa, on the Ajmere line : a second, of which at the time of his demise fifty miles was completed, was projected and ordered by him. A line of one hundred and forty-nine miles from Poona to Sholapore was planned under him—it was under the consideration of the home authorities at the time of his demise : thirty-four miles of road were constructed from Seroor to Ahmednuggur ; and upwards of one hundred miles of the dilapidated roads in the Concan were put in good repair. The Jehoor, Chandore and Thull ghant roads were all repaired, and the Nimba Dhera Ghant road commenced and nearly finished. The Tanna Causeway was commenced : that connecting Bombay with Colaba completed, after having been twenty years under consideration. While a list of roads and public works, projected and under consideration, still more extensive than that just given, which would, in all likelihood, have been completed had he survived the full term of his administration, was under contemplation at the period of his removal.

Such is an abstract of the practical public works begun and completed or projected by Sir Robert Grant, as enumerated by the first chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Brownrigg, at the meeting assembled to devise some means of commemorating his worth.—The following tribute to his memory will be found in the Journal of the Chamber on their resolving to erect a tablet to his memory in Byculla Church :

“ A new department, for the express supervision and construction of all the roads, bridges, and other civil works throughout the country, was organized under his especial care. It is to him, therefore, that we owe, not only that our old roads have been again restored, as well as time and means would allow, but also that already upwards of 250 miles of entirely new road have been constructed in the different districts, completing our lines of communication from Bombay to the Sindwa Pass, in Candesh, and to Mahableswur and Ahmednuggur, in the Deccan. Besides all this, surveys, plans, and estimates for upwards of three hundred miles more, with the view of facilitating traffic with the rich districts of Oomrawuttee and Barsee, and the important military station of Sholapore, have been prepared by his desire, and forwarded to the Court of Directors, with his powerful recommendation, for sanction. The extensive works now carrying on in the vicinity of Bombay, with the view of connecting Bombay, Trombay, and Salsette into one large island, as it were, and that again with the mainland, by a causeway at Tannah, all (as your committee believe) owe their origin to him. Time, it is true, was not, unhappily, allowed him to see many of these projects executed ; but, comparing the present with the former years, looking at the good which he did effect, the system which he introduced where all was before confusion, the facilities which he has afforded to cart traffic, where all was before difficulty and obstruction, we must acknowledge that we are deeply indebted to Sir Robert Grant's energy and care, for giving, as it were, the first and most powerful impulse to a system of general improvement, which, it is to be hoped, will be cherished by all his successors. Nor must your committee allow to pass unnoticed the considerate attention Sir Robert Grant bestowed on all representations from the mercantile community—the readiness with which all obstructions were removed, and every facility afforded to trade, whenever it was within the competency of his government to effect either ; the warm advocacy always accorded to all applications for relief from injurious rules or restrictions, when such relief could only be obtained from higher authority ; which clearly attest his desire to place the commerce of this presidency on that sound footing, which would best conduce to its extension, and the consequent increase of the revenue which it yields to the state.”

And let it be remembered now, when it is constantly dinned into our ears as an excuse for carelessness and neglect, that the governments of the minor presidencies have nothing in their power,—that all these things were effected by a man new to India and of infirm health, in the brief space of three years, under the present Charter, with the same limitations and restrictions now complained of as fatal to improvement. Amidst exertions of such magnitude as these, the minor efforts of Sir Robert Grant to promote the welfare of those under him or aid the innocent enjoyments of society pass unnoticed : but it may be mentioned that no invitation to preside over a public meeting, or share in schemes of improvement or enjoyment, was ever declined by him,—and that never were the hospitalities of government house more numerous, liberal, or more gracefully conducted than under his rule. A practice had long prevailed when any person or persons of note chanced to visit us or sojourn amongst us, to invite them, on some special occasion, to government house, either to a general party of the society of the presidency, or to some such select assemblage of people of tastes and occupations kindred with their own,—to these things the Governor was particularly attentive, and no foreigners and men of name ever visited the Presidency who did not experience the marked consideration of the Governor : and on these occasions it was that the talents, information, and accomplishments of himself and family, most conspicuously shone ; and showed that they stood not more at the head of society in right of office than by personal talents, accomplishments, and virtues. He had one failing, but even this leant to virtue's side—in his anxiety to do with his own hands or see with his own eyes everything accomplished as he desired, he attempted more than he had strength to perform ; and out of this arose the imputation of indolence occasionally cast upon him, pronounced by one eminently competent to judge, most undeservedly. “There is one misconception” said Mr. Willoughby at the meeting just referred to, “regarding the public character of our late governor, on which I cannot be silent, because I can state, from personal knowledge—and there are those present who can testify to the same—that the impression is quite erroneous. Our late esteemed governor has been charged with indolence in the performance of the duties of his high office. Nothing can be more unjust and unfounded than this supposition. His application to his multifarious and laborious duties was incessant and devoted ; and I conscientiously believe that if this was not the immediate cause, it hastened the calamity which is so universally deplored throughout this presidency. Sir Robert Grant, from the purest and most conscientious motives, was accustomed to take nothing for granted : but by a rigid and impartial investigation into the merits of each case, to satisfy himself of the right course to be pursued, before he passed a decision. Few are aware of the extent of business which, under the system prescribed by the last charter, devolves on the Government of India, or how largely it has, within the last three years, increased at this presidency. The fact is, our lamented governor fell into an exactly opposite error to that which, by some, has been ascribed to him. He worked beyond his strength : he tried (more particularly at the commencement of his administration) to do too much with his own hand, and to see everything with his own eye. Hence I admit, that, in some cases, delays did occur, and to these another cause contributed, which, however it may slightly affect his character as a public man, enhanced his worth as an individual, as indicating the kindness and benevolence of his disposition : his desire, in some degree laudable, though sometimes practically injurious, to give a decision the least disagreeable to all parties.”

He died at Poona, of apoplexy, on the 9th of July 1838, three years and three months after his arrival amongst us,—and never did the loss of a public man give rise to a larger amount of mourning, or of sorrow more deep or more sincere. Men of all professions, opinions and designations concurred in doing honor to his memory. He was pronounced pious, benevolent, and just,—a devout worshipper in the church and in the bosom of his family—and an example of propriety to all. The heads of the Episcopalian as well as of the Presbyterian church and of the Missionary Societies,—the first Parsee and Hindoo gentlemen, the leading merchants of the island, and men of all departments of the service in the presidency, alike combined to render homage, his memory. In a few weeks' time, half a lakh of rupees £ 10,000 was subscribed to provide memorials for them. A mural tablet, scholarships, and, above all, the Grant Medical College itself, with the noble adjuncts brought into existence around it by a native patriot, (Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, worthy of being associated with such a statesman) leave no room to forget a name embalmed in the annals of his country, and breasts of those who have seen, shared in or benefited by, his good deeds.

THE HON'BLE JAMES FARISH AND SIR JAMES CARNAC: 1838-1841.

Sir Robert Grant was succeeded in office, until the arrival of the Governor appointed by the Court, by the Hon'ble Mr. James Farish, senior member of council, who remained in office from July 1838 till April 1839; and though it is not our purpose to review the administrations of acting governors merely, who can do little more, in general, than keep the machine moving, those of Mr. Farish and Mr. Anderson extended over periods of such length and moment as to form exceptions to the rule. It was during the administration of Mr. Farish that the arrangements were made for the dispatch of the Army under Lord Keane to Afghanistan; and no man could have laboured harder or more successfully than he did, to complete the numberless complex and extensive arrangements requisite on the occasion. Throughout his career as governor, as of member of council, and senior civil servant, or, before this, as Revenue Secretary, he was devoted to the good of the country and improvement of the people: he was munificent in his bounty, and kind, benevolent, and liberal to all. He left us with the name he well deserved, and had long borne—"the good Mr. Farish." It was while he held office that the violent commotions arose amongst the Parsees on the conversion of a member of their community by the Missionaries; and Mr. Farish, having been supposed to have lent his support to the missionaries, the native community, with two exceptions, declined to make any acknowledgment of his merits on his departure from India in March 1841,—and they were understood to redouble their efforts, in a spirit of rivalry, to give eclat to that of his successor, little dreaming that, while endeavouring to depreciate the merits of a good and conscientious man, and to create a belief in the existence of imaginary excellences, they were, in reality, providing posterity with a standard by which to measure their own moral and intellectual condition.

Sir James Carnac reached Bombay and assumed the reins of Government on the 31st of May, 1839. Mr. E. F. Danvers, who had formerly been an employe in the India House, came out with him as private secretary: he was a few months afterwards appointed junior magistrate of police, when Dr. Brown, afterwards son-in-law to the Governor, succeeded him on the governor's staff. His son, Captain John Carnac, was military secretary, and Captain D'Arcy, A. D. C. We can remember no account of any measure worthy of commendation during his administration, and find nothing on record to his advantage; so we take the following from the report of the meeting assembled in his honor, on the eve of his departure. The father of Sir James was Mr. Rivett, afterwards Mr. Rivett Carnac, of the Bombay civil service: he lived to be member of council, and died in office in 1802. His son came out to India as a Cadet on the Madras establishment in 1801, and was, through his father's influence doubtless, immediately afterwards appointed A. D. C. to Governor Duncan. In 1802, he was appointed assistant resident at Baroda, where he continued till 1810, when he returned for a time to England. In 1811, he became Resident, and so continued till 1819, when he was compelled, by want of health, to return to Europe. He became a member of the Court of Directors in 1827, and, in 1835, was elected deputy chairman: the year following, he was elected chairman, and when his term of service expired, was a second time appointed to the office. He was nominated Governor of Bombay in 1839, and, from this time, his history is pretty nearly a blank. He was old and worn out before his arrival, and spent the chief part of his time away from the presidency. He was kind to the Natives, and was one of the first Governors who received them almost promiscuously at his house. Mr Danvers was disposed of by him as junior magistrate of police: his relative, Mr Rivett, was made Sheriff the year after his arrival. Sir James Carnac subscribed a minute written by Colonel Jervis on the subject of education ; made a satisfactory visit to Baroda in November 1840 ; and, in May 1841, resigned the government and returned to Europe. To establish a contrast betwixt the estimation in which he and Mr. Farish were held at the time, enormous sums were subscribed by the Natives for a testimonial to him—of whom not a single notable action could be quoted by his warmest admirers while he was governor. When the bust which formed part of the testimonial arrived, it was allowed to lie two years in the library of the town hall in its packing case, and might, so far as appears, have lain for ever there but for the accident of its being in the way and being desired for the exhibition in the town hall in 1850. The view of the administration of Sir James Carnac, from a distance, not only lends no enchantment, but brings many things to light which it were desirable to have forgotten : such was the native gubernatorial idol of 1841 !

Sir James Carnac was succeeded by the senior member of council, Mr Anderson, who was continued for more than a twelvemonth in office by the death of Sir William Macnaghten, expected to have assumed the reins of government in the beginning of 1842—by this time, he had been butchered at Cabool ! The administration of Mr. Anderson was occupied by the active preparations for the uccour of our troops in Afghanistan : the whole of it was spent at the presidency. He was a man of much experience, sound sense, and general information,—extremely frank and accessible,—a good man of business, and a popular governor. In this capacity, as well as that of member of council, he took an active share in the affairs of all our Societies, over three of which he presided,—and in all public business and municipal matters. His merits have since secured for him Knighthood, and the Governorship of the Mauritius, and, subsequently, of Ceylon.

SIR GEORGE ARTHUR : 1842-1845.

Sir George Arthur succeeded on the 5th June 1842. Captain Arthur, his son, was appointed his military secretary ; and casting around him for some man of talent, experience, and knowledge of Indian affairs, as private secretary, on whose counsel he could rely, he deemed himself fortunate in falling in with Major—now Lieutenant-Colonel and Professor—Jacob, of Addiscombe : who had been known to him when on sick leave in Australia. Major Jacob, then in charge of the Gunpowder Manufactory, was unable to accept the appointment, which was conferred on Mr. H. B. E. Frere, now Commissioner in Scinde, who, so far back as 1842, was considered one of the most rising young men in the civil service, and was on this ground selected ; and he again, on proceeding home sick, was succeeded by Mr. C. J. Erskine, a man of equal eminence, though in a different path of excellence.* Somehow or other, Sir George Arthur had brought with him a name that was unpopular. As Governor of Australia, fourteen years before, tidings of his severities had reached us, and at last one nearly connected with an officer of standing in the presidency, is said to have been amongst those hanged for stealing under his administration. The times had been troublesome, and probably a milder system of policy was found inadmissible : that it was approved of at home, was apparent from the fact that the man who had served in the south under a Tory administration, was sent to bring Canada to order, in 1832, by the Whigs : he was afterwards presented by the Tories to the Government of Bombay. He had, before this, been governor of Honduras, and passed a larger amount of varied gubernatorial employment than any man of his time. The administration of Sir George Arthur, unlike that of Sir James Carnac, is one in regard to which reflection and experience compels us to reverse, or at all events, greatly modify, the opinion formed of it at the time ;

* It was a somewhat curious circumstance, that in the only three instances we have ever had of Governors with grown up families, the private secretaries always married into the house : this was the case with Dr. Brown, Mr. Frere, and Mr. Erskine—in the time of Sir James Carnac, Sir George, Arthur, and the Hon'ble Mr. Reid.

and now, after the lapse of six years, it seems very difficult to explain the cause of his extreme unpopularity when amongst us. He was a man of great industry and method—of strong and masculine understanding—of much determination and decision of purpose : he was upright and just in his principles,—had a sovereign scorn of that bugbear of red-tapists — apprehension of responsibility ; and beneath a cold and austere exterior, concealed great benevolence of disposition and warmth of heart. No man could show truer friendship in the hour of adversity, or greater tenderness, even to the most humble, in that of affliction. But he was jealous and suspicious by nature, and had ruled communities in the last degree requiring to be watched over and open to suspicion. Those of his measures which were, at the time, most unpopular, when examined, now that the mists of prejudice have blown aside, have much in them that is excellent—little, if anything, save want of grace, that is blameworthy. It was, for example, an object of anxiety to see and introduce reforms in absurd social usages which existed from sheer custom and aversion to change, often carrying the most serious mischiefs in their train. The late hours kept on festive occasions, where parties remained together till the approach of the chilly air of dawn, have probably more to answer for in the way of sickness and mortality than the climate itself, unaided by the imprudence of those who became its victims. Desirous of setting a good example in this matter, it was resolved that Government House parties should meet early and break up exactly at midnight ; and, accordingly, at one of the earliest of these that was given, the national anthem was played as the clock chimed forth the midnight hour : the hint was taken, and the company retired,—but so much offence was occasioned by it, that it was never again ventured on.

Sir George Arthur was in the habit of visiting hospitals, barracks and other public places without observing the usual state, or affording the customary official notice, to enable everything to be put in order for the reception of the Governor—and this seems the only way of getting a correct idea of the ordinary every-day working condition of the establishment : a scene for effect can always be got up, if time for a rehearsal is allowed. Sir C. Napier and Sir George Clerk were both addicted to this variety of “ popping in unexpectedly :” in both these it was commended—it was looked on in Sir George Arthur as a very intolerable variety of espionage ! We have said that the Governor was indifferent to responsibility—he was also most intolerant of procrastination, and of that variety of red-tapeism which holds forms not only to be expedient,—all wise men do—but entitled to take place of everything besides. When military movements were to be arranged with quietness, secrecy and promptitude incompatible with the ordinary course of business, the Commander-in-Chief was virtually suspended by everything being done through the secret and political department, where the governor, with the concurrence of his council, was himself supreme. He was the first of our Governors who put a stop to work being carried on under Government on the Sabbath (G. O., Jan. 26th 1843)—and directed all contracts to be entered into with the distinct understanding that the Sabbath day was to be observed as one of rest : it was not till four years afterwards that a similar measure was ventured on by the Governor-General for Bengal. The resolution that no civilian who was in debt should be promoted, was unwise only in this—that it ought not to have been retrospective ;—it was impossible that it should have been other than inquisitorial. It is but fair that the members of the service should advance in what is allowed to have been the path of promotion contemplated at the time of their appointment and throughout the subsequent portion of their career both by employers and employees, and that no bar, ever before dreamt of or provided against, should be laid across their path at any period of their progress. There could be nothing more wise or advantageous to all parties than an order made known to every man on his entering the service, that no individual who did not keep accounts and live from the outset on his means, should be ever suffered to advance, save at the tardiest possible pace ; and that he should for ever be precluded, while in debt, from offices of trust or responsibility. It would in this case at once be found difficult to borrow and easy to do without borrowing : the fact that many of the worst-paid members of the service save from their incomes, shows it to be possible for all to live within them ; and all that is required, is, that the abstinence and self-denial all ought to be able to practise should be resorted to early, instead of late, in life ;— that in India, as everywhere else, the entrance into life, not the retirement from it, should be the period of penury and toil. It must be remembered, moreover, that by no effort on our part can the belief, current in the native mind, be eradicated, that the man in debt is necessarily the slave of his inclinations and that a judge in difficulties will always make the most of justice. These opinions may be, in nine-tenths of cases, utterly groundless, but they are as injurious as if well grounded : the most upright men, through indebtedness, bring the British name into suspicion. Sir George Arthur deemed it the duty of a governor periodically to visit and examine, in person, all parts of the dominions entrusted to his charge, and had laid his plans accordingly : these were frustrated by the Court of Directors, who begrudged the expence.

One of the most remarkable measures in the administration of Sir George Arthur, was the determination to seize on the papers of Dhackjee Dadajee—a Hindoo merchant of great wealth and influence—agent for the Guicowar at Bombay. In 1842, rumours were almost as loud as they now are, (though the form they assumed and grounds on which they were based were much less definite than at present) of vast sums of money having been sent from Baroda to secure Government influence in Bombay,—and of the success attendant on the arrangement. The Governor determined to clear the British name, if possible, of aspersions so injurious and so generally believed, or to convict and bring to condign punishment those who had misconducted themselves, should the scandal be found not groundless. The house of Dhackjee Dadajee was directed to be searched for papers,—and this was accordingly managed, with great adroitness, by Mr. LeGeyt and Captain Burrowes, the chief magistrate and superintendent of police, with a strong body of constabulary. Every place was ransacked and abundance of documents found to disclose the proneness of the Guicowar to corruption. Though he had allotted fourteen lakhs of rupees to purchase the Government of Sir James Carnac all over, assigning each man his price, no sufficient evidence was obtained of the money set aside having been actually expended, or of any corruption whatever having occurred in high places. Ruin has since then overtaken the house, and what was then kept secret, has since been made known : a much more cordial correspondence than became the occasion and circumstances, had long been maintained by members of the Government here and the Baroda faction, and though it is not surmised that any proof of bribery ever existed, it is affirmed that, at ten o'clock the night before the search, a government servant, necessarily made aware of what was about to occur, put Dhackjee on his guard, and that the documents desired to be kept secret were made away with. The proceeding altogether was a despotic one, but despotism was justified by the occasion, and the motive by which the Governor was actuated was worthy of all praise.

The Colaba barracks had so often proved sickly, that, after the severe sufferings and great mortality of H. M.'s 17th in 1841, it was resolved by the Court of Directors that they should be abandoned, and all further expenditure on them was forbidden. The Governor thought that, by improving the drainage around, removing the mangroves from Backbay, and giving a greatly increased amount of air and ventilation to the barracks, they might be made serviceable : for this, though against their own instructions, he was afterwards thanked by the Court. In 1844, a proposition was brought under the notice of Government for planting a double avenue of trees from the Colaba church to the observatory gate, for the shelter of the road from the sun, and to enable the soldiers to enjoy more of the open air without risk : the matter was at once taken up with the utmost warmth, by the Governor, who examined all the plans most carefully, and inspected the ground for himself. It turned out, on reference to Dr. Gibson, that the expense threatened to be such as was scarcely considered warrantable on the occasion. The same season, while at Mahableschwur, the Governor rode over all the ground around the site of the proposed sanatorium of Paunchgunny, and took infinite pains to see in what manner a measure so desirable might be worked out satisfactorily. These may seem matters of no great magnitude or moment in themselves, but to each of them, Sir George Arthur gave the utmost attention personally : in regard to each of them, he entered on the most diligent and minute personal enquiries, showing in this, as in all other things, a determination to see with his own eyes and not to employ the spectacles of any one, and to throw his whole energies on the work of improvement, be the objects in view big or small. Though a reserved and formal man, Sir George Arthur was most anxious to make himself perfectly acquainted with the natives and to bring their gentry and our own together on such a footing as to raise their respect for themselves and to elevate their estimation as to what was unbecoming their character and position—to hold, in fact, that they were GENTLEMEN, and ought to do nothing unworthy of their character. At a large party given by Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy, in 1843, he expressed his regret that the native gentlemen could not be induced to bring their families along with them to Parell—"I will not however stand on this," said the Governor, "and beg to assure my friend Sir Jamsetjee that my family and I will always accept his invitations, hoping that the time may come when mine may, in like manner, be accepted by him and his family." The step lately taken in the education of Native females makes us almost sceptical as to the aversion to it existing amongst the higher classes eight years ago : Sir George Arthur made it a duty, and set it forth as a personal favor, that some of the Parsees should have English governesses for the young ladies of their households ; and the matter, after a most auspicious commencement, broke down through the indiscretion of one who would not teach the heathen to read and write, unless the scriptures were taught also. Our excellent Bishop (Dr Carr) remarked, that surely if our native brethren refused to see the grace of the Omnipotent, the most conscientious might enable them, at all events, to enjoy the knowledge of His wisdom and His goodness. Sir George Arthur was too cautious to permit his opinion of the general policy of the Supreme Government to become known, and we are ignorant of his views regarding the great abomination of his time—the seizure of cinde. We imagine that he held the same ideas concerning it as did every intelligent and upright man who studied the question,—but the Napiers quote him amongst their admirers, and Lord Ellenborough has included his name on the Southam Column as one of his worshippers. His conduct towards the Ameers was full of kindness, consideration and respect,—such, indeed, as gave the utmost offence to their enemies. In August 1843, when occupied in visiting the sugar plantations, botanical gardens and other places of interest in the Deccan, he made a special journey to Sassoor to visit their highnesses, to see that they were properly accommodated and cared for, and to offer them every consolation in his power. It was then that Meer Roostum made answer, "better a bush to sleep under, in one's own country, than a palace to dwell in, in a foreign land." Such was the estimation in which Sir George Arthur was held by the authorities at home that so soon as tidings of the Seikh war were received, a provisional commission to the appointment of Governor-General of India was sent out to him, to be acted on in the event of any untoward accident befalling Lord Hardinge, then in the field. To a man without family influence, political connections, or parliamentary distinction, this was about the highest compliment that could have been paid. In the hot season of 1846, he had suffered from a slight paralytic affection, and his general health became more feeble as the rains advanced,—inasmuch as that it was deemed expedient for him to leave for Suez as soon as the weather allowed. He quitted Bombay on the 5th of August, not only without the slightest acknowledgment of his services or expression on the part of the community of regret at his departure, but under the impression that a demonstration of an opposite description was a thing not impossible. Why it should have been so, it seems now difficult to comprehend : that the judgment then passed by public opinion has long since been modified or reversed, we have no doubt whatever. On his return home, he speedily recovered, and though he determined not again to imperil it by embarking in public life, has continued in the enjoyment of excellent health and full possession of all his faculties ever since.

SIR GEORGE CLERK : 1846-1848.

On the retirement of Sir George Arthur, the Hon'ble L. R. Reid assumed temporary charge of the reins of government. His administration occurred at a period of public tranquillity such as left no room for the exercise of any particular amount of gubernatorial talent during the limited space to which he knew his term of office to be restricted. He was a man of sound judgment, uprightness and ability, and his reign was conspicuous for the grace, elegance and profusion of the hospitalities of Farell from August to February, and for the general anxiety manifested by him and those around him to do what was acceptable, pleasing and considerate. He was succeeded by

Mr. George Russell Clerk, whose character may be given in the terms in which it was depicted on his retirement,—premising that it might have been worded still more warmly, in perfect accordance with truth :—

“ Mr. Clerk came to India in 1817. He was first an assistant magistrate and then an assistant judge in a very troublesome part of the country. By this time, his talents had become known to the Bengal Government, and he was, so soon as his position permitted it, transferred to the secret and political department of the service in 1822—within five years of his arrival in the country,—he was in diplomatic employment under Sir D. Ochterlony, one of the most distinguished statesmen of his time in India. In 1823, he was political agent at Bhurtpore. Soon after this, he was employed in political appointments at Nagpore and in the northern Mahratta country. In 1832—we find him political agent at Umballa—one of the most important positions in Northern India. Umballa is a Seikh town in the province of Delhi, which had, ten years before, been recommended as a residence for the superintendent of Seikh affairs: it is in the midst of those turbulent provinces the people of which have so often alarmed, and in 1845 so seriously annoyed, us. Here he had to watch all the complex cabals of energetic, warlike, and perfidious tribes constantly engaged in intrigue, perpetually on the eve of undermining or attacking each other or of endeavouring to make some attack against us. As the misunderstandings with Afghanistan began, Mr. Clerk's position became one of peculiar difficulty : yet so strongly had he impressed the barbarous chiefs around him with respect, and regard for his character, and so thoroughly had he obtained the mastery over them, that in 1838, when military movements commenced, he was able to persuade them to provide for no fewer than six several British camps at one time in their country; and while Sir Henry Fane was permitted to march the Army of the Indus along their borders from Kurnaul to Mittenkote, the contingent of the Shah Soojah was suffered to advance straight on Peshawur, right through the centre of the Punjaub. From this time till 1841, it was through Mr. Clerk's exertions exclusively that our communications with Cabool were kept up. From the death of Runjeet Singh in August 1839, we had no regular government to deal with. Kurruck Singh made no secret of his hatred and jealousy of us, and Shere Singh could hardly manage to keep himself steady on his throne. The march of Lord Keane's army from Cabool to Ferozepore, the march of Major Broadfoot's envoy and Colonel Shelton's brigade from Ferozepore to Peshawar, had all to be provided for; and all were so successfully. Mr Clerk was the first man in authority who received tidings of the Ghilzie insurrection, from which such frightful results ensued. This reached him on the 17th of November, and he instantly dispatched one brigade across the Sutlej and made arrangements for the movements of another, without waiting for instructions from the Commander-in-Chief. It was a time when not a moment was to be lost—all idea of the danger of incurring responsibilities must be abandoned by those who hoped to serve the State in the hour of extremity. From this time until the return of our triumphant armies in December 1842, every arrangement devolved on Mr. Clerk. Well were the Seikhs aware, meanwhile, of the extreme danger in which we had placed ourselves, and narrowly, with all their show of friendship, did they watch us, with the view of taking advantage of our necessities. Mr. Clerk fathomed the purposes of the Durbar and the Chiefs, and secured the march of brigade after brigade till a force of twelve thousand men was assembled under General Pollock at Peshawar,—the illustrious garrison was safe again,—and the passes at our command. It was a peculiarly happy circumstance that permitted Sale's right hand man, Colonel Havelock, to be present at the meeting: his was the testimony of one who knew and shared in the ever varying emotions of the heroes of Jellalabad, when all human aid seemed to have left them, and the powers of nature appeared to have combined against them—when to famine and leaguer were added storm and earthquake. Jellalabad was isolated: two hundred miles of the most terrific passes in the world divided it from the Punjab—three hundred more interposed betwixt it and India. They were without means of communicating with India—short of provisions, still shorter of ammunition, and altogether destitute of money: a British army of six thousand men had been slaughtered almost within their view, and no relief could be afforded them. For seven dreary months, one only hope remained for them, that through the exertions of 'George Clerk of Umballah', they would yet be relieved; and that hope proved not in vain. If, after three years of constant strife, the Seikhs could still bring two hundred and fifty pieces of cannon and sixty thousand of the finest warriors in Asia against us, what might have been the consequence had they chosen to interpose this force betwixt us and our resources, either on our retreat or advance in 1842? By the management of Mr. Clerk, we moved where we liked unmolested. His appointment to the Envoyship of Lahore, short time as it was held by him was attended by the same advantageous results as had been his residence at Umballah. He was next elevated to the post of Governor of the north west provinces: and here he continued to show, as he had all along before continually shows, that if the estimation of Sir H. Fane, so eminently qualified for the performance of the duties of a military chief, he seemed to have mistaken his profession—that the promptitude, courage, ability and zeal, which formed the finest attributes of the soldier's character, might equally be turned to account by a civilian in authority. The canals, market-places, aqueducts and works of general utility constructed under his charge, or by his influence, while Seikh Agent, will be remembered long after those who have subscribed the present address have, one and all, been gathered to their fathers. Mr. Clerk had long suffered from fracture in the skull occasioned by a fall from his horse at Simla. Twenty-five years' constant exertion, where frequent exposure was unavoidable, had shattered and shaken his constitution, and he had hardly well commenced his duties at Agra, when he found himself unable to perform them as they ought to have been performed. He was in London at the time the tidings of the Seikh war arrived, and the intelligence which continued to be received so late as the month of Feb. 1846, of the extreme difficulties likely to be experienced in settling matters in the Punjab according to our desires, was such, that the Court applied to him to accept a seat at the Council Board of Calcutta, that his talents, decision, and intimate familiarity with the affairs and character of the people with whom we had to deal, might be at the command of the Supreme Government. His medical men stated that, if he returned to India, it must be at the peril of his life, and he presented himself at the India House with this opinion,—placing himself, at the same time, in the hands of the Directors, and expressing his willingness to encounter any risk for the advantage of the State, should they, in the knowledge of the shattered state of his constitution, still desire his services. He was on this requested to proceed to Calcutta without one moment's delay; and, to save time, posted express through France, and joined the steamer at Malta. Exposed to the night air in a crowded track-boat on the Nile, he was thrown into a violent brain-fever at Grand Cairo, and narrowly escaped with his life. To proceed onward, for a time, was impossible, and he returned to Europe and rejoined his family at Baden Baden, where he remained for some months. The Court still pressed Mr. Clerk to join the Supreme Council of India, and he accordingly started with the steamer in November 1846, and reached Calcutta in safety. The crisis of our arrangements with the Punjab was now over, and his services in the Supreme Council no longer required for the purposes primarily in contemplation; and the Court, in concert with Her Majesty's administration, resolved on conferring upon him the Government of Bombay, vacant by the retirement of Sir George Arthur. On this occasion, a powerful minority in the India House was disposed to favour the claims of the Hon'ble Mr. Reid, who so ably filled the post of acting Governor during the interregnum. Mr. Clerk first became aware of the change that had occurred in his destinies on his arrival at Calcutta; and, after a stay of ten days at the City of Palaces, he took his departure for Bombay, and assumed the reins of Government on the 20th February 1847. He was still suffering severely, though he made no complaint, and afforded no sign of sickness in his external appearance or demeanour. He found himself unable to overcome a distressing restlessness and intense sleeplessness at night, from which he had never ceased to suffer from the time of his retirement from Agra; and incapable of devoting himself to writing or desk study with that industry and systematic attention required for the successful management of the affairs of Government. While fully admitting the importance of a Governor seeing with his own eyes as much as possible of the province entrusted to his charge, he was deeply impressed with the importance of the council being as little separated as might be from each other, and had therefore resolved to make his excursions short and rapid, and as frequent as possible, and not to be at any time longer absent from the presidency than was necessary. The first hot season warned him how difficult it would be for him to carry his ideas of good government into effect; and though May 1847 was unusually mild and moderate, he found his old complaints rapidly gaining ground, and his constitution sinking. A stay of some months, during the rainy season, at Poona, considerably restored him; but the delicious monsoon climate of the Deccan once over, he found himself at the hills barely able to hold his own—gaining no ground, and acquiring no strength to meet his return to Bombay. He found, in fact, so much time and thought were required in attending to his own health, that the attention a conscientious man considered due to the State could not be bestowed on it, and he accordingly resolved to resign a post for the efficient occupation of which he conceived himself to have become disqualified by indisposition. During the short period of his administration, he had been incessantly employed in endeavouring to advance the cause of improvement in all directions, to disseminate knowledge and extend education amongst the natives—to stimulate agriculture, revive commerce, and promote navigation. His wish was to see everything, and to examine into everything for himself, and to allow no good work that was to be done to suffer by delay. To permit forms devised for the advancement of business or for making the results of exertion more durable and certain than they otherwise would have been, to become incumbrances and obstructions to the advancement of those who made them, seemed to him pre-eminently preposterous; and his anxiety ever was to reach the ends the attainment of which he considered desirable, by the shortest, simplest and most compendious of means. He was at all times eminently accessible to those who desired his ear—ever ready to attend to any application, complaint, or explanation, however tedious or unimportant it might have seemed to him. To open up roads and thoroughfares—to improve the police, cleanliness, healthiness and beauty of our towns—to increase the comforts of all to whom his power extended—to elevate the condition of the army—were subjects which constantly occupied his care. One important series of results, arising from these things, speedily became unmistakeable—Mr. Clerk inspired every one with whom he came in contact with a portion of the energy and zeal by which he himself was actuated. The leading characteristic of his public life attended him to its close—that happy faculty of carrying those with whom he came in contact completely along with him, and inducing them to exert themselves in the public service with the zeal and energy they saw him exercise. Without enlarging further, we may briefly say that rarely has a ruler left us whose departure will be more deeply and generally regretted.”

We have thus completed the series of sketches of Governors of Bombay for the past thirty years, in so far as leisure permitted, or we found material at our disposal: with all their imperfections on their heads, they will be found, we trust, to contain not a little that the general reader will consider acceptable, and that will help to show that, limited and restricted as are the powers and functions of the governments of the minor Presidencies, there is still abundance of work left open for them to perform, and that so long as an unbounded field is open for exertion—that until as much is attempted as has before now been accomplished—they cannot hold themselves acquitted of neglect of duty.

The rates of premium on term policies, and assurance for the whole of life without participation, are now reduced, by order of the London Board, twenty per cent., and will be found below those of any other office in India.

For assurance for the term of life with participation in the Profits of the Society the rates remain unaltered, but the reduction after the expiration of six years has hitherto amounted upon an average to 50 per cent. upon the original charge, and the success of the Universal leads the directors to hope that the prospective results will be still more satisfactory.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

ADVANTAGES OFFERED BY THIS SOCIETY.

1.—The profits are declared in each year, on the second Wednesday in May, from and after which date all persons assured for the whole term of life on the participating scale, and on whose policies, six complete annual or twelve complete half yearly, original premiums have been paid, are entitled to participate in the profits of succeeding years in either of the modes provided by the deed of settlement, viz., either a reduction of the annual or half yearly premiums for the current year as they fall due, or an equivalent addition to the sum assured by way of a bonus. Each assurer on his first becoming entitled to participate in the profits, has the option of selecting either of the foregoing methods, and three months from the date of the declaration of the profits is allowed for his making that selection, which however when once determined on cannot be altered in after years.

2.—One-fifth of the ascertained profits of the five past years is divided between the policy-holders and Shareholders—there-fourths to the former, and one-fourth to the latter; the remaining four-fifths are set apart to enter into the average to be struck on the next succeeding year.

3.—The following table will shew the operation of the reduction allowed by the division of profits for 1852, which is equivalent to 45 per cent on the current annual premium of all policies entitled to participation:—

| Age next birth-day when Policy was issued. | Date of Policy previous to the 2d Wednesday. | Sum assured. | Original Premium. | Reduction. | Annual Premium payable after deduction. |

4.—From the foregoing explanations it will be seen that the benefits arising from a participation of the profits are actually experienced (when a reduction of the premium is selected) at the period when the seventh annual or thirteenth or fourteenth half-yearly premium falls due. In the case, however, of a Bonus to the sum assured being selected, an equivalent sum will be added to the policy for the current year, being such an amount as the reduction in the premium would purchase as a single payment.

5.—Separate tables for assurances without participation in profit, both civil and military, have been adopted for the whole of life, at reduced rates, for such persons as may prefer a lower rate of premium to participation in the general profits.

6.—Any person assured for the whole term of life will, on his return to Europe, for a continuance, be permitted to pay premiums according to the English rate for the age at which he originally assured.

7.—Parties visiting England on Furlough, or for temporary residence, will be required to pay the Indian premium during residence in England, without reference to the number of years the same may previously have been paid in India.

8.—In all cases of reduction to the English rates the policies are to be subject to all the regulations and conditions affecting English policies.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

9.—When application is made for assuring a life subject to more than ordinary hazard, an augmented premium will be charged proportionate to the increased risk, the rate of which will be regulated by the strictest attention to justice between the society and the assured, according to circumstances.

10.—The parent institution being in London, with a similar establishment in Calcutta for granting policies,—premiums, as well as claims are payable in either country at the option of the policy holder. The appointment of sub-committees at Madras and Bombay, with power to grant policies, affords similar facilities to persons residing at either of the sister presidencies.

11.—All policies becoming claims on the society will be discharged within three months after satisfactory proof of the death, and cause of death, of the assured, shall have been furnished to the directors, either in London or Calcutta.

12.—The directors of the Indian Branch of the society are empowered to treat for the purchase of policies, for the whole term of life, on which premium shall have been paid for a period of not less than five years, or to advance, if required, on such policies, by way of loan, two-thirds of the estimated value.

13.—All applications, for assurance must be accompanied by a medical fee of eight rupees.

14.—The tables, blank forms, and other particulars requisite to enable persons to effect assurances may be had on application to the agents.

By order of the Directors.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

In the construction of the Indian Prospectus of this Company it has been the desire of the Directors, in so far as safe and practicable to aggregate the advantages which have been hitherto offered to Assurers in India, and it is now asserted that the general terms and conditions of this Company are more liberal than those which can be afforded by any other office in this country.

Attention is more particularly directed to the following, viz.

(1.) Rates calculated by Mr. Neilson from the Records of the India House extending over the period from 1760 to 1847 inclusive.

(2.) Rates ranging in the case of Civil lives from eight to 28 per cent lower than the average rates of other offices, and in case of Military lives from 21 to 30 per cent lower than that average as will appear from the following :

ADVANTAGES AFFORDED BY THE ALBION.

LOW PREMIUMS, compared with those usually charged for Insuring the Lives of Europeans, resident in India. Thus, at the age of 20, the lowest Military Premium usually charged for an Insurance of 10,000 would insure from 10,500 to 11,250 Rupees in the ALBION, thereby securing to the Policy-holder an immediate Bonus of from 500 to 1,250 Rupees or an immediate and permanent Reduction of Premium, varying from  $4\frac{3}{4}$  to 11 per cent.

PERFECT SECURITY, arising from a large Capital totally independent of the Premium Fund, and the accumulated Profits of nearly half a Century. In all Societies for Mutual Insurance, the Premium Fund constitutes the only Capital, and the Members are mutually liable for any deficiency that may at any time be found to exist in the assets of the Association.

The Policy holder in the Albion participates in the Profits from the date of his Insurance, instead of being required as in other offices to pay six original annual premiums, before he can have even one single Bonus added to his Policy.

Eighty per cent of the Profit divided every three years, without any deduction whatever.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Bonus applied at the option of the Proposer, in augmentation of the sum insured, or in reduction of the annual Premiums.

The Albion has been in successful operation for nearly half a century, and has paid to the families and representatives of Policy holders upwards of £1,58,000.

Rates for Insuring the lives of Europeans resident in India, during Life, or for a term of years.

Annual premium payable during Life to insure 1,000 Company's Rupees, payable at death, whenever that event shall happen.

No. 1, PARTICIPATING SCALE.

Four-fifths of the Profits returned to the Assured every three years.

No. 1, LOW PREMIUMS.

Without Participation in the Profits of the Company.
